[illegible] was [illegible] of the most [illegible] committed in Oakland [illegible] broad day [illegible] there were people in all [illegible] the hearing of the shots and [illegible] might [illegible] supposed some [illegible] eyewitness [illegible] occurrence. And [illegible] person saw the [illegible] shooting [illegible] resembling [illegible] suspect was seen [illegible] walk away [illegible] Moore and [illegible] residence [illegible] the strongest testimony that is yet known against the accused.

The shooting took place at an hour that is yet involved [illegible] and [illegible] recent developments the time [illegible] will [illegible] important factor in the case.

The assault took place it is believed on the east side of [illegible] residence. The professor lives [illegible] on the north side of Edwards street. Almost directly from the front entrance leading south to St. Mary's [illegible] a rough roadway over the [illegible] lots. In front of the [illegible] is a small plot used as a pasture. On the east side is a piece of wooded ground the [illegible] which falls against the wall of the structure.

On one side of the building there is a small flight of steps leading to the side entrance. It was at the base of these stairs that Miss Lewis was found bleeding and unconscious. The discovery was made by a nurse in the employ of Professor Mooar and whose duty it is to attend to Mrs. Mooar. She had heard two pistol shots in rapid succession. She feared to go out for some time but she finally mustered up enough courage and ran in fear to the scene. She did not remain there long but [illegible] assistance and returned accompanied by Professor Lovejoy of the Pacific Theological Seminary. By this time P. F. Shafter who lives on Edwards street immediately opposite Andover street about one block west of Professor Mooar's residence appeared on the scene. He suggested that Miss Lewis be taken into the house but the nurse objected on the ground that the young woman must lie there until the coroner had arrived.

This idea of course was occasioned by the certainty on the part of the nurse that Miss Lewis was dead.

The head of the young woman was propped up and Shafter dispatched a boy on a bicycle to the Home of the Blind on Telegraph avenue to notify the police of the shooting.

At that time the only persons at home in the Mooar residence were the nurse Mrs. Mooar who is an invalid. The Professor was in San Francisco and his daughter was in Oakland.

Shafter rushed down to Telegraph avenue and looked anxiously in each northbound car to see either the doctor's daughter to apprise them of the sad event. But neither appeared.

SIGNS OF LIFE.

Meantime it was ascertained that Miss Lewis was not dead and the assistance summoned endeavored to aid her as best it could until she was taken to the Receiving hospital. There the unfortunate girl was placed under the care of Drs. Johnson and Hamlin who after making a careful examination of her injuries decided that she could not live.

Meantime a dispatch was sent to A. C. Lewis in San Rafael the father of the wounded girl and in response he came to this city on the first boat reaching here at an early hour after the shooting.

The police too were notified and Chief Lloyd sent out a number of telegrams to various towns describing further the man suspected [illegible] the [illegible] officers to [illegible] him.

Various places in this city where it was known Muhlner had been seen were watched by the police last night and some of the detectives went to San Francisco where they prosecuted a search for the suspect.

BULGARIAN BANDS

More Outrages Being Perpetrated in Armenia

By Associated Press to The Tribune

CONSTANTINOPLE Aug 13—The Vali of Salonica telegraphs that a Bulgarian band numbering 1000 men attacked the village of Jinakli in the district of Kirdjali and burned 30 houses.

The Armenians are also said to have killed twenty-five of the inhabitants of [illegible].

The Vali of Adrianople has sent a similar dispatch but he thinks the accounts are probably exaggerated.

RIOTING STRIKERS.

Italians and Policemen Come Together at Pittsburg

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PITTSBURG Aug 13—A hundred and fifty Italians employed on the excavation conduit in Allegheny struck yesterday for an advance of 25 cents a day.

Other men were secured to take their places and today the strikers tried to drive the new men from their work.

Stones clubs and revolvers were freely used and two Italians had their heads split open.

The mob was dispersed by the police.

The Commissioners Case.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

George Cullen Run Down Near the Sixteenth Street Depot.

Criminals Cleverly Landed as They Passed Through West Oakland.

WEST OAKLAND Aug 13—George Cullen the 13 year old son of Mrs Edward Cullen of 16[illegible] Sixteenth street near Campbell street met with a sad death at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The youngster boarded the outcoming Napa train at the Sixteenth street depot with the intention of jumping off when the train arrived a short distance east of the [illegible] where a number of his young companions were [illegible] on the beach. When [illegible] the place in question the boy jumped though the train was going at a rapid rate of speed. As [illegible] and rolled under the wheels. His head was almost severed from his body and death was instantaneous. As soon as possible the train was brought to a stop and the lifeless body of the unfortunate lad was removed from the track by Police Officer Keefe and the conductor of the train.

Coroner Baldwin was notified and the body was removed to the morgue where the inquest was held this morning. The jury after a short deliberation returned a verdict of accidental death.

The deceased was a brother of Edward Cullen and Misses Fanny, Lily and Gertrude Cullen and their many friends sympathize with them in their bereavement. The boy was a very quiet young fellow and was liked by all with whom he came in contact. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the residence of his mother.

WANTED BY THE POLICE.

Constable Cronin and Deputy Constable Gilmartin last night arrested Jack Casey and Jim Roach near Emeryville on suspicion of being implicated in the burglary of a store near the corner of Seventh and Peralta street about a month ago. The men had a large quantity of jewelry in their possession which it is believed they stole from a [illegible] in San Francisco. The San Francisco authorities were notified and D[illegible] to the Anton[illegible] notified the prisoners as the individuals wanted. While on their way to the jail the prisoners dropped some of the plunder which was recovered by Detective Fogarty of the Southern Pacific Company. Among the [illegible] found on them were several silver pins bracelets shaving outfits rings knives harmonicas and other small but costly articles. The men will be sent to San Francisco to stand trial.

MRS NORTON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs Sarah L Norton wife of H H Norton the main line pitcher at the mole took place from the family residence on Pine street yesterday. The services were largely attended by the friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

THE HALLS DEFEATED.

The Charles T Hall base ball club crossed bats Sunday with the Olympic Club of San Francisco at Golden Gate park and were defeated by a score of 20 to 0. The Halls played a good game but luck was against them. Three of their best players were absent. Manager Hall stated today that he is willing to try conclusions again. He will bet $100 on his men.

THE OWL CLUB.

The Owl Social and Political Club held an interesting meeting at Fourteenth and Kirkham streets last night. President William Glenar occupied the chair. Arrangements are being effected for the holding of an entertainment and dance early next month. Nine new members were added to the roll.

SEEKS FREEDOM.

Aged Michael Collins Wants to Be Admitted to Bail

An effort was made in Judge Frick's court today to have Michael Collins admitted to bail. Attorney George Knight appeared in behalf of his aged client with a motion to that effect and requested Judge Frick to consider the amount which should be fixed in case the appeal was granted to have the old man released pending his second trial.

An agreement was reached with the district attorney as to the date of Collins second trial for the killing of Philip Boogar last January. It was set for September 4th.

The district attorney through [illegible] Church waived all formalities in the matter of the application of Knight for bail.

The general opinion is that Collins will be admitted to bail as it is almost certain that he will never be convicted. Sympathy turned in his direction when the facts leading up to the slaying of Boogar became known.

THOMSON'S DEMAND.

Hearing on His Fight for a Franchise Goes Over.

The hearing of argument on the application of A D Thomson for a writ of mandate to compel the Supervisors to accept his bid for an electric road to Livermore was not resumed this morning in Judge Elsworth's court. The trial of W H Siedentopf intervened and the hearing was continued until tomorrow as District Attorney Snook is engaged in the Siedentopf case.

SIMPSON IS ACQUITTED.

Lawyers Chapman and Garrity Win a Hard Fought Battle.

The Jury Decided That Bynon Was Killed in Self Defense.

The trial of Robert F Simpson ended at Martinez last night with acquittal. The jury returned a verdict about 10 o'clock after deliberating three quarters of an hour over the testimony.

The case was one of the hardest fought battles on record in the history of Contra Costa county. William Bynon the proprietor of the Red House who was shot by Simpson was a Welchman. His countrymen who are numerous in the county flocked to the assistance of the prosecution and gave Attorneys M C Chapman and Thomas F Garrity a tussle that will long be remembered across the line. The testimony however was in the line of the theory that Simpson fired the fatal shot in self defense. Attorney M C Chapman made a brilliant closing speech for Simpson.

The tragedy occurred on the 25th of last March at the Red House. Bynon and Simpson had a dispute over the occupancy of the place which was a roadside resort. The men came to blows and Bynon belabored Simpson with a club until the latter drew a pistol and shot his assailant. Simpson was arrested and was taken to Martinez where he was through the efforts of his attorney, admitted to bail.

His acquittal will be a source of great joy to many in Oakland who were acquainted with him during the many years of his residence in Oakland.

FIRED INTO A CROWD.

An Angry Negro Attacks the Passengers of a Steamer.

Five Men Badly Injured as They Came Down the Gangplank

By Associated Press to The Tribune

ST LOUIS Aug 13—On the levee this morning an enraged negro fired a fusilade into a crowd of passengers and the crew of the steamer City of St Louis as they came down the gang plank.

The wounded are Lou Davis colored captain of the night watch shot in the kidneys will probably die.

Frank Bennett white roustabout, artery in arm severed serious.

John Bell steward of the steamer City of Cairo lives at Vicksburg shot in the leg not serious.

Adam Thomas colored roustabout, shot in the left leg not serious.

The shooting was the outcome of a fight between the negro whose name is unknown and Lou Davis the captain of the watch while the steamer was lying at Cairo Sunday in which the negro was driven from the boat.

He boarded a train and arrived here last night.

Early this morning he concealed himself behind a pile of freight on the levee and when the steamer arrived and the passengers and crew were moving down the staging to the shore he opened fire.

The would-be murderer has not been captured.

IDENTIFIED.

The Two Bodies at the Morgue Recognized at Last.

The bodies of two men at the morgue have at last been identified. The man supposed to have been Jacob Stultz has been recognized by Martin Peters, an East Oakland saloon keeper, as Rupert Enderlein. He was a native of Germany, 46 years of age, and by occupation a cement sidewalk layer. He resided with an uncle named Bellermann near Dwight Way, Berkeley.

The body of the man who committed suicide by taking morphine in the Smith House has been recognized as Thomas Brown, a hanger on of San Francisco saloons, where he was employed cleaning up. Two years ago he attempted suicide by taking morphine.

A NEW GRAND JURY.

Thirty Names Drawn From the Box in Judge Frick's Court.

RETURNS TO BE MADE MONDAY

The First Work Will Be to Investigate the County Shortage.

EVERY CLUE BEING FOLLOWED.

The Checking of the Tax Stubs Will Soon Be in Progress.

Another step was taken today looking toward an investigation of the frauds and shortage that exist in the books of the County Tax Collector of last year. In accordance with an order from the four judges of the Superior Court a grand jury was drawn this morning from which nineteen names will be selected to form the term grand jury.

Soon after 10 o'clock this morning Judge Frick ordered Clerk Mock to draw the names. The grand jury box was unsealed and the names were called one by one as the slips containing them were lifted from the box.

The thirty gentlemen from whom will be chosen the grand jury of nineteen are as follows:

C W Damon	V D Moody
D J Osgood	John Young
Solomon Kahn,	August Fromm,
Peter Cook	James P Taylor
James M Russell,	Wm P Wheeler,
W A Holcomb	E H Pardee
Benjamin Smith,	Wm Hoffschneider
Don F Miller,	J I Barker,
T P Carey,	R W Edwards,
B D Gray,	R Dowling Sr.
Wm H Wright,	H T Smith
Hugh Craig	E J Holland
James H Rourke,	Albert Weymouth
Justice Held	E G Buswell
Joseph Knowland	James H Co[illegible]

Judge Frick ordered the venire returnable next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The work which seems most important for the term grand jury to consider is the trouble in the tax collector's office.

District Attorney Snook has been working night and day on the case and he has a large amount of criminally queer documentary evidence to submit to the grand jury. The investigation may lead to other developments in the situation. Rumor has it that a number of politicians are trying to get to cover before the body is called to order.

THE CHANCES OF PROSECUTION.

In connection with the deficit of $483 with which the name of County Auditor Whidden has been unpleasantly mixed it is now argued that a criminal action cannot lie against Whidden in the event he should fall within the meshes of the grand jury. The argument is made by a prominent county official that the question of criminal proceedings is set at naught because of the fact that there is a dispute or rather a difference of statement between Whidden and Leo Park. Whidden admits that the $483 in question was paid over to Park. The latter denies it. An action to recover the money would probably lie against Whidden.

This point is not a clear one argued a county officer today, while discussing the case. If you go upon the hypothesis that Whidden accepted the money as an agent of Rosborough then the latter is susceptible for a suit. If Whidden did not act in that capacity it looks very much to me as if the taxpayers would suffer. In either event one or other of the losers it would seem would have recourse to the courts against Whidden.

Both District Attorney Snook and Tax Collector Barber stated today that there were no new developments in the affair. County Expert Davis has not yet commenced to examine the tax receipt stubs which are in the possession of Alex Rosborough. The ex tax collector and Davis had a consultation yesterday however and arrangements will be made very soon to proceed with the investigation of the stubs which it is believed will result in more discoveries. Tax Collector Barber hopes to find some traces of the missing $600 which he held himself accountable for pending the result of the numerous efforts he will make to locate the deficit.

There is a feeling of suppressed excitement among the court house officials as the day draws near for the grand jury to convene and commence its investigations. There are vague rumors afloat that something will drop before the scandal has been fully probed.

THE PIEDMONT ROAD.

Another of the Old Cases Is Brought Up in Court

Another of the Consolidated Piedmont Cable Company's cases bobbed up in Judge Frick's court early this morning and the taking of testimony hindered proceeding in the drug store robbery trial for an hour or so.

The case in point was a suit of the California Title Insurance Company which made an objection to Receiver Ira Bishop's second account after he was appointed when they foreclosed on a judgment held against the cable company.

There will be more testimony taken a week from next Monday.

The Wilmerding School.

Committees from the Council and the Board of Education met last night to take measures to secure the Wilmerding Trades School for Oakland. Prof Edwards of the Board of Education was appointed a committee of one to interview the regents of the State University and to offer them the old High school building at Twelfth and Market street for the yearly rental of one dollar. If the regents accepted this the trades school will be started without delay.

"REBELLIOUS SUSAN."

The First of the Lyceum Plays Is to Be Given Tonight.

Fine Attractions Demand Attention at the Leading Theaters.

The comedy, "The Case of Rebellious Susan," which Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Company offers here this evening, is filled with bright speeches as well as laughable situations. To one who is used to the usual work which comes from the pen of its author, Henry Arthur Jones, the following quotations will be in the nature of a surprise, for his style has heretofore been sombre and his situations thrilling. Yet it is one of many such light, graceful and thoroughly comedy speeches. It is regarding the pretensions of the "new woman."

"There is an immense future for a man at his own fireside. There is an immense future for women as wives and mothers and a very limited future for them in any other capacity. While you ladies without passions are raving and trumpeting all over the country, that wise, grim old grandmother of us all, Dame Nature, is simply laughing up her sleeve and snapping her fingers at you, and your new epochs and new movements. Go home! Be sure that old Dame Nature will choose her own darlings to carry on her own schemes. Go home, go home. Nature's darling woman is a stay-at-home woman; a woman who wants to be a good wife and a good mother and cares very little for anything else. Go home, go home, and don't worry the world any longer about this tiresome sexual business, for take my word, it was settled once for all in the Garden of Eden."

At the Wednesday matinee, "The Wife," the success of the Lyceum Company last season, will be given. Wednesday evening the latest English comedy, "An Ideal Husband," by the author of "Lady Windermere's Fan," will be presented for the only time here. The farewell performance, Thursday evening, will be the "Amazons," the play that has been talked about all over this continent. The sale for all four performances has been unusually large and from present indications the engagement will be very successful.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

The result of deception is no better illustrated than in the greatest of all comedies, "Jane," which comes to the Macdonough for one night only Monday, August 19th. Seats ready next Thursday.

"Too Much Johnson," which has been crowding the Baldwin, will be seen at the Macdonough August 26th, 27th, and 28th.

THE OAKLAND.

"The Royal Marionettes" form a very novel and taking performance. The Oakland theater was crowded to the doors last evening with an enthusiastic audience. The manikins were admirably handled and the life-like representations of scenes in minstrelsy were applauded to the echo. There will be a performance every night this week with a special matinee on Saturday. Popular prices of admission—10 and 20 cents—rule.

THE COLUMBIA.

The striking event in San Francisco theatricals this week is the Shakespearian revival at the Columbia. The comedy, "Twelfth Night," as presented last evening, was simply a perfect production in all its details. The San Francisco theater goers have a treat in store for them when they visit the dainty Powell street theater this week. In the role are many clever people, among them being Rose Coghlan, L. R. Stockwell, Maurice Barrymore, Wm. Beach, H. E. Dixey and Maude Winter, with others less notable but none the less careful in their performance. The scenery and choruses were perfectly done and all accessories combined to form a pleasing background for one of the prettiest attractions now before the San Francisco public.

THE BALDWIN.

"Too Much Johnson" continues to please the Baldwin audiences with its interminable tangles and twisted situations. William Gillette's fun is very spontanous and it is absorbed by his audiences at once.

THE ORPHEUM.

There is an excellent vaudeville entertainment in progress this week at the Orpheum. This bill is changed and six new stars appear. The Jordan family are still attracting big audiences by their wonderful trapeze act.

THE TIVOLI.

Genee's comic opera, "The Royal Middy," has the boards at the Tivoli this week. It is a pretty thing and the cast finds Alice Carle, the new contralto, well up in the bright airs. Ferris Hartman has a couple of new songs.

MOROSCO'S.

"Harbor Lights," with its dashing hero and exciting situations, drew a big house last night at Morosco's. It is a satisfactory production and is well staged.

A SWIMMING CARNIVAL.

There is to be a big society acquatic carnival at the Piedmont baths on Friday evening under the auspices of the Pacific Swimming Club, assisted by members of the Olympic Club. The programme will be varied. A grand concert by the Fifth Infantry band will be a feature. All sorts of aquatic sports will be introduced.

LITERARY NOTES.

A. H. Shirk of San Leandro is a youthful editor who is showing signs of much ability. He is publishing a monthly journal of current literature entitled The Suburban Magazine, and is giving to his readers a clean, well prepared and ably edited little sheet.

The rise and growth in the United States of clubs devoted to hunting with hounds is described by E. S. Martin in Scribner's for September. The series of illustrations show a picturesque feature of American social life that never before has been adequately illustrated.

The American Historical Register (the monthly gazette of all the Patriotic-Hereditary Societies) for August is at hand. It is a beautiful number, of 200 pages as usual. It shows a decided advance in merit since it started upon its career, just a year ago. Now it leads nearly all the other monthlies in the quantity of its reading matter. The frontispiece to the midsummer number is the beautiful insignia of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, done in proper colors and embossed. The initial article is the continuation of "Lafayette's Visit to the United States in 1824-25," told in a sprightly way, with half-tone illustrations of some private houses at which he was entertained and portraits of his hosts on his way to visit Boston.

The September number of Toilettes, issued August 1st is the handsomest magazine we have yet seen. Formerly books on fashions at this season of the year contained but little that was either instructive or attractive. Toilettes certainly does not travel on the same road with others of its class, for each issue appears to excel all preceding ones for the beauty of its illustrations, the simplicity and elegant tast displayed in the selection of its numerous costumes. And the clear and concise articles on the styles that are and that are to be written by its many correspondents abroad, place a stamp of authenticity and refinement upon this magazine that every lady of taste appreciates.

George Gissing's strong novel, "In the Year of Jubilee," is said to promise as great success here as it has had in England.

Messrs. D. C. Heath & Co. will shortly add to their list of literary publications an edition of Shakespeare's plays for high school and college classes. Each volume contains an introduction, a glossary, an essay on metre, and an index. Appendices are added upon points of especial interest in cases where the matter could not be conveniently treated in the introduction or the notes.

The new Manual of Arms prepared by the war department, adapted to the Krag-Jorgensen magazine rifle (calibre .30) just adopted for use in the United States Army, is published by D. Appleton & Co., and will be sent to any address on receipt of price, 10 cents. It has been published for the government of the army pending a complete revision of the infantry drill regulations.

Robert Grant discusses "The Case of Man" in the September Scribner's. The question which he asks Barbara is "What is the matter with us?" to which she replies: "Oh, everything. You are a failure fundamentally. To begin with, your theory of life is founded on compromise. We women—the modern women—abhor compromise."

D. C. Heath & Co. of Boston are giving students some excellent works in their series of English classics. The latest is "Coleridge's Principles of Criticism—Chapters 1, 2, 4, 14-22 of Biographia Literaria," with introduction and notes by Andrew J. George, M. A. It is admirably prepared and is in just the shape for a student to handle. It is a welcome addition to the literature of the classroom. (Cloth 90 cents.)

"Mrs. Musgrave and Her Husband" is one of the latest productions from Appleton's library. An exchange says regarding it: "This impressive and powerful story will not be laid aside until the end is reached. The developments are seen to have the inevitableness of fate leading gradually to a climax of singular intensity."

Hezekiah Butterworth has written a charming story entitled, "In Old New England." It is a romance of a colonial fireside and in introducing it the author says: "The stories that were told on old red settles by chimney fires in old New England days had a peculiar spirit and coloring. Quaint as many of them were, they carried deep spiritual meanings. Reward or retribution was somehow associated with the queer tale of the country grocery store, the ordinary, the husking party, or of the neighborhood or town. I used to hear many of these tales when a boy in the old home farm in the Pokanoket country on the Mount Hope and Narragansett Bays. They have always haunted me at such times as my mind wandered back to the past, and I have liked to reproduce them in my own way for the magazines and papers. Of the stories in this volume, "A Hallowe-en Reformation (Captain Tuttle and the Miracle Clock)" and "A Regular Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving (The Haunted Oven)" appeared in the Century Magazine, and are used here by permission of the Century Company. "The Inn of the Good Woman" appeared in Harper's Magazine and is used by permission. "Wych Hazel," "The Poet's Corner," and "No Room in the Inn" were originally published in the publications of Messrs. Harper and Brothers, and are reproduced here by the courtesy of the publishers. Of the other stories, some have not been printed before and others have appeared in the Youth's Companion, the Household, and popular papers which have kindly allowed me to republish them." (Appleton's Popular Series.)

FROM actual analysis made by me, I pronounce the Royal Baking Powder to be the Strongest and Purest Baking Powder before the public.

What Put It Out.

"Accidents?" said the old sea captain. "No, we never have any to speak of on this line. Why, one trip, about a year ago, the ship caught fire down in the hold, and we never discovered it till we got into port and began to unload."

"That's strange. What put the fire out?"

"Why, it burned down through to the sea, and the water put it out. Couldn't burn the water, you know."

And the captain walked away smiling, while the interlocutor was so astonished that he never thought to ask why the ship did not sink.—Buffalo Express.

Assistance for Exempts.

Councilman Bassett, who holds the chairmanship of the Exempt Firemen's organization, has requested the city auditor to figure in his estimates $2,000 as a beneficiary fund for that organization. This money will be used wholly to assist exempt firemen who are sick or in need and are financially unable to take care of themselves.

Woman Triumphs.

The Alameda County Law Association at its meeting last evening decided to admit Miss Frankie Laine to membership. There was a good deal of debating on the subject, the married members opposing the admittance of the young lady, while the single men were almost unanimously in her favor.

Thirty prominent citizens of Oakland went to Alvarado last Sunday for the purpose of investigating the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company.

It will not be charged that these gentlemen can be swayed or influenced against their honest judgment or that they would utter opinions contrary to facts elicited upon truthful observation.

They are all citizens of integrity, probity and high repute in the community.

Consequently what they say must have weight with their neighbors, associates and the people generally.

They returned from Alvarado indignant, and in interviews with representatives of the press they have expressed their indignation without fear or favor as it is reported in these columns.

TWO PLANTS.

"It is a dastardly outrage," was one strong expression uttered by George W. Baker, a prominent attorney and well known resident of Oakland. "It is a dastardly outrage that the opposition to the Oakland Water Company should proceed to this despicable extremity."

He was describing the methods which are being adopted by the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado in the effort to cripple their business competitor.

"I went to Alvarado yesterday," Mr. Baker explained, "not only free of all bias favorable to the Oakland Company and devoid of prejudice against the Contra Costa Company, but utterly disbelieving the newspaper reports concerning the actions of the latter company and the allegations that their agents were endeavoring to deplete their rival's water supply by pumping from wells tapping the same source and running the water thus obtained wastefully and wantonly into the marshes. I say that I did not believe this, for I considered such methods too contemptible for honest men and beneath the dignity of business men under any stress of business rivalry.

"Primarily I desired to ascertain whether the volume and pressure of the Oakland Company's supply was adequate to the needs of Oakland. In pursuance of this design, accompanied by a number of the representative citizens of Oakland I first inspected the plant of the company. We found the machinery used for pumping the water into the mains to be the best for the purpose that could be devised. We found the pressure fully adequate and the volume of water flowing into the tank from which it is pumped apparently inexhaustible. We satisfied ourselves that as far as the supply was concerned Oakland need never fear a drought from this source, and the quality of the water was discernible by a glance into the clear, fresh water of the tank.

"Thus far everything was satisfactory. There was not the slightest opportunity for cavil, suggestion or criticism. But pursuing our investigations beyond the boundaries of the Oakland plant we found much to criticise—much to denounce and much to rouse every instinct that can animate a manly indignation and enforce a demand for fair play.

MILLIONS WASTED.

Within a hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works is a well, beside which stands an engine which somebody said was used ordinarily to operate a threshing machine. This engine, we were informed, had been working during the morning before we arrived. It was not in operation when we inspected it. But further to the westward, in a building used as a glue factory, were other engines pumping water steadily from four wells.

"This water ran swiftly down a sharp incline into a flume and thence through a ditch across a narrow stretch of soil, finally emptying upon the marsh, where it spread and was absorbed by the mud and ooze and slime of the tide wash from the bay.

"I have had some experience in the measurement of flowing streams and I made a rough estimate of the volume of water which we found flowing to waste from these wells. The flume was two feet wide, and the water where it flowed most rapidly on the incline six inches deep. In the more sluggish channel it was sixteen inches deep. My calculation is that these people are pumping from this source not less than 2,500,000 gallons every twenty-four, and probably 3,000,000 gallons would be marked on an accurate gauge.

ILLEGITIMATE METHODS.

"When the condition of affairs was revealed to our astonished senses our indignation found expression in the most vigorous denunciation of the perpetrators of the outrage. It was no longer a question with us of the business rivalry of the two water companies—it was a moral principle that presented itself and we could not find terms strong enough to denounce this evidence of the men who claim the respect of their honest fellow-citizens.

"If this was a sample of the methods which the Contra Costa Water Company is resorting to in the effort to crush a business competitor, it was time, we thought, for the entire community to unite against the corporation that not only countenanced the outrage but supplied the funds and provided the means for perpetrating it. My own proposition was an immediate rebuke in the shape of an ordinance by the City Council depriving the Contra Costa Company of their public hydrant privileges, and I understand that such an ordinance will be presented by Councilman Bassett. Others favored the calling of a mass meeting of citizens to give public expression to their indignation, and I believe this is under way also.

"I have not examined the legal phase of the question and consequently I cannot say with certainty whether this outrageous waste of material, so useful, so necessary to the people can be stopped by law, but of the moral principle involved no honest man can have the slightest doubt. It may be that the Contra Costa Water Company has the legal right to pump millions of gallons of pure water in the bay to satisfy their spleen against an aggressive and popular competitor, but morally they have earned the contempt and should properly receive the rebuke of every right minded man in the community."

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Dr. E. H. Woolsey was eloquent in his commendation of the Oakland Water company's plant, its pumping apparatus, its distributing system and the quality of the water.

"It is a water absolutely pure," he said. "It contains not a single element deleterious to health, and as a physician I can recommend it to the people of Oakland. It is the best water that is being supplied in this city."

Dr. Woolsey stated that he personally inspected the Oakland Company's plant on Sunday and found the volume of water more than adequate for all purposes of a supply for Oakland, while the pressure at the pumps was amply sufficient to force the water to the highest elevations of the company's distributing system.

With the others he inspected the opposition plant operated under the direction of the management of the Contra Costa Water Company.

"The pumps were at work in the glue factory," he said, "and about 2,500,000 gallons of pure, healthful water, fit for a city's supply was flowing direct from four wells and over the marsh. I believe that the Contra Costa people have claimed that they are irrigating an acre of beets, and this is as false as it is absurd. They are not irrigating beets. They are irrigating tules. They are pouring millions of gallons of fresh, pure water over a marsh that has been saturated with the salt of the sea for centuries. The real object is plain enough. They are trying to lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company their competitors in the business of furnishing water to the people of Oakland. If they should succeed—in any disaster should result from this nefarious and cowardly effort, the Contra Costa people will be directly responsible, and the sooner the people of Oakland realize this fact the better it will be for the entire community. It is my honest opinion that people who resort to such miserable work as we saw at Alvarado yesterday would smash a pipe, scuttle a ship or cut a throat."

A SKEPTICAL CONVINCED.

"I was a little skeptical regarding the waste of water at Alvarado, but I am skeptical no longer," said James W. Nelson yesterday. "I had read in the newspapers about several things that I thought were highly colored and when I was invited to inspect the Oakland Water Company's plant I considered it a duty to myself to go down there. I have seen many water plants in different cities and understand a little about them. The plant erected by Mr. Dingee is one of the most powerful and complete I ever saw and is certainly able to supply a city much larger than Oakland. Everything is of the most approved pattern and the power of the pumps is enormous. After inspecting the plant we went to see a pumping plant about 200 feet away, just outside Mr. Dingee's fence. We could not get inside the building, but we could hear powerful machinery at work and from out one side there was an open wooden flume through which water was rushing at a great rate. The flume was about 200 feet long and at the end of it the water ran into the marsh. I measured the flume and found that the flow of water was twenty-four inches broad and sixteen inches deep. As near as I can calculate that one flume represents a flow of from two and one-half to three millions of gallons of water per diem. Every drop of it was flowing across the salt marshes into the bay. Such a wicked and open piece of vandalism I never before conceived, much less witnessed. I know of no adjective strong enough to express my detestation of any man or corporation that would be guilty of such a barefaced, vicious waste of water. I changed my opinion of what I had read in the newspapers right there. Instead of overdoing their description of the state of affairs down there, they did not begin to fully tell of what is actually going on.

A VILE OUTRAGE.

"It is no use calling a thing by a wrong name, and that waste of water is a vile outrage; if such dastardly work is legitimate competition, then I have much to learn. We were told that the opposition pump is being run by the Contra Costa Company. That is more surprising still. When I think of the prominent men connected with that organization, of their social standing, of their business standing and of their place as members of this community I am horror-struck, and begin to ask where I am. Of course if that vast quantity of water were being put to any use there would be some excuse for pumping it, but it just flows on, or rather rushes on, millions of gallons a day, and after flooding the marsh, reaches the bay. From all I can learn this waste has not in any way diminished Mr. Dingee's supply or his wells, but several poor farmers whose land is a little higher are suffering and they will probably have to seek legal protection. At the hotel where we stayed a few minutes we heard of several complaints. Many of the farmers are being deprived of their supply and in some instances their wells have been lowered several feet. But these poor men are not in a position to make a fight against such a company as the Contra Costa Company and the suffer in silence.

"About 100 feet in another direction was another pumping plant. The man in charge told us it had stopped at noon, but what on earth that pump was wanted for is more than I can tell. It was simply another enormous waste of water and could not be justified in any way. It is very plain that it is an open attempt to injure Mr. Dingee's supply and if there were more than one company interested in suppressing competition I should not believe it possible that the Contra Costa people would do it. Anybody combining at such work is undeserving of the smallest share of public sympathy or patronage.

"The water is just perfect. It is clear as crystal and no one who once drinks it would dream of using any other. I know I would not. All Mr. Dingee wants to do, to convince people of his inexhaustible supply and of its matchless purity is to take a few excursions down there and let the people see and think for themselves and they will become as bitterly opposed to such criminal waste as I am. No man with a particle of honesty or his character can express his indignation at such tactics. If I did not have Dingee's water in my house before I should certainly want it now."

UNSCRUPULOUS METHODS.

F. R. Girard was exceedingly indignant concerning the condition of affairs at Alvarado.

"I am not interested one way or the other," he said, "but fair play's a jewel, and the methods that we saw practiced by the agents of the Contra Costa Company yesterday deserve not only censure, but summary punishment. There should be some way of reaching the perpetrators of the diabolism that is being perpetrated at Alvarado. The wanton wasting of three million gallons of water a day is a crime—an outrageous crime. If there is no other way to punish these people the citizens of Oakland should unanimously refuse to patronize a company that will stoop to such contemptible business. But come to think of it, perhaps they do not have to stoop.

"Everybody is interested in this matter. It is time that measures were taken to stop these disgraceful, cowardly attacks on an enterprise that has already done more for Oakland than the Contra Costa Company could accomplish if they furnished water free from now to doomsday. I am aware that I am using strong language; but I am indignant at what I saw at Alvarado yesterday. I am surprised and grieved that such things can be permitted in a civilized Christian community. I can not believe that the stockholder of the Contra Costa Water Company are all so depraved that they approve of what their unscrupulous and cowardly agents are doing at Alvarado.

"I do not believe that these methods are legal, even if they are pumping this water out of their own land. The law would not permit a man to build a fence around another man's store to prevent him from conducting his business, and I do not see why the Contra Costa Water Company should be permitted to set pumps at work to drain the supply of a competing water company.

"It is my opinion that men who would do this would not hesitate to put poison in the water if they thought that they would gain their ends. I know that if anything happens to the Oakland Water Company we will all be made to suffer for what we say against the Contra Costa Water Company, and I do not care for that—I am an honest man and I utter my convictions honestly. Furthermore, I am always free to denounce dishonest methods in business or otherwise and I regard this attempt to destroy a legitimate competition as not only despicable, but actually criminal. I hope the people will assemble in mass meeting to denounce it and and if they do I shall not be at all backward in expressing my views."

"MALCIOUS AND WANTON."

D. S. Hirshberg characterized the Alvarado methods as "malicious and wanton." He examined the conditions minutely and arrived at the conclusion that the sole purpose of those who are wasting the water was an effort to cripple and if possible destroy a business rival.

"It is not right," he continued "The outrage that is in progress at Alvarado must be universally condemned. We found 3,000,000 gallons of the best water in California wasting on a salt marsh in the effort of unscrupulous men to deplete the source of supply of a rival company. We had read in the newspapers that this was being done, but we did not believe it. Such a thing was beyond our conception and we were astounded when we found those pumps at work and the ceaseless stream of water flowing into the tules.

"The assertion that the water is being used to irrigate an acre of beets is untrue. In the first place it does not require 3,000,000 gallons of water a day to irrigate an acre of beets. Moreover it is not the season for irrigating beets. Besides, we saw no acre of beets to be irrigated. That water is being pumped from the wells in the hope that it will lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company and it is poured at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons a day into the marsh with no other purpose in the world than to waste it so that the people who are patronizing the Oakland Company may be compelled to submit to the old monopoly regime again. That is all there is about it and there can be no successful denial of the fact for it was palpable to all of us yesterday."

EMPHATIC CONDEMNATION.

Henry Evers was emphatic in his condemnation of the methods of the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado.

"We were all pronounced in our opinion that these methods are illegitimate," he added, "and some of those who saw that water flowing into the tules were loud in their denunciation of the company that resorted to such means to hamper and annoy a business competitor. None of those who investigated the conditions was of the opinion that any good could result to the company operating those engines and pumping those wells. It was the general opinion that the effort would do the company no good and that it would surely react to the hurt of those who are adopting this method of fighting their rival in business.

Edward Newland said that he was surprised that anybody, however close pressed by a business competitor could resort to such methods. He was sure that they would be condemned by everybody who became cognizant of the fact that 2,000,000 gallons of water were being wasted on the marshes merely to annoy and if possible destroy a legitimate enterprise that had benefitted the community as largely as the Oakland Water Company had done.

PALPABLE MOTIVES.

William D. English made merry of the idea that the water being pumped at Alvarado by the Contra Costa Company was for any purpose whatever than the annoyance of the Oakland Water Company.

"The object is plain—the motive is as palpable," he said, "as the engines they are operating, or the millions of gallons of water there are pouring into the marshes. It is an outrageous procedure and will be roundly condemned by every right thinking, honest minded citizen, without prejudice for or against any corporation or company."

"We were all pleased and satisfied with the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company," said C. O. Brigham. "It is, in my opinion, in every way adequate and it is certainly capable of performing all that its owners claim for it. Yes, I observed the opposition plant and noted the fact that a vast quantity of water is being pumped for no useful purpose, and I must say that I do not approve of it."

Frank Brigham, his son, expressed himself similarly. "There is no doubt," he said, that the Oakland Company has an inexhaustible supply of pure, healthful water, and at the time we inspected the plant the pressure as shown by the indicators was certainly sufficient for all purposes. I must confess that I cannot approve of pumping good water merely to pour it on a barren salt marsh. And I am compelled to admit that the opposition is doing this at Alvarado."

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.

"I have looked into the clear depths of the lakes of Florida and Colorado," said Wesley A. Jacobs, "waters that are asserted to be the purest in the world, and I will say that the water in the tank of the Oakland Company at Alvarado is as clear and I have not the least doubt as pure as that of the lakes. The machinery for operating the system is beautiful—it is as fine as I have ever seen. While the pressure was on at more than 60 pounds, I stood on the edge of the tank and could see no appreciable diminution of the quantity. I believe that the volume of water at Alvarado is at the present time sufficient for two cities like Oakland and that the supply from those wells is inexhaustible.

"I also inspected the operations of that opposition plant. It is an infamous device. The are trying to pump away the Oakland Company's supply and they are distributing millions of gallons of pure water over a salt marsh. It was estimated that 3,000,000 gallons were flowing while we were there—at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours.

"I followed the stream from its source in the glue factory through the flume and ditch to the marsh, and I saw it flowing out on the marsh. There may be nothing legally criminal in this woeful waste of a human necessity, but in my opinion it would be no more criminal to tap the San Leandro reservoir and scatter its water broadcast without definite useful purpose, than it is to exhaust the supply of those wells at Alvarado. As a matter of fact, legally and morally, I considered the actions parallel and equally heinous. If the Contra Costa Company has been driven to this desperate strait it is time they ceased business in this community. Operating such devices as we saw at Alvarado yesterday they are not fit associates for reputable business men."

"It must be understood," Mr. Jacobs continued, "that the illegitimate plant at Alvarado pumps directly from the wells—the suction is immediate upon the source of supply, while the Oakland Water Company provides a tank to receive the natural flow of its wells and pumps from the tank, thereby avoiding every possibility of pumping the wells dry.

"You may be sure that when the gentlemen who inspected these plants began to comprehend the enormity of the device that has been opposed to the operation of the Oakland Company's enterprise there was a unanimous expression of indignation. We had not believed the reports we had heard and read concerning the matter and we were simply dumbfounded when we learned the truth. It may be inconceivable to the ordinary business man, who conducts his business honestly, that a corporation could resort to these methods, but our observation at Alvarado has proved that a corporation capable of doing such things, actually exists. There are some among us who are now prepared to believe all the charges that are made against the corporation."

USELESS IRRIGATION.

M. J. Keller was mildly satirical at the expense of the Contra Costa Company although he did not once mention the name of the corporation.

"I saw much water going to waste at Alvarado," he said, "and while I watched it flowing on into the marsh I thought of the time the commission merchants limped tons of good fruit in to the bay to lessen the supply and keep up prices. If there are any beets in that marsh I do not think they require much water at this season and I do not believe it is necessary to keep those pumps going night and day to operate that glue factory."

Councilman Bassett says the present state of affairs at Alvarado is one of the funniest he ever saw in his life. "The most remarkable thing I ever saw in my life," said he, "was a mighty stream of water rushing out of a building and emptying into the bay. It is the most wanton waste of water I ever conceived. When we asked the people around there who was responsible for it they said, 'Oh, that's the Contra Costa people trying to knock Dingee out.'

"I cannot conceive of a more powerful or beautiful plant than that of the Oakland Water Company. It is, so far as I can judge, fully capable of supplying two towns the size of Oakland if it is not tampered with. After looking over the works we went to the pumping plant just outside Mr. Dingee's grounds. That place is a conundrum. As soon as one approached the building the man in charge went to the door and partly closed it. When we asked to be permitted to look inside we were told in a surly manner that the orders were not to allow anybody inside. I was curious though and climbed up on top of a coal bunker and peeped through a window. There was about 400 tons of coal there—I tell you they were prepared for a seige—and inside was a powerful pump drawing through three large pipes and discharging through a fourth. The discharge was about three millions of gallons per day and all going to waste. The people of Alvarado laughed when we spoke to them about diminishing the supply. They said that the wells have been running so long that if the Contra Costa Company were to put up half a dozen pumps they would not hurt Dingee a particle. In another place was a little portable steam pump that had been pumping into the bay all morning and only stopped at noon. What they expect to accomplish by such means is not very plain. It amuses me."

INEXHAUSTIBLE SUPPLY.

P. E. Bowles said that he did not know who was responsible for the wasting of the water there but it was a most reprehensible practice. "There is a deserted building there," he said, "a few hundred feet from Mr. Dingee's plant and we were refused admittance. But it was very plain to us that there was some powerful machinery working inside. We could see the exhaust pipe that came through the roof and we could see the immense stream of water rushing through the flume that led from the building. On the three other sides of the building large pipes led into the building and through these water was being pumped to keep up the supply that was rushing through the flume to the marsh. It was absolutely wasted and the flow was tremendous. We were told that the pump was being worked by the Contra Costa Company, but whoever was responsible for it is guilty of a great waste of splendid water. In another part of the ground, just outside of Mr. Dingee's fence was a pumping machine that had worked until noon but had stopped when we got there. In my judgment Mr. Dingee's plant is simply marvelous and ought to experience no difficulty in supplying Oakland twice over. With such a lot of powerful machinery it would be simply miraculous if there were not a few little hitches at starting, but now the machinery seems to work in first-class style and to do all that is required or expected of it."

A FUTILE EFFORT.

Emil Nusbaumer has studied the lay of the artesian belt at Alvarado and thinks it childish for anyone to suppose they can exhaust, or in any way decrease Mr. Dingee's supply by such methods as he saw at that place last Sunday.

"I saw the immense stream flowing from the deserted glue factory," said Mr. Nusbaumer, "and noticed that it emptied into the bay. Now if that stream were ten times as large I don't believe Mr. Dingee's supply would be affected in the least. A little distance from the water plants a club of which I am a member have some leased grounds over which we shoot. On these grounds there is a large spring of pure fresh water that has been flowing since anybody can remember. It runs through a natural slough into the ocean and as ducks must get to fresh water at least once a day, we use the well to attract the ducks. The slough is fitted with an automatic gate. As the tide rises the gate shuts and there is a fresh water pond inside. When the tide falls the gate opens and the water escapes. That whole country down there is the same and if a dozen towns were to be supplied from there I do not believe the supply would ever give out. Dingee is safe enough and need have no fear about a sufficient quantity of water. Such tactics as are being pursued down there are puerile."

"I had no idea that such perfect machinery was operating at Alvarado or that the supply was so profuse. It is practically inexhaustible. All of us were highly pleased with what we saw but we were not so well pleased with the operations of a rival plant within a few hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works. These engines are pumping millions of gallons every day directly from the source of supply and pouring it over a marsh. It was the emphatic opinion of everybody who observed this wanton waste of a material so necessary to human existence that it was an unfair method of competition, and it was condemned by all of us in the strongest terms. It did not seem necessary to us, as fair-minded, unprejudiced men, that this pure, clear water should be wasted in this manner, and we were surprised that the gentlemen who control the Contra Costa Water Company should so far forget themselves in a business rivalry as to permit or countenance it. In my opinion this action on the part of that corporation will have a tremendous effect in swaying public opinion in opposition to the Contra Costa Company, for there can be not the slightest excuse in considering the methods which they are practicing at Alvarado."

VOL. XXXX. OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 13, 1895. NO. 38.

HE DENIES DOING IT,

Louis Muhlner Surrenders for the Shooting Jennie Lewis.

HE ADMITS BEING THERE.

But He Says That He Departed Fully an Hour Before the Crime Occurred.

DENIAL OF ANY QUARREL.

He Declares That the First He Knew of the Affair Was This Morning.

INCRIMINATING IDENTIFICATION

The Unfortunate Victim of the Tragedy Is Slowly Sinking to Death.

Louis Muhlner, the young man who the police suspect of having shot Miss Jennie Lewis at the residence of Prof. George Moorr of the Pacific Theological seminary, 150 Edwards street yesterday afternoon, is now behind the bars in the city jail where he will remain until his connection with the crime is established.

The victim of the murderous deed lies at the receiving hospital in an unconscious condition and is gradually wasting her strength as the hour of dissolution approaches.

She has been unconscious since the shooting and notwithstanding that the surgeons have trepanned the skull the location of the deadly missile has not been discovered.

The last examination the surgeons in charge, Drs Johnson, Hamlin and Dunn, was made this morning, but no additional discovery as to the whereabouts of the bullet was made. It entered the left side of the head about two inches above the ear and then ranged downward. It is supposed to be imbedded in the brain. No further examination of the unfortunate girl will be made until tomorrow.

The shooting was one of the most cool-blooded crimes ever committed in Oakland. It was done in broad daylight when there were people in all directions within hearing of the shots, and when it might be supposed some person would have been a eye-witness of the unfortunate occurrence. And yet so far as known, no person saw the actual shooting. A man resembling the suspect was seen to walk away from the residence of Prof. Moorr, and the suspect himself was seen earlier, going in the direction of the residence, and that is the strongest testimony that is yet known against the accused.

The shooting took place at an hour that is yet involved in doubt, and in view of recent developments the time of the shooting will appear as an important factor in the case.

The assault took place, it is believed, on the east side of Moorr's residence. The professor lives in a large, roomy house on the north side of Edwards street. Almost directly from the front entrance leading south to St Mary's college is a rough roadway over the vacant lots. In front of the residence is a small plot used as a pasture. On the east side is a piece of wooded ground, the shade from the trees of which falls against the wall of the structure.

On one side of the building there is a small flight of steps leading to the side entrance. It was at the base of these stairs that Miss Lewis was found bleeding and unconscious. The discovery was made by a nurse in the employ of Professor Moorr, and whose duty it is to attend to Mrs. Moorr. She had heard two pistol shots in rapid succession. She feared to go out for some time, but she finally mustered up enough courage and ran in fear to the scene. She did not remain there long, but ran after assistance and returned accompanied by Professor Lovejoy of the Pacific Theological Seminary. By this time P. J. Shafter, who resides on Edwards street immediately opposite Andover street, about one block west of Professor Moorr's residence appeared on the scene. He suggested that Miss Lewis be taken into the house, but the nurse objected on the ground that the young woman must lie there until the coroner had arrived.

This idea of course was occasioned by the certainty on the part of the nurse that Miss Lewis was dead.

The head of the young woman was propped up and Shafter dispatched a boy on a bicycle to the Home of the Blind on Telegraph avenue to notify the police of the shooting.

At that time the only persons at home in the Moorr residence were the nurse and Mrs Moorr, who is an invalid. The Professor was in San Francisco and his daughter was in Oakland.

Shafter rushed down to Telegraph avenue and looked anxiously in each northbound car to see either the doctor's daughter to apprise them of the sad event. But neither appeared.

SIGNS OF LIFE.

Meantime it was ascertained that Miss Lewis was not dead, and the assistance summoned endeavored to aid her as best it could until she was taken to the Receiving hospital. There the unfortunate girl was placed under the care of Drs. Johnson and Hamlin who, after making a careful examination of her injuries decided that she could not live.

Meantime a dispatch was sent to A. C. Lewis in San Rafael, the father of the wounded girl, and in response he came to this city on the first boat, reaching here at an early hour after the shooting.

The police, too, were notified, and Chief Lloyd sent out a number of telegrams to various towns describing Muhlner, the man suspected of the crime, and urging outlying officers to apprehend him.

Various places in this city where it was known Muhlner had been seen were watched by the police last night and some of the detectives went to San Francisco, where they prosecuted a search for the suspect.

FAST FLYERS.

English Yachts Do Some Crack Sailing at the Regattas.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

RYDE, Isle of Wight, Aug. 13.—Bad weather marked the opening of the regatta of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

The Aalisa, Britannia, Namara, Caress, and Isolde, started in the race for the Queen's cup over a course of forty miles.

The Britannia got over the line too soon and was recalled causing her to lose two minutes.

The weather subsequently improved and the first round was finished as follows: Aalisa, 12h, 05m, 18s; Britannia, 12h 10m, 18s; Isolde, 12h, 31m, 20s; Caress, 12h, 56m, 10s.

The Namara retired from the race.

The Aalisa crossed the finish line first but the Britannia won on the time allowance.

The following are the times:

Aalisa, 2h 53m, 27s, Britannia 2h, 53m, 55s.

THE SOUTHAMPTON RACES.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 13.—The Niagara, Lar and Isolde started this morning over the same course as yesterday from Calshot Castle in a race under the auspices of the Castle Yacht Club.

The course was twenty-five miles. The Niagara got the lead at the start.

The Niagara won. The Aurora and Lana finished second and third respectively.

TREATED WELL.

Dwyer and Croker Satisfied With the European Trip.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—M. F. Dwyer was among the passengers arriving on the North German Lloyd steamship Fulda this morning.

Dwyer said Croker would arrive here about the middle of September.

Dwyer said he and Croke had been treated with great consideration by every one in England and taking into account the condition of their horses, he thought they had done very well.

While the stable had not been quite as successful as they had hoped he would not hesitate to send entries to the English races again.

He said the English horse owners and turfmen generally are anxious to have American competitors on the English tracks.

DESERVED TO DIE.

A Spendthrift Englishman Who Killed Wife and Child.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

YORK, England, Aug. 13.—Robert Hudson, a young highly educated man who run through his own and his wife's fortunes, was hanged here today for the murder of his wife and child on Helmsly Moor, Yorkshire, in June last.

He cut their throats, shot them and buried them on the moor.

Before killing them, Hudson advertised for another wife under the name of Hunter.

BULGARIAN BANDS.

More Outrages Being Perpetrated in Armenia.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 13.—The Voli of Salonica telegraphs that a Bulgarian band numbering 1000 men attacked the village of Janakli in the district of Kirdjali and burned 200 houses.

The Armenians are also said to have killed twenty-five of the inhabitants of Janakli.

The Voli of Adrianople has sent a similar dispatch but he thinks the accounts are probably exaggerated.

RIOTING STRIKERS.

Italians and Policemen Come Together at Pittsburg.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 13.—A hundred and fifty Italians employed on the excavation conduit in Allegheny struck yesterday for an advance of 25 cents a day.

Other men were secured to take their places and today the strikers tried to drive the new men from their work.

Stones, clubs and revolvers were freely used and two Italians had their heads split open.

The mob was dispersed by the police.

The Commissioners' Case.

Robert A. Hughes, ex-Commissioner of Public Works, was in town yesterday and held a short consultation with his attorney, George E. De Golia. The latter says he will take the case of the commissioners to the Supreme Court and believes a decision will be rendered in favor of reinstating the old board.

Wilson's Damage Suit.

The trial of the suit of F. J. Wilson, who seeks to recover $30,000 from the Southern Pacific Company, was set today for October 1st. Wilson, who is represented by George and Darwin De Golia, was crushed by the steamer Newark in the ferry slip at the Oakland mole some months ago.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

George Cullen Run Down Near the Sixteenth Street Depot.

Criminals Cleverly Landed as They Passed Through West Oakland.

WEST OAKLAND, Aug. 13.—George Cullen, the 13-year-old son of Mrs Edward Cullen of 1665 Sixteenth street, near Campbell street, met with a sad death at 1.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The youngster boarded the outgoing Napa train at the Sixteenth street depot with the intention of jumping off when the train arrived a short distance past the freight house, where a number of his young companions were wading on the beach. When the train reached the place in question the boy jumped though the train was going at a rapid rate of speed. As he landed he slipped and rolled under the wheels. His head was almost severed from his body and death was instantaneous. As soon as possible the train was brought to a stop and the lifeless body of the unfortunate lad was removed from the track by Police Officer Keefe and the conductor of the train.

Coroner Baldwin was notified and the body was removed to the morgue where the inquest was held this morning. The jury after a short deliberation returned a verdict of accidental death.

The deceased was a brother of Edward Cullen and Misses Fanny, May and Gertrude Cullen, and their many friends sympathize with them in their bereavement. The boy was a very quiet young fellow and was liked by all with whom he came in contact. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the residence of his mother.

WANTED BY THE POLICE.

Constable Cronin and Deputy Constable Gilmartin last night arrested Jack Casey and Jim Roach near Emeryville on suspicion of being implicated in the burglary of a store near the corner of Seventh and Peralta street about a month ago. The men had a large quantity of jewelry in their possession which it is believed they stole from a store in San Francisco. The San Francisco authorities were notified and Detective Anthony identified the prisoners as the individuals wanted. While on their way to the jail the prisoners dropped some of the plunder which was recovered by Detective Fogarty of the Southern Pacific Company. Among the articles found on them were several silver pins, bracelets, shaving outfits, rings, knives, harmonicas and other small but costly articles. The men will be sent to San Francisco to stand trial.

MRS NORTON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs Sarah L. Norton, wife of H. H. Norton, the train dispatcher at the mole, took place from the family residence on Pine street yesterday. The services were largely attended by the friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

THE HALLS DEFEATED.

The Charles T. Hall baseball club crossed bats Sunday with the Olympic Club of San Francisco at Golden Gate park and were defeated by a score of 20 to 0. The Halls played a good game, but luck was against them. Three of their best players were absent. Manager Hall stated today that he is willing to lay considerable again. He will bet $100 on his men.

THE OWL CLUB.

The Owl Social and Political Club held an interesting meeting at Fourteenth and Kirkham streets last night. President William Glenan occupied the chair. Arrangements are being perfected for the holding of an entertainment and dance early next month. Nine new members were added to the roll.

SEEKS FREEDOM.

Aged Michael Collins Wants to Be Admitted to Bail.

An effort was made in Judge Frick's court today to have Michael Collins admitted to bail. Attorney George Knight appeared in behalf of his aged client with a motion to that effect and requested Judge Frick to consider the amount which should be fixed in case the appeal was granted to have the old man released pending his second trial.

An agreement was reached with the district attorney as to the date of Collins' second trial for the killing of Philip Boogar last January. It was set for September 4th.

The district attorney through Lin Church waived all formalities in the matter of the application of Knight for bail.

The general opinion is that Collins will be admitted to bail as it is almost certain that he will never be convicted. Sympathy turned in his direction when the facts leading up to the slaying of Boogar became known.

THOMSON'S DEMAND.

Hearing on His Fight for a Franchise Goes Over.

The hearing of argument on the application of A. D. Thomson for a writ of mandate to compel the Supervisors to accept his bid for an electric road to Livermore was not resumed this morning in Judge Ellsworth's court. The trial of W. H. Siedentopf intervened and the hearing was continued until tomorrow as District Attorney Snook is engaged in the Siedentopf case.

Auditor Snow is having the cracks in the floor of his office filled with putty and painted. This was necessary owing to the odors from the City Prison that floated through.

SIMPSON IS ACQUITTED.

Lawyers Chapman and Garrity Win a Hard Fought Battle.

The Jury Decided That Bynon Was Killed In Self Defense.

The trial of Robert F. Simpson ended at Martinez last night with acquittal. The jury returned a verdict about 10 o'clock after deliberating three-quarters of an hour over the testimony.

The case was one of the hardest fought battles on record in the history of Contra Costa county. William Bynon, the proprietor of the Red House, who was shot by Simpson, was a Welchman. His countrymen, who are numerous in the county, flocked to the assistance of the prosecution and gave Attorneys M. C. Chapman and Thomas J. Garrity a tussle that will long be remembered across the line. The testimony, however, was in the line of the theory that Simpson fired the fatal shot in self defense. Attorney M. C. Chapman made a brilliant closing speech for Simpson.

The tragedy occurred on the 25th of last March at the Red House. Bynon and Simpson had a dispute over the occupancy of the place which was a roadside resort. The men came to blows and Bynon belabored Simpson with a club until the latter drew a pistol and shot his assailant. Simpson was arrested and was taken to Martinez where he was through the efforts of his attorneys admitted to bail.

His acquittal will be a source of great joy to many in Oakland who were acquainted with him during the many years of his residence in Oakland.

FIRED INTO A CROWD.

An Angry Negro Attacks the Passengers of a Steamer.

Five Men Badly Injured as They Came Down the Gangplank.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—On the levee this morning an enraged negro fired a fusilade into a crowd of passengers and the crew of the steamer City of St. Louis, as they came down the gang plank.

The wounded are: Lou Davis, colored, captain of the night watch, shot in the kidneys, will probably die.

Frank Bennett, white, roustabout, artery in arm severed, serious.

John Bell, steward of the steamer City of Cairo, lives at Vicksburg, shot in the leg, not serious.

Adam Thomas, colored, roustabout, shot in the left leg, not serious.

The shooting was the outcome of a fight between the negro, whose name is unknown, and Lou Davis, the captain of the watch, while the steamer was lying at Cairo, Sunday, in which the negro was driven from the boat.

He boarded a train and arrived here last night.

Early this morning he concealed himself behind a pile of freight on the levee and when the steamer arrived and the passengers and crew were moving down the staging to the shore, he opened fire.

BEFORE THE JUDGE.

Police Happenings Disposed of at the City Hall Court.

John Halleck, found guilty of battery upon S. W. Peterson, the A. P. A. banner carrier, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 in the Police Court today.

Edith Jackson, a colored girl, pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Sentence was continued to August 16th.

James Franklin and James Mullin, were arrested for disturbing the peace. Their cases were continued until tomorrow to file complaint.

F. E. Stock pleaded not guilty to battery. His wife was the complaining witness and charged him with using force and violence upon her on August 13th. His trial was set for tomorrow.

E. H. Kennedy, charged by Ben Letter with petit larceny pleaded not guilty. His case was set for trial for August 16th.

Louis Auzer, John Schion, John Johnson alias B. F. Hensley, charged with violating the license ordinance, had the passing of sentence continued to August 30th.

IDENTIFIED.

The Two Bodies at the Morgue Recognized at Last.

The bodies of two men at the morgue have at last been identified. The man supposed to have been Jacob Stultz has been recognized by Martin Peters, an East Oakland saloon keeper, as Rupert Enderlein. He was a native of Germany, 46 years of age, and by occupation a cement sidewalk layer. He resided with an uncle named Bellermann near Dwight Way, Berkeley.

The body of the man who committed suicide by taking morphine in the Smith House has been recognized as Thomas Brown, a hanger on of San Francisco saloons, where he was employed cleaning up. Two years ago he attempted suicide by taking morphine.

A NEW GRAND JURY.

Thirty Names Drawn From the Box in Judge Frick's Court.

RETURNS TO BE MADE MONDAY

The First Work Will Be to Investigate the County Shortage.

EVERY CLUE BEING FOLLOWED.

The Checking of the Tax Stubs Will Soon Be In Progress.

Another step was taken today looking toward an investigation of the frauds and shortage that exist in the books of the County Tax Collector of last year. In accordance with an order from the four judges of the Superior Court a grand jury was drawn this morning, from which nineteen names will be selected to form the term grand jury.

Soon after 10 o'clock this morning Judge Frick ordered Clerk Mock to draw the names. The grand jury box was unsealed and the names were called one by one as the slips containing them were lifted from the box.

The thirty gentlemen from whom will be chosen the grand jury of nineteen are as follows:

C. W. Damon,	V. D Moody,
E. J. Osgood,	John Young,
Solomon Kahn,	August Fromm,
Peter Cook,	James P. Taylor,
James M. Russell,	Wm. P. Wheeler,
W. A Holcomb,	E. H. Pardee,
Benjamin Smith,	Wm. Hoffschneider,
Don F. Miller,	J. L. Barker,
T. P. Carey,	R. W. Edwards,
B. D. Gray,	R Dowling, Sr.
Wm. H. Wright,	H. T. Smith,
Hugh Craig,	E. J. Holland,
James H. Rourke,	Albert Weymouth,
Justice Held,	E. G. Buswell,
Joseph Knowland,	James H. Cory,

Judge Frick ordered the venire returnable next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The work which seems most important for the term grand jury to consider is the trouble in the tax collector's office.

District Attorney Snook has been working night and day on the case and he has a large amount of criminally queer documentary evidence to submit to the grand jury. The investigation may lead to other developments in the situation. Rumor has it that a number of politicians are trying to get to cover before the body is called to order.

THE CHANCES OF PROSECUTION.

In connection with the deficit of $183 with which the name of County Auditor Whidden has been unpleasantly mixed it is now argued that a criminal action cannot lie against Whidden in the event he should fall within the meshes of the grand jury. The argument is made by a prominent county official that the question of criminal proceedings is set at naught because of the fact that there is a dispute or rather a difference of statement between Whidden and Leo Park. Whidden admits that the $183 in question was paid over to Park. The latter denies it. An action to recover the money would probably lie against Whidden.

"This point is not a clear one," argued a county officer today, while discussing the case. "If you go upon the hypothesis that Whidden accepted the money as an agent of Rosborough then the latter is susceptible for a suit. If Whidden did not act in that capacity it looks very much to me as if the taxpayers would suffer. In either event, one or other of the losers it would seem would have recourse to the courts against Whidden."

Both District Attorney Snook and Tax Collector Barber stated today that there were no new developments in the affair. County Expert Davis has not yet commenced to examine the tax receipt stubs, which are in the possession of Alex. Rosborough. The ex-tax collector and Davis had a consultation yesterday, however, and arrangements will be made very soon to proceed with the investigation of the stubs, which it is believed will result in more discoveries. Tax Collector Barber hopes to find some traces of the missing $600 which he held himself accountable for pending the result of the numerous efforts he will make to locate the deficit.

There is a feeling of suppressed excitement among the court house officials as the day draws near for the grand jury to convene and commence its investigations. There are vague rumors afloat that something will drop before the scandal has been fully probed.

THE PIEDMONT ROAD.

Another of the Old Cases Is Brought Up in Court.

Another of the Consolidated Piedmont Cable Company's cases bobbed up in Judge Frick's court early this morning and the taking of testimony hindered proceeding in the drug store robbery trial for an hour or so.

The case in point was a suit of the California Title Insurance Company which made an objection to Receiver Ira Bishop's second account after he was appointed when they foreclosed on a judgment held against the cable company.

There will be more testimony taken a week from next Monday.

The Wilmerding School.

Committees from the Council and the Board of Education met last night to take measures to secure the Wilmerding Trades School for Oakland. Prof. Edwards of the Board of Education was appointed a committee of one to interview the regents of the State University and to offer them the old High school building at Twelfth and Market street for the yearly rental of one dollar. If the regents accepted this the trades school will be started without delay.

Death of a Lawyer.

John McComb Uses a Shotgun on Three Wandering Italians.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

MIDDLETON, N. Y., August 13.—Three foreigners having three trained bears loitered around John McComb's place a mile from Summitsville yesterday.

At dark McComb ordered them away. They refused to go, when, procuring a shotgun McComb fired upon them twice.

One died before reaching Summitsville and the other is dying.

McComb gave himself up.

He Does Clever Work at a Grand Army Social.

Miss Clara Reeves attended an entertainment at Grand Army Hall last evening and before dancing handed her gold watch to a lady friend for safe keeping. When they were about to leave for home they found that someone had abstracted the watch from the lady's pocket into whose care it was given, leaving only the rim behind. The police were notified of the loss today.

SCHOOL STUDIES.

Primary and Grammar Principals Have a Conference.

The principals of the city's grammar schools met in the Board of Education chambers yesterday afternoon to discuss the course of study to be pursued by the primary and grammar schools.

The study of arithmetic was fully discussed and propositions for revising the present method of teaching it were suggested.

The whole matter was referred to committees which will report at their next meeting, to be held at the Chabot observatory on Friday afternoon.

VOL. XXXX. OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 13, 1895. NO. 38.

HE DENIES DOING IT,

Louis Muhlner Surrenders for the Shooting Jennie Lewis.

HE ADMITS BEING THERE.

But He Says That He Departed Fully an Hour Before the Crime Occurred.

DENIAL OF ANY QUARREL.

He Declares That the First He Knew of the Affair Was This Morning.

INCRIMINATING IDENTIFICATION

The Unfortunate Victim of the Tragedy Is Slowly Sinking to Death.

Louis Muhlner, the young man who the police suspect of having shot Miss Jennie Lewis at the residence of Prof. George Mooar of the Pacific Theological seminary, 150 Edwards street, yesterday afternoon, is now behind the bars in the city jail, where he will remain until his connection with the crime is established.

The victim of the murderous deed lies at the receiving hospital in an unconscious condition and is gradually losing her strength as the hour of dissolution approaches.

She has been unconscious since the shooting and notwithstanding that the surgeons have trepanned the skull, the location of the deadly missile has not been discovered.

The last examination the surgeons in charge, Drs. Johnson, Hamlin and Dunn, was made this morning, but no additional discovery as to the whereabouts of the bullet was made. It entered the left side of the head about two inches above the ear and then ranged downward. It is supposed to be imbedded in the brain. No further examination of the unfortunate girl will be made until tomorrow.

The shooting was one of the most cold-blooded crimes ever committed in Oakland. It was done in broad daylight, when there were people in all directions within hearing of the shots, and when it might be supposed some person would have been a eye-witness of the unfortunate occurrence. And yet, so far as known, no person saw the actual shooting. A man resembling the suspect was seen to walk away from the residence of Prof. Mooar, and the suspect himself was seen earlier, going in the direction of the residence, and that is the strongest testimony that is yet known against the accused.

The shooting took place at an hour that is yet involved in doubt, and in view of recent developments the time of the shooting will appear as an important factor in the case.

The assault took place, it is believed, on the east side of Mooar's residence. The professor lives in a large, roomy house on the north side of Edwards street. Almost directly from the front entrance leading south to St. Mary's college is a rough roadway over the vacant lots. In front of the residence is a small plot used as a pasture. On the east side is a piece of wooded ground, the shade from the trees of which falls against the wall of the structure.

On one side of the building there is a small flight of steps leading to the side entrance. It was at the base of these stairs that Miss Lewis was found bleeding and unconscious. The discovery was made by a nurse in the employ of Professor Mooar, and whose duty itis to attend to Mrs. Mooar. She had heard two pistol shots in rapid succession. She feared to go out for some time, but she finally mustered up enough courage and ran in fear to the scene. She did not remain there long, but ran after assistance and returned accompanied by Professor Lovejoy of the Pacific Theological Seminary. By this time P. J. Shafter, who resides on Edwards street immediately opposite Andover street, about one block west of Professor Mooar's residence appeared on the scene. He suggested that Miss Lewis be taken into the house, but the nurse objected on the ground that the young woman must lie there until the coroner had arrived.

This idea of course was occasioned by the certainty on the part of the nurse that Miss Lewis was dead.

The head of the young woman was propped up and Shafter dispatched a boy on a bicycle to the Home of the Blind on Telegraph avenue to notify the police of the shooting.

At that time the only persons at home in the Mooar residence were the nurse and Mrs. Mooar, who is an invalid. The Professor was in San Francisco and his daughter was in Oakland.

Shafter rushed down to Telegraph avenue and looked anxiously in each northbound car to see either the doctor's daughter to apprise them of the sad event. But neither appeared.

SIGNS OF LIFE.

Meantime it was ascertained that Miss Lewis was not dead, and the assistance summoned endeavored to aid her as best it could until she was taken to the Receiving hospital. There the unfortunate girl was placed under the care of Drs. Johnson and Hamlin who, after making a careful examination of her injuries decided that she could not live.

Meantime a dispatch was sent to A. C. Lewis in San Rafael, the father of the wounded girl, and in response he came to this city on the first boat, reaching here at an early hour after the shooting.

The police, too, were notified, and Chief Lloyd sent out a number of telegrams to various towns describing Muhlner, the man suspected of the crime, and urging outlying officers to apprehend him.

Various places in this city where it was known Muhlner had been seen were watched by the police last night and some of the detectives went to San Francisco, where they prosecuted a search for the suspect.

FAST FLYERS.

English Yachts Do Some Crack Sailing at the Regattas.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

RYDE, Isle of Wight, Aug. 13.—Bad weather marked the opening of the regatta of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

The Aulisa, Britannia, Namara, Caress, and Isolde, started in the race for the Queen's cup over a course of forty miles.

The Britannia got over the line too soon and was recalled causing her to lose two minutes.

The weather subsequently improved and the first round was finished as follows:

Alisa, 12h, 08m, 15s; Britannia, 12h, 10m, 11s; Isolde, 12h, 31m, 29s; Caress, 12h, 35m, 39s.

The Namara retired from the race.

The Alisa crossed the finish line first but the Britannia won on the time allowance.

The following are the times:

Alisa, 2h 54m, 27s; Britannia, 2h, 53m, 55s.

THE SOUTHAMPTON RACES.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 13.—The Niagara, Lun, and Isolde started this morning over the same course as yesterday from Calshot Castle in a race under the auspices of the Castle Yacht Club.

The course was twenty-five miles. The Niagara got the lead at the start.

The Niagara won. The Audrey and Luna finished second and third respectively.

TREATED WELL.

Dwyer and Croker Satisfied With the European Trip.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—M. F. Dwyer was among the passengers arriving on the North German Lloyd steamship Fulda this morning.

Dwyer said Croker would arrive here about the middle of September.

Dwyer said he and Croker had been treated with great consideration by every one in England and taking into account the condition of their horses, he thought they had done very well.

While the stable had not been quite as successful as they had hoped he would not hesitate to send entries to the English races again.

He said the English horse owners and turfmen generally are anxious to have American competitors on the English tracks.

DESERVED TO DIE.

A Spendthrift Englishman Who Killed Wife and Child.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

YORK, England, Aug. 13.—Report Hudson, a young, highly educated man who run through his own and his wife's fortunes, was hanged here today for the murder of his wife and child on Helmsly Moor, Yorkshire, in June last.

He cut their throats, shot them and buried them on the moor.

Before killing them, Hudson advertised for another wife under the name of Hunter.

BULGARIAN BANDS.

More Outrages Being Perpetrated in Armenia.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 13.—The Voli of Salonica telegraphs that a Bulgarian band numbering 1000 men attacked the village of Janakli in the district of Kirdjali and burned 200 houses.

The Armenians are also said to have killed twenty-five of the inhabitants of Janakli.

The Coli of Adrianople has sent a similar dispatch but he thinks the accounts are probably exaggerated.

RIOTING STRIKERS.

Italians and Policemen Come Together at Pittsburg.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 13.—A hundred and fifty Italians employed on the excavation conduit in Allegheny struck yesterday for an advance of 25 cents a day.

Other men were secured to take their places and today the strikers tried to drive the new men from their work.

Stones, clubs and revolvers were freely used and two Italians had their heads split open.

The mob was dispersed by the police.

The Commissioners' Case.

Robert A. Hughes, ex-Commissioner of Public Works, was in town yesterday and held a short consultation with his attorney, George E. De Golia. The latter says he will take the case of the commissioners to the Supreme Court and believes a decision will be rendered in favor of reinstating the old board.

Wilson's Damage Suit.

The trial of the suit of F. J. Wilson, who seeks to recover $30,000 from the Southern Pacific Company, was set today for October 1st. Wilson, who is represented by George and Darwin De Golia, was crushed by the steamer Newark in the ferry slip at the Oakland mole some months ago.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

George Cullen Run Down Near the Sixteenth Street Depot.

Criminals Cleverly Landed as They Passed Through West Oakland.

WEST OAKLAND, Aug. 13.—George Cullen, the 13-year-old son of Mrs. Edware Cullen of 1665 Sixteenth street, near Campbell street, met with a sad death at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The youngster boarded the outgoing Napa train at the Sixteenth street depot with the intention of jumping off when the train arrived a short distance past the freight house, where a number of his young companions were wading on the beach. When the train reached the place in question the boy jumped, though the train was going at a rapid rate of speed. As he landed he slipped and rolled under the wheels. His head was almost severed from his body and death was instantaneous. As soon as possible the train was brought to a stop and the lifeless body of the unfortunate lad was removed from the track by Police Officer Keefe and the conductor of the train.

Coroner Baldwin was notified and the body was removed to the morgue, where the inquest was held this morning. The jury after a short deliberation returned a verdict of accidental death.

The deceased was a brother of Edward Cullen and Misses Fanny, May and Gertrude Cullen, and their many friends sympathize with them in their bereavement. The boy was a very quiet young fellow and was liked by all with whom he came in contact. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from the residence of his mother.

WANTED BY THE POLICE.

Constable Cronin and Deputy Constable Gilmartin last night arrested Jack Casey and Jim Roach near Emeryville on suspicion of being implicated in the burglary of a store near the corner of Seventh and Peralta street about a month ago. The men had a large quantity of jewelry in their possession which it is believed they stole from a store in San Francisco. The San Francisco authorities were notified and Detective Anthony identified the prisoners as the individuals wanted. While on their way to the jail the prisoners dropped some of the plunder which was recovered by Detective Fogarty of the Southern Pacific Company. Among the articles found on them were several silver pins, bracelets, shaving outfits, rings, knives, harmonicas and other small but costly articles. The men will be sent to San Francisco to stand trial.

MRS. NORTON'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah L. Norton, wife of H. H. Norton, the train dispatcher at the mole, took place from the family residence on Pine street yesterday. The services were largely attended by the friends and acquaintances of the deceased.

THE HALLS DEFEATED.

The Charles T. Hall baseball club crossed bats Sunday with the Olympic Club of San Francisco at Golden Gate park and were defeated by a score of 20 to 6. The Halls played a good game, but luck was against them. Three of their best players were absent. Manager Hall stated today that he is willing to try conclusions again. He will bet $100 on his men.

THE OWL CLUB.

The Owl Social and Political Club held an interesting meeting at Fourteenth and Larkham streets last night. President William Glenan occupied the chair. Arrangements are being perfected for the holding of an entertainment and dance early next month. Nine new members were added to the roll.

SEEKS FREEDOM.

Aged Michael Collins Wants to Be Admitted to Bail.

An effort was made in Judge Frick's court today to have Michael Collins admitted to bail. Attorney George Knight appeared in behalf of his aged client with a motion to that effect and requested Judge Frick to consider the amount which should be fixed in case the appeal was granted to have the old man released pending his second trial.

An agreement was reached with the district attorney as to the date of Collins' second trial for the killing of Philip Boogar last January. It was set for September 4th.

The district attorney through Lin Church waived all formalities in the matter of the application of Knight for bail.

The general opinion is that Collins will be admitted to bail as it is almost certain that he will never be convicted. Sympathy turned in his direction when the facts leading up to the slaying of Boogar became known.

THOMSON'S DEMAND.

Hearing on His Fight for a Franchise Goes Over.

The hearing of argument on the application of A. D. Thomson for a writ of mandate to compel the Supervisors to accept his bid for an electric road to Livermore was not resumed this morning in Judge Ellsworth's court. The trial of W. H. Siedentopf intervened and the hearing was continued until tomorrow as District Attorney Snook is engaged in the Siedentopf case.

SIMPSON IS ACQUITTED.

Lawyers Chapman and Garrity Win a Hard Fought Battle.

The Jury Decided That Bynon Was Killed in Self Defense.

The trial of Robert F. Simpson ended at Martinez last night with acquittal. The jury returned a verdict about 10 o'clock after deliberating three-quarters of an hour over the testimony.

The case was one of the hardest fought battles on record in the history of Contra Costa county. William Bynon, the proprietor of the Red House, who was shot by Simpson, was a Welchman. His countrymen, who are numerous in the county, flocked to the assistance of the prosecution and gave Attorneys M. C. Chapman and Thomas F. Garrity a tussle that will long be remembered across the line. The testimony, however, was in the line of the theory that Simpson fired the fatal shot in self defense. Attorney M. C. Chapman made a brilliant closing speech for Simpson.

The tragedy occurred on the 25th of last March at the Red House. Bynon and Simpson had a dispute over the occupancy of the place which was a roadside resort. The men came to blows and Bynon belabored Simpson with a club until the latter drew a pistol and shot his assailant. Simpson was arrested and was taken to Martinez where he was through the efforts of his attorneys admitted to bail.

His acquittal will be a source of great joy to many in Oakland who were acquainted with him during the many years of his residence in Oakland.

FIRED INTO A CROWD.

An Angry Negro Attacks the Passengers of a Steamer.

Five Men Badly Injured as They Came Down the Gangplank.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 13.—On the levee this morning an enraged negro fired a fusilade into a crowd of passengers and the crew of the steamer City of St. Louis, as they came down the gang plank.

The wounded are: Lou Davis, colored, captain of the night watch, shot in the kidneys, will probably die.

Frank Bennett, white, roustabout, artery in arm severed, serious.

John Bell, steward of the steamer City of Cairo, lives at Vicksburg, shot in the leg, not serious.

Adam Thomas, colored, roustabout, shot in the left leg, not serious.

The shooting was the outcome of a fight between the negro, whose name is unknown, and Lou Davis, the captain of the watch, while the steamer was lying at Cairo, Sunday, in which the negro was driven from the boat.

He boarded a train and arrived here last night.

Early this morning he concealed himself behind a pile of freight on the levee and when the steamer arrived and the passengers and crew were moving down the staging to the shore, he opened fire.

BEFORE THE JUDGE.

Police Happenings Disposed of at the City Hall Court.

John Halleck, found guilty of battery upon S. W. Peterson, the A. P. A. banner carrier, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 in the Police Court today.

Edith Jackson, a colored girl, pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Sentence was continued to August 14th.

James Franklin and James Mullin, were arrested for disturbing the peace. Their cases were continued until tomorrow to file complaint.

F. E. Stock pleaded not guilty to battery. His wife was the complaining witness and charged him with using force and violence upon her on August 13th. His trial was set for tomorrow.

E. H. Kennedy, charged by Ben Letter with petit larceny pleaded not guilty. His case was set for trial for August 16th.

Louis Auzer, John Schion, John Johnson alias B. F. Hensley, charged with violating the license ordinance, had the passing of sentence continued to August 20th.

IDENTIFIED.

The Two Bodies at the Morgue Recognized at Last.

The bodies of two men at the morgue have at last been identified. The man supposed to have been Jacob Stultz has been recognized by Martin Peters, an East Oakland saloon keeper, as Rupert Enderlein. He was a native of Germany, 46 years of age, and by occupation a cement sidewalk layer. He resided with an uncle named Bellermann near Dwight Way, Berkeley.

The body of the man who committed suicide by taking morphine in the Smith House has been recognized as Thomas Brown, a hanger on of San Francisco saloons, where he was employed cleaning up. Two years ago he attempted suicide by taking morphine.

A NEW GRAND JURY.

Thirty Names Drawn From the Box in Judge Frick's Court.

RETURNS TO BE MADE MONDAY

The First Work Will Be to Investigate the County Shortage.

EVERY CLUE BEING FOLLOWED.

The Checking of the Tax Stubs Will Soon Be in Progress.

Another step was taken today looking toward an investigation of the frauds and shortage that exist in the books of the County Tax Collector of last year. In accordance with an order from the four judges of the Superior Court a grand jury was drawn this morning, from which nineteen names will be selected to form the term grand jury.

Soon after 10 o'clock this morning Judge Frick ordered Clerk Mock to draw the names. The grand jury box was unsealed and the names were called one by one as the slips containing them were lifted from the box.

The thirty gentlemen from whom will be chosen the grand jury of nineteen are as follows:

C. W. Damon,	V. D Moody,
E. J. Osgood,	John Young,
Solomon Kahn,	August Fromm,
Peter Cook,	James P. Taylor,
James M. Russell,	Wm. P. Wheeler,
W. A. Holcomb,	E. H. Pardee,
Benjamin Smith,	Wm. Hoffschneider,
Don F. Miller,	J. L. Barker,
T. P. Carey,	R. W. Edwards,
B. D. Gray,	R. Dowling, Sr.
Wm. H. Wright,	H. T. Smith,
Hugh Craig,	E. J. Holland,
James H. Rourke,	Albert Weymouth,
Justice Held,	E. G. Buswell,
Joseph Knowland,	James H. Cory,

Judge Frick ordered the venire returnable next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

The work which seems most important for the term grand jury to consider is the trouble in the tax collector's office.

District Attorney Snook has been working night and day on the case and he has a large amount of criminally queer documentary evidence to submit to the grand jury. The investigation may lead to other developments in the situation. Rumor has it that a number of politicians are trying to get to cover before the body is called to order.

THE CHANCES OF PROSECUTION.

In connection with the deficit of $483 with which the name of County Auditor Whidden has been unpleasantly mixed it is now argued that a criminal action cannot lie against Whidden in the event he should fall within the meshes of the grand jury. The argument is made by a prominent county official that the question of criminal proceedings is set at naught because of the fact that there is a dispute or rather a difference of statement between Whidden and Leo Park. Whidden admits that the $483 in question was paid over to Park. The latter denies it. An action to recover the money would probably lie against Whidden.

"This point is not a clear one," argued a county officer today, while discussing the case. "If you go upon the hypothesis that Whidden accepted the money as an agent of Rosborough then the latter is susceptible for a suit. If Whidden did not act in that capacity it looks very much to me as if the taxpayers would suffer. In either event, one or other of the losers it would seem would have recourse to the courts against Whidden."

Both District Attorney Snook and Tax Collector Barber stated today that there were no new developments in the affair. County Expert Davis has not yet commenced to examine the tax receipt stubs, which are in the possession of Alex. Rosborough. The ex-tax collector and Davis had a consultation yesterday, however, and arrangements will be made very soon to proceed with the investigation of the stubs, which it is believed will result in more discoveries. Tax Collector Barber hopes to find some traces of the missing $600 which he held himself accountable for pending the result of the numerous efforts he will make to locate the deficit.

There is a feeling of suppressed excitement among the court house officials as the day draws near for the grand jury to convene and commence its investigations. There are vague rumors afloat that something will drop before the scandal has been fully probed.

THE PIEDMONT ROAD.

Another of the Old Cases Is Brought Up in Court.

Another of the Consolidated Piedmont Cable Company's cases bobbed up in Judge Frick's court early this morning and the taking of testimony hindered proceeding in the drug store robbery trial for an hour or so.

The case in point was a suit of the California Title Insurance Company which made an objection to Receiver Ira Bishop's second account after he was appointed when they foreclosed on a judgment held against the cable company.

There will be more testimony taken a week from next Monday.

The Wilmerding School.

Committees from the Council and the Board of Education met last night to take measures to secure the Wilmerding Trades School for Oakland. Prof. Edwards of the Board of Education was appointed a committee of one to interview the regents of the State University and to offer them the old High school building at Twelfth and Market street for the yearly rental of one dollar. If the regents accepted this the trades school will be started without delay.

PIERCE'S BIG PUMPS.

The Contra Costa Water Co. Is Still Wasting Water at Alvarado.

WHAT CHARLES G. YALE SAW.

A Delegation of Prominent Oaklanders Visit the Water Shed.

3,000,000 GALLONS WASTED.

The Supply of the Oakland Water Co. Incidentally Investigated.

The following letter from Mr. Charles G. Yale, one of Oakland's most substantial citizens, has been handed to The Tribune for publication:

Editor Tribune: Yesterday, in company with a number of the citizens of Oakland, I visited for the first time the pumping works of the Oakland—or Dingee—Water Co. near Alvarado. In the party were J. W. Nelson, M. J. Keller, P. E. Dalton, Thomas Prather, Henry Evers, C. O. Brigham, William D. English, Mack Webber, Dr. E. H. Woolsey, Dr. J. P. Dunn, Robert McKillican, E. Nusbaumer, D. S. Hirschberg, J. M. Bassett, Frank Brigham, George W. Baker, Thomas Pheby, Joseph Pheby, Edward Newland, Edward Dalton, John H. Troy, Wesley A. Jacobs, Thomas Moran, F. R. Girard and P. E. Bowles and others.

The object of the visit was to see the pumping plant, obtain an idea as to the system pursued in furnishing another supply of water to Oakland, and to learn, as far as superficial observation would permit, something as to the capacity of the works and the permanence of the supply of water. Every opportunity was given for such examination as was desired, and all questions were freely answered by those in charge. Moreover, so many stories had been circulated with relation to these works and the differences between the two competing companies, that we were all curious to see for ourselves all that could be seen.

Personally I have no more interest in either company, or their controversies, than any other citizen in Oakland who must depend on one or the other for water supply; yet, like the others of the visiting party, doubtless I felt it would be well to see for myself as far as possible whether the representations made concerning this new source of supply were correct, and also whether it was really a fact that interested parties were endeavoring to reduce this supply for purposes of their own without utilization. As other citizens who have not had opportunity to make a personal examination may be interested in what we saw, I write these lines.

The pumping station is an ordinary brick building, plain and homelike in construction. The first thing to attract attention on entering is the large concrete reservoir, dug in the ground, so that the water from the various wells flows in by that gravity. The reservoir is 112 feet long by 36 feet in width, deeper at one end than the other, and varying in depth of water from 10 to 16 feet. Lengthwise through the center of this reservoir a concrete wall dividing it in two parts of equal dimensions so that only half may be used to pump from if so desired. The water in the other portion will then rise to the normal height of the natural overflow, pressure of the wells and remain at rest. Into that half, however, from which the supply of the city is being drawn by the pumps, the water constantly flows from the wells in seemingly inexhaustible volumes, easily perceptible as it bubbles up from below. It is to be noted that they do not pump direct from the wells, which themselves flow naturally, and as the bottom of this receiving tank is much lower than their natural overflow point, the water comes into this tank or reservoir by gravity alone. I supposed until I saw this that they pumped direct from the wells. As stated, in the other side of the reservoir, from which no supply is being drawn, no water comes in until the pumps draw the water down sufficiently to again permit of a natural flow from the wells connected with it by pipes.

CLEANSING ARRANGEMENTS.

At the deeper ends of the two compartments of the reservoir are the large screened suction pipes connecting with the pumps in the adjoining room. Suitable arrangements are made for cleansing the reservoir when necessary. To say that the water in this reservoir is clean conveys no impression of its remarkable transparency, reminding one in that respect of what is to be seen at Lake Tahoe. This, however, is not peculiar to this region, as the same feature is characteristic of artesian supply elsewhere. The wells are all tapped eight feet below the surface and it stands in them in proportion to the height of water in the tank. This tank or reservoir holds one million gallons, and at present it is emptied six times daily, to supply Oakland with its abnormal consumption. I was informed on inquiry that the company has some six thousand services, which, with the ordinary average of five to each family, would give a supply to 30,000 people. To furnish this, however, the company is now compelled to pump 6,000,000 gallons daily or about 200 gallons per capita, while San Francisco, with its much larger population, only takes about 50 gallons per capita. It is this condition which induces the belief that water is being wilfully wasted somewhere on the line. However, of this I know nothing, so pass the feature without comment.

The engine and pumping room of the works is not surpassed in any respect in this county. The 600 horse power engines are of the Corlis type, perfect in every detail, and like the pumps were made by the E. P. Allis Company of Milwaukee. The engineer told us that the guaranteed duty of the pumps was ninety million foot pounds, and that in the test before acceptance it was run to one hundred and twenty-three million foot pounds. There are two complete sets of engines and two sets of pumps, duplicate in every way, one being used as a relief or in case of accident. Only one set was running at the time of our visit. The pumps maintain a standard pressure in the main of forty pounds. One of the gentlemen asked if this could be readily raised in case of a great fire in Oakland, when large quantities of water would be used. The engineer answered by taking a few turns of the handscrew on the throttle, sending the column of mercury which indicates pressure on the mains up to fifty-seven pounds at once. The other engine also could be brought into requisition in a few moments and both of them speeded up, in case of abnormal consumption of water in town. The company maintains a private telephone line to send word at once of any such emergency, but even this is unnecessary as the registering column of mercury is in plain sight, and the engineer would at once know of any sudden unusual consumption and increase his supply. The normal speed of the engines is from fifty to sixty revolutions, and it takes from twelve to twenty hours for the water to reach this city from the station, according to consumption at the city end. The pipe line alone from the station to Twenty-second avenue holds three millions gallons of water. The immense pumps run smoothly and noiselessly, nothing but the click of the valve gear being heard in the big room full of heavy machinery.

In an adjoining room are three large boilers, only one of which is used at a time. Another is kept cleaned ready for use at once, and the third is opened for cleaning. This latter was the subject of some curiosity among the members of the party, so much had been said about the deposit of scale from the water. By request the large mud door of the boiler was opened and those who desired easily removed with the fingers a little fine scale as thin as a wafer. Evidently there was little in this criticism, for the scale amounted to nothing.

After inspecting the plant to their satisfaction the party wanted to see the opposition pumping works nearby and all went down there. Close outside the fence of the Oakland Water Company was a portable engine blonging to some one else, which was idle at the time, but which we were informed had been working day and night until 12 o'clock that day, drawing from a well or wells within a hundred yards or so from the Oakland Water Company's fence. What the water was used for was not apparent. Some distance down the road, at the old glue works, the exhaust of a rapidly moving engine was heard; and here we found active operations going on. Three or four six-inch pipes led into the building, where the engine was at work, from as many artesian wells, and on the opposite side a steady heavy stream was flowing out in a flume, part of which was evidently newly constructed. Several asked permission to enter the building, but this was denied by the man in charge, who said he had orders to the contrary. However the whole party waded up to their ankles in the marsh and tules to the flume, along which they scrambled as best they could to the end, a couple of hundred yards away, to see where the water went. It passed in a ditch through an acre or two of beets and then appeared to be irrigating a marsh, for it ran off onto this marsh land wherever it pleased on its way to the bay.

SIMPLY WASTE.

That it was not being utilized in any way, for any purpose, was very apparent to all who viewed the situation. Several measured the flume and it was found to be twenty-two inches wide and twelve inches deep; and the water was running with a velocity of about three feet per second. This would show a discharge of say 3,628,600 gallons per day. For myself, judging from appearances alone, I should say the flow through the flume at the rate we saw it running, would be from two to two and a half millions daily. Whether these people are just for fun trying to pump out the world, or to raise the height of water at the Golden Gate, I don't know. Perhaps they have a mosquito ranch, for these little pests are bred there by the millions, as all of the party know to their cost. We were told of the pumping operations referred to had been going on for about a week.

Who the people are who are spending money on useless pumping I have no personal knowledge. That it is someone who is trying to reduce or exhaust the supply of the company trying to furnish water for the citizens of this town is plainly apparent. What their reasons are is best known to themselves. It appears to me, however, that they are of their own volition demonstrating to our citizens the inexhaustibility of the Oakland Company's supply, since thus far their efforts have had no sensible influence on any of the nine wells of the company, yet both plants combined are taking immense quantities of water daily from a limited area. If I understand correctly the theory of the artesian supply in the valleys surrounding San Francisco bay, its original source is in the high Sierras, where there are hundreds of torrential streams, vast masses of melting snow in summer, to be replenished every winter, and where all the larger rivers of the State have their origin. The water, seeping into the earth in the mountains, passes under the great San Joaquin valley to rise in our region, the tilting of the stratification of the rocks having permitted it. A great curved stratum of some impervious material underlying the San Joaquin valley prevents the water rising there unless the wells sunk are a thousand or more feet in depth. In the Alvarado region, as elsewhere, around the bay, this water comes to the surface and overflows when borings are made and pipes sunk a moderate depth. The "underground rivers" or passages for the water from the Sierras are not uniform and of immense width, but confined to certain channels apparently. For this reason and because of local geological conditions the water does not rise to the surface except at such points as where the conditions are favorable. One of these points is in the vicinity of Alvarado, where the pumping works described are located. Whether a dozen pumping plants like those referred to could exhaust the supply is a question. It is, however, known that artesian supply can to some extent be affected by boring too many wells, or boring them in improper groups, in a given area of territory.

The people of this city are greatly interested in this whole assertion. Whether people are legally permitted to willfully waste a supply of wate intended for a large community, is something the lawyers must determine as to the moral side there is no question whatever. That this waste is daily going on will be apparent to any one who takes the trouble to visit the artesian belt in question. Had those who are carrying this wasteful plan, or those who are abetting it, heard the indignant comments of the Oakland citizens who witnessed it yesterday, their ears would have tingled at least had their consciences not been pricked. If these people were utilizing the water in any way no one would have cause of complaint, except the company which in good faith has invested its money to furnish a second and competitive supply of water for this city. The men who own the ground near by would have a perfect right to sink wells and draw water therefrom for any use they desired. But when they pour the water into the bay in wanton waste when it is needed in this community the citizens themselves have at least a right to inquire into the motive and to condemn the sentiment which prompts such unusual and unprecedented action.

BROWN CHALLENGED.

The Prosecution Has Removed the Obnoxious Juror.

EXCEPTIONS BY THE DEFENSE.

Judge Murphy Talks Aboutthe Press Contempt Cases.

MORE INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

No More Talesmen Secured at the Morning Session.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—The feature of the trial of Theodore Durrant this morning was the decision of Judge Murphy upon the application of the District Attorney for permission to peremptorily challenge juror W. S. Brown on the ground that Brown had voted to acquit M. D. Howell on a charge of forgery because the evidence was circumstantial.

The Court read a long opinion citing the various decisions and finally allowing Brown to be challenged.

The defense took an exception and may make the decision one point of an appeal if the case goes against them.

The jurors are now harder to find than ever, all fearing their past will be exploited by detectives for the prosecution or defense, and if a juror's record is good, the fear is that some innocent act may be distorted.

Juror Brown was then challenged by the prosecution and excused by the court.

Judge Murphy then told the press representatives that the publication of any article which tended to destroy the chances of the defendant receiving a fair trial was contempt.

He said that did not apply to the present case.

He was satisfied the reporters did not intend to invade the law in questioning Juror Brown.

The attorney for Durrant wished the newspapermen proceeded against but the court refused saying he had expressed his opinions which he hoped would be followed by newspapermen.

He declined to admonish the reporters as requested by Durrant's lawyers.

No additional jurors were secured at the morning session.

BRADY IN THE DOCK.

The Desperado Under Examination for Sheriff Bogard's Murder.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

MARSVILLE, Cal., Aug. 12.—The preliminary examination of Harry Williams, better known as Bandit Brady, for the murder of Sheriff J. J. Bogard, of Tehama county on the Oregon express the morning of March 30th, 1895, while the train was running between Wheatland and Reed station, commenced this morning before Justice of the Peace I. N. Aldrich.

The court room was packed with people like sardines in a box.

Attorneys W. H. Carlin and E. A. Forbes, two of the ablest criminal lawyers in this section of the country, represen the defendant, who came smiling into the court room, but who was very attentive to the testimony.

District Attorney McDaniel prosecuted.

The morning session was taken up with the testimony of Coroner Beaven and of Messenger F. A. Kelton, who did not identify the defendant.

OFF TO JAPAN.

The Olympia to Be Flagship of the Asiatic Squadron.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The Olympia will leave San Francisco about the middle of this week, going by way of Honolulu to the Asiatic squadron to relieve the Baltimore as flagship of the station.

It is stated at the Navy Department that there have been given no orders to make a rapid trip across the Pacific or even part of the way.

It is probable the report originated in the talk of officers who assert the Olympia is as fast as the Columbia.

At the Navy Department it is said the Olympia is to remain at the Asiatic station three years and the department would not risk injury to her by sending her at full speed across the Pacific.

SIFTING DOWN THE STORY.

Auditor Whidden and Leo Park Will Have to Explain.

District Attorney Snook Is at Work on the Shortage Case.

District Attorney Snook has announced officially that the blame for the shortage in the county tax collector's office rests upon either Myron Whidden or Leo Park.

It is very probable some action will be taken by the district attorney within a few days looking toward the apprehension of the man to whom all the circumstances point as the culprit.

"The offense has been narrowed down to two men," said Mr. Snook; "Myron Whidden, the county auditor, and Leo Park, who was chief deputy under Rosborough. Between these two men is a question of veracity in which Mr. Whidden asserts that he paid the amounts involved to Mr. Park, and the latter denies having received them. This means that Mr. Whidden will be required to offer proof that he paid the amounts over to Mr. Park.

"Again, another point is involved, and that is in what capacity was Mr. Whidden acting when he took the amounts from George Schmidt of Berkeley. If it was as the agent of Mr. Rosborough, then he has committed an offense against the county, if he cannot show that he paid Park the money. If he accepted the taxes from Schmidt as his bailee then the county can recover the amount due as taxes from Schmidt, and Whidden would be answerable to him for the delinquency."

County Expert Davis is making preparations to commence his investigation of the records of Tax Collector Barber and those of Alex. Rosborough, his predecessor. There will be no delay in carrying the work to an end as rapidly as possible.

Barber is especially anxious that the books be overhauled for he is desirous of finding the $600 deficit which he has been compelled to pay.

"It is not a question of money," said Barber today, "but a question whether there has been a leak in this office. I want to get right to the bottom of this $600 for my own protection. I want to find out what the matter is and remedy the trouble. It is worth $600 to know how this shortage occurred, for it will mean an exposure that will give us protection in the future."

Attorney George De Golia is confident that his client, Myron Whidden, is all right, and will win out at the proper time. "I am not making a newspaper fight in this matter," said De Golia today. "There is no occasion for any further discussion of the subject now. When the time comes you will find us ready and at hand."

SIGNS OF A SPLIT,

The City Attorney and City Engineer Not to Vote Together.

Chief of Police Lloyd will recommend a man for appointment tomorrow to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of William McCloud and thereby hangs a tale. City Engineer Wilson had selected John Sherry, an intimate friend, for the position, and it was understood that City Attorney Piersol would vote for him, but Sherry happens to be a Catholic or is affiliated with Catholic relations, and influences were set at work that have succeeded in losing him Piersol's vote. Mayor Davie is said to have been the one who stood in the shadow and set the influences at work that pulled down Mr. Piersol, and as a result the feelings between the City Attorney and City Engineer are not as cordial as they were once.

"Yes, I wanted to see Mr. Sherry appointed to a position on the force," said Mr. Wilson today, "but it does not look as if he would obtain the appointment. I have been unable to get Mr. Piersol to say he would vote for him. I do not know who the chief will recommend, but the board will meet as a committee of the whole today and the new appointee will probably be decided upon."

Among those who have been foremost in trying to secure the position are W. F. Woods, a dairyman residing on San Pablo avenue, and J. M. Cockerton, who was recommended by Chief Schaffer, but there is a dark horse who is likely to win the position whose name is as yet a secret. William McCloud's friends have also been endeavoring to have him reinstated.

"It is not likely that Piersol and Wilson will split over this appointment," said one of the City Engineer's friends today. "It is too small a matter; but there is liable to be trouble between them yet, and that is what Davie is looking for."

GOODWIN'S FUNERAL.

A Popular Young Man Taken to the Tomb.

The funeral of the late F. J. Goodwin took place yesterday from the undertaking parlors of Albert Brown, on Thirteenth and Broadway.

The apartments were filled with friends and mourners, whose grief and appreciation of the merits of the deceased were expressed in a profuse offering of flowers wrought into beautiful and symbolical designs. Among the most noticeable of these tributes was an immense representation of Gates Ajar, which was sent by Pierce & Co., of San Francisco.

The services were conducted by Rev. Robert Ritchie of St. Paul's Episcopal church. They were very affecting, so much so that the widow of the deceased was twice overcome and had to be tenderly borne out of the chamber of death.

The burial took place in Mountain View cemetery.

The pall bearers were G. B. Daniels, H. H. Colt, G. H. Smith and C. L. Hewes.

The funeral was under the direction of Albert Brown.

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

Auditor Whidden Submits His Report to the State Board.

A Few Facts Showing the Prosperity of Alameda County.

County Auditor Whidden has completed the tabulation which the State Board of Equalization requires him to procure and forward to them on or before the second Monday in August. The figures will be sent to Sacramento today. They will be used by the State Board in making the changes they propose in the Alameda County assessment.

No further effort was made today to prevent the auditor from forwarding the statement based on the figures furnished him after the County Board had reduced the roll. Whidden secured a legal opinion that it was his duty to pay no heed to the suit now pending but to go ahead with his work in accordance with the State law. The answer on the part of the district attorney in behalf of the auditor and the supervisors will be made within a short time. The district attorney's office is burdened with work just now and there has been some unavoidable delay in preparing the case.

The figures compiled by the auditor are as follows:

Value of real estate other than city and town lots, $17,126,011.

Value of city and town lots, $10,321,213.

Value of all real estate, $27,747,287.

Value of improvements on real estate other than city and town lots, $3,338,576.

Value of improvements on city and town lots, $22,227,179.

Value of improvements on real estate assessed to persons other than owners of real estate, $16,595.

Value of all improvements, $25,712,216.

Total value of real estate lots and improvements, $53,459,603.

Total value of all the above property after equalization by the County Board of Equalization, $52,272,944.

The number of acres of land assessed is 414,151.5.

The assessed value of mortgages is $20,621,785.

The assessed value of property heretofore sold to the state for taxes is $681,-950.

The value of University mortgages not taxable is $352,900.

HOME ENTERPRISE FOR EVER

Boat Exhibits Made by Messrs. Watts & Trott.

Messrs. Watts & Trott, whose place of business is Third and Washington streets, shipped this morning for exhibition at the Mechanics' Fair in San Francisco one of the handsomest pleasure boats ever seen on this coast. The boat is built of British Columbia cedar with mahogany trimmings, the rowlocks and finishings being of polished brass. The measurements are: 18 ft. over all, 47 ft. beam, 16 in. amidships, 25 in. bow and 26 in. stern. Visitors to the Fair from Oakland should make it a point to see this exhibit, as it is well worth seeing. Messrs. Watts & Trott are both men of ability in their particular line, and if their exhibit at the Fair may be taken as a sample of their work they are certainly deserving of a liberal patronage. They have also in course of construction for a resident of this city a sailboat which it is promised will next season show a clean pair of heels to some of our fast yachts of the same class.

To the Citizens of Oakland.

The canvas for Husted's Directory of Oakland commences today. Every house in the city and suburbs will be visited by a canvasser and the publisher requests that full information be given. The names of all persons, male or female, over the age of seventeen will be taken, whether they are in business or not, the object being to give a complete list of all persons old enough to receive mail. The directory is used by the city, county and United States postal authorities and we wish to make it as complete and reliable as possible. We respectfully request that all removals or changes occurring after the canvasser's visit be reported to the office, 958 Broadway, so that our information may be corrected before printing.

The Contra Costa Water Co. Is Still Wasting Water at Alvarado.

WHAT CHARLES G. YALE SAW.

A Delegation of Prominent Oaklanders Visit the Water Shed.

3,000,000 GALLONS WASTED.

The Supply of the Oakland Water Co. Incidentally Investigated.

The following letter from Mr. Charles G Yale one of Oakland's most substantial citizens, has been handed to The Tribune for publication:

Editor Tribune: Yesterday, in company with a number of the citizens of Oakland, I visited for the first time the pumping works of the Oakland—of Dingee—Water Co near Alvarado In the party were J. W. Nelson, M. J. Keller, P. E. Dalton, Thomas Prather, Henry Byers, C. O Brigham, William L. English, Mack Webbet, Dr. E. H Woolsey, Dr. J. P. Dunn, Robert McKillican, J. Nusbaumer, D. S. Hirschberg, J. M. Bassett, Frank Brigham, George W Baker Thomas Pheby, Joseph Pheby, Edward Newland, Edward Dalton, John H. Troy, Wesley A. Jacobs Thomas Moran, F. R. Girard and P. E. Bowles and others.

The object of the visit was to see the pumping plant, obtain an idea as to the system pursued in furnishing another supply of water to Oakland, and to learn, as far as superficial observation would permit, something as to the capacity of the works and the permanence of the supply of water. Every opportunity was given for such examination as was desired, and all questions were freely answered by those in charge. Moreover, so many stories had been circulated with relation to these works and the differences between the two competing companies, that we were all curious to see for ourselves all that could be seen.

Personally I have no more interest in either company, or their controversies, than any other citizen in Oakland who must depend on one or the other for water supply; yet, like the others of the visiting party, doubtless I felt it would be well to see for myself as far as possible whether the representations made concerning this new source of supply were correct, and also whether it was really a fact that interested parties were endeavoring to reduce this supply for purposes of their own without utilization. As other citizens who have not had opportunity to make a personal examination may be interested in what we saw, I write these lines.

The pumping station is an ordinary brick building, plain and homelike in construction. The first thing to attract attention on entering is the large concrete reservoir, dug in the ground, so that the water from the various wells flows in by that gravity. The reservoir is 112 feet long by 56 feet in width, deeper at one end than the other, and varying in depth of water from 10 to 16 feet. Lengthwise through the center of this reservoir a concrete wall dividing it in two parts of equal dimensions so that only half may be used to pump from if so desired. The water in the other portion will then rise to the normal height of the natural overflow, pressure of the wells and remain at rest. Into that half, however, from which the supply of the city is being drawn by the pumps, the water constantly flows from the wells in seemingly inexhaustible volumes, easily perceptible as it bubbles up from below. It is to be noted that they do not pump direct from the wells, which themselves flow naturally, and as the bottom of this receiving tank is much lower than their natural overflow point, the water comes into this tank or reservoir by gravity alone. I supposed until I saw this that they pumped direct from the wells. As stated, in the other side of the reservoir, from which no supply is being drawn, no water comes in until the pumps draw the water down sufficiently to again permit of a natural flow from the wells connected with it by pipes.

CLEANSING ARRANGEMENTS.

At the deeper ends of the two compartments of the reservoir are the large screened suction pipes connecting with the pumps in the adjoining room. Suitable arrangements are made for cleansing the reservoir when necessary. To say that the water in this reservoir is clean conveys no impression of its remarkable transparency, reminding one in that respect of what is to be seen at Lake Tahie. This, however, is not peculiar to this region, as the same feature is characteristic of artesian supply elsewhere. The wells are all tapped eight feet below the surface and it stands in them in proportion to the height of water in the tank. This tank or reservoir holds one million gallons, and at present it is emptied six times daily, to supply Oakland with its abnormal consumption. I was informed on inquiry that the company has some six thousand services, which, with the ordinary average of five to each family, would give a supply to 30,000 people. To furnish this, however, the company is now compelled to pump 6,000,000 gallons daily or about 200 gallons per capita, while San Francisco, with its much larger population, only takes about 50 gallons per capita. It is this condition which induces the belief that water is being wilfully wasted somewhere on the line. However, of this I know nothing, so pass the feature without comment.

The engine and pumping room of the works is not surpassed in any respect in this county. The 600 horse power engines are of the Corlis type, perfect in every detail, and like the pumps were made by the E. P. Allis Company of Milwaukee. The engineer told us that the guaranteed duty of the pumps was ninety million foot pounds, and that in the test before acceptance it was run to one hundred and twenty-three million foot pounds. There are two complete sets of engines and two sets of pumps, duplicate in every way, one being used as a relief or in case of accident. Only one set was running at the time of our visit. The pumps maintain a standard pressure in the main of forty pounds. One of the gentlemen asked if this could be readily raised in case of a great fire in Oakland, when large quantities of water would be used. The engineer answered by taking a few turns of the handscrew on the throttle, sending the column of mercury which indicates pressure on the mains up to fifty-seven pounds at once. The other engine also could be brought into requisition in a few moments and both of them speeded up, in case of abnormal consumption of water in town. The company maintains a private telephone line to send word at once of any such emergency, but even this is unnecessary as the registering column of mercury is in plain sight, and the engineer would at once know of any sudden unusual consumption and increase his supply. The normal speed of the engines is from fifty to sixty revolutions, and it takes from twelve to twenty hours for the water to reach this city from the station, according to consumption at the city end. The pipe line alone from the station to Twenty-second avenue holds three millions gallons of water. The immense pumps run smoothly and noiselessly, nothing but the click of the valve gear being heard in the big room full of heavy machinery.

In an adjoining room are three large boilers, only one of which is used at a time Another is kept fired ready for use at once, and the third is opened for cleaning. This latter was the subject of some curiosity among the members of the party, so much had been said about the deposit of scale from the water. By request the large mud door of the boiler was opened and those who desired easily removed with the fingers a little free scale as thin as a wafer. Evidently there was little in this criticism, for the scale amounted to nothing.

After inspecting the plant to their satisfaction the party wanted to see the opposition pumping works nearby and all went down there. Close outside the fence of the Oakland Water Company was a portable engine blonging to some one else, which was idle at the time, but which we were informed had been working day and night until 12 o'clock that day, drawing from a well or wells within a hundred yards or so from the Oakland Water Company's fence. What the water was used for was not apparent. Some distance down the road, at the old glue works, the exhaust of a rapidly moving engine was heard, and here we found active operations going on. Three or four six-inch pipes led into the building, where the engine was at work, from as many artesian wells, and on the opposite side a steady heavy stream was flowing out in a flume, part of which was evidently newly constructed. Several asked permission to enter the building, but this was denied by the man in charge, who said he had orders to the contrary. However the whole party waded up to their ankles in the marsh and tules to the flume, along which they scrambled as best they could to the end, a couple of hundred yards away, to see where the water went. It passed in a ditch through an acre or two of beets and then appeared to be irrigating a marsh, for it ran off onto this marsh land wherever it pleased on its way to the bay.

SIMPLY WASTE.

That it was not being utilized in any way, for any purpose, was very apparent to all who viewed the situation. Several measured the flume and it was found to be twenty-two inches wide and twelve inches deep, and the water was running with a velocity of about three feet per second. This would show a discharge of say 3,628,600 gallons per day. For myself, judging from appearances alone, I should say the flow through the flume at the rate we saw it running, would be from two to two and a half millions daily. Whether these people are just for fun trying to pump out the world, or to raise the height of water at the Golden Gate, I don't know. Perhaps they have a mosquito ranch, for these little pests are bred there by the millions, as all of the party know to their cost. We were told of the pumping operations referred to had been going on for about a week.

Who the people are who are spending money on useless pumping I have no personal knowledge. That it is someone who is trying to reduce or exhaust the supply of the company trying to furnish water for the citizens of this town is plainly apparent. What their reasons are is best known to themselves. It appears to me, however, that they are of their own volition demonstrating to our citizens the inexhaustibility of the Oakland Company's supply, since thus far their efforts have had no sensible influence on any of the nine wells of the company, yet both plants combined are taking immense quantities of water daily from a limited area. If I understand correctly the theory of the artesian supply in the valleys surrounding San Francisco bay, its original source is in the high Sierras, where there are hundreds of torrential streams, vast masses of melting snow in summer, to be replenished every winter, and where all the larger rivers of the State have their origin. The water, seeping into the earth in the mountains, passes under the great San Joaquin valley to rise in our region, the tilting of the stratification of the rocks having permitted it. A great curved stratum of some impervious material underlying the San Joaquin valley prevents the water rising there unless the wells sunk are a thousand or more feet in depth. In the Alvarado region, as elsewhere, around the bay, this water comes to the surface and overflows when borings are made and pipes sunk a moderate depth. The "underground rivers" or passages for the water from the Sierras are not uniform and of immense width, but confined to certain channels apparently. For this reason and because of local geological conditions the water does not rise to the surface except at such points as where the conditions are favorable. One of these points is in the vicinity of Alvarado, where the pumping works described are located. Whether a dozen pumping plants like those referred to could exhaust the supply is a question. It is, however, known that artesian supply can to some extent be affected by boring too many wells, or boring them in improper groups, in a given area of territory.

The people of this city are greatly interested in this whole assertion. Whether people are legally permitted to willfully waste a supply of wate intended for a large community, is something the lawyers must determine as to the moral side there is no question whatever. That this waste is daily going on will be apparent to any one who takes the trouble to visit the artesian belt in question. Had those who are carrying this wasteful plan, or those who are abetting it, heard the indignant comments of the Oakland citizens who witnessed it yesterday, their ears would have tingled at least had their consciences not been pricked. If these people were utilizing the water in any way no one would have cause of complaint, except the company which in good faith has invested its money to furnish a second and competitive supply of water for this city. The men who own the ground near by would have a perfect right to sink wells and draw water therefrom for any use they desired. But when they pour the water into the bay in wanton waste when it is needed in this community the citizens themselves have at least a right to inquire into the motive and to condemn the sentiment which prompts such unusual and unprecedented action.

BROWN CHALLENGED.

The Prosecution Has Removed the Obnoxious Juror.

EXCEPTIONS BY THE DEFENSE.

Judge Murphy Talks Aboutthe Press Contempt Cases.

MORE INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

No More Talesmen Secured at the Morning Session.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug 12.—The feature of the trial of Theodore Durrant this morning was the decision of Judge Murphy upon the application of the District Attorney for permission to peremptorily challenge Juror W S. Brown on the ground that Brown had voted to acquit M. D. Howell on a charge of forgery because the evidence was circumstantial.

The Court read a long opinion citing the various decisions and finally allowing Brown to be challenged.

The defense took an exception and may make the decision one point of an appeal if the case goes against them.

The jurors are now harder to find than ever, all fearing their past will be exploited by detectives for the prosecution or defense, and if a juror's record is good, the fear is that some innocent act may be distorted.

Juror Brown was then challenged by the prosecution and excused by the court.

Judge Murphy then told the press representatives that the publication of any article which tended to destroy the chances of the defendant receiving a fair trial was contempt.

He said that did not apply to the present case.

He was satisfied the reporters did not intend to invade the law in questioning Juror Brown

The attorney for Durrant wished the newspapermen proceeded against but the court refused saying he had expressed his opinions which he hoped would be followed by newspapermen

He declined to admonish the reporters as requested by Durrant's lawyers

No additional jurors were secured at the morning session.

BRADY IN THE DOCK.

The Desperado Under Examination for Sheriff Bogard's Murder.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

MARSVILLE, Cal., Aug 12.—The preliminary examination of Harry Williams, better known as Bandit Brady, for the murder of Sheriff J. J. Bogard, of Tehama county on the Oregon express the morning of March 30th, 1895, while the train was running between Wheatland and Reed station, commenced this morning before Justice of the Peace J. N. Aldrich.

The court room was packed with people like sardines in a box.

Attorneys W. H. Carlin and E. A. Forbes, two of the ablest criminal lawyers in this section of the country, represen the defendant, who came smiling into the court room, but who was very attentive to the testimony.

District Attorney McDaniel prosecuted.

The morning session was taken up with the testimony of Coroner Beaven and of Messenger F. A. Kelton, who did not identify the defendant.

OFF TO JAPAN.

The Olympia to Be Flagship of the Asiatic Squadron.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The Olympia will leave San Francisco about the middle of this week, going by way of Honolulu to the Asiatic squadron to relieve the Baltimore as flagship of the station.

It is stated at the Navy Department that there have been given no orders to make a rapid trip across the Pacific or even part of the way.

It is probable the report originated in the talk of officers who assert the Olympia is as fast as the Columbia.

At the Navy Department it is said the Olympia is to remain at the Asiatic station three years and the department would not risk injury to her by sending her at full speed across the Pacific.

A GRAND JURY.

A Special Panel to Be Drawn in Judge Frick's Court.

Judge Frick this afternoon ordered a venire for thirty grand jurors to be drawn tomorrow and approved on Monday next.

It is understood the scandal in the office of the tax collector has caused the order.

Indorsed Dalton.

Resolutions condemning the Supervisors in reducing the assessment for Alameda county were adopted Saturday night at a meeting held in the Tabernacle. A. Bretz, N. P. Manson and Green Majors made speeches.

SIFTING DOWN THE STORY.

Auditor Whidden and Leo Park Will Have to Explain.

District Attorney Snook Is at Work on the Shortage Case.

District Attorney Snook has announced officially that the blame for the shortage in the county tax collector's office rests upon either Myron Whidden or Leo Park.

It is very probable some action will be taken by the district attorney within a few days looking toward the apprehension of the man to whom all the circumstances point as the culprit.

"The offense has been narrowed down to two men," said Mr. Snook; "Myron Whidden, the county auditor, and Leo Park, who was chief deputy under Hosborough. Between these two men is a question of veracity in which Mr. Whidden asserts that he paid the amounts involved to Mr. Park, and the latter denies having received them. This means that Mr Whidden will be required to offer proof that he paid the amounts over to Mr Park.

"Again, another point is involved, and that is in what capacity was Mr. Whidden acting when he took the amounts from George Schmidt of Berkeley. If it was as the agent of Mr. Rosborough, then he has committed an offense against the county, if he cannot show that he paid Park the money. If he accepted the taxes from Schmidt as his bailee then the county can recover the amount due as taxes from Schmidt, and Whidden would be answerable to him for the delinquency."

County Expert Davis is making preparations to commence his investigation of the records of Tax Collector Barber and those of Alex Rosborough, his predecessor. There will be no delay in carrying the work to an end as rapidly as possible.

Barber is especially anxious that the books be overhauled for he is desirous of finding the $600 deficit which he has been compelled to pay.

"It is not a question of money," said Barber today, "but a question whether there has been a leak in this office. I want to get right to the bottom of this $600 for my own protection. I want to find out what the matter is and remedy the trouble. It is worth $600 to know how this shortage occurred, for it will mean an exposure that will give us protection in the future."

Attorney George De Golia is confident that his client, Myron Whidden, is all right, and will win out at the proper time "I am not making a newspaper fight in this matter," said De Golia today. "There is no occasion for any further discussion of the subject now. When the time comes you will find us ready and at hand."

SIGNS OF A SPLIT,

The City Attorney and City Engineer Not to Vote Together.

Chief of Police Lloyd will recommend a man for appointment tomorrow to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of William McCloud and thereby hangs a tale. City Engineer Wilson had selected John Sherry, an intimate friend, for the position, and it was understood that City Attorney Piersol would vote for him, but Sherry happens to be a Catholic or is affiliated with Catholic relations, and influences were set at work that have succeeded in losing him Piersol's vote. Mayor Davie is said to have been the one who stood in the shadow and set the influences at work that pulled down Mr Piersol, and as a result the feelings between the City Attorney and City Engineer are not as cordial as they were once.

"Yes, I wanted to see Mr. Sherry appointed to a position on the force," said Mr. Wilson today, "but it does not look as if he would obtain the appointment. I have been unable to get Mr. Piersol to say he would vote for him. I do not know who the chief will recommend, but the board will meet as a committee of the whole today and the new appointee will probably be decided upon."

Among those who have been foremost in trying to secure the position are W. F. Woods, a dairyman residing on San Pablo avenue, and J. M. Cockerton, who was recommended by Chief Schaffer, but there is a dark horse who is likely to win the position whose name is as yet a secret. William McCloud's friends have also been endeavoring to have him reinstated.

"It is not likely that Piersol and Wilson will split over this appointment," said one of the City Engineer's friends today. "It is too small a matter, but there is liable to be trouble between them yet, and that is what Davie is looking for."

GOODWIN'S FUNERAL.

A Popular Young Man Taken to the Tomb.

The funeral of the late E. J Goodwin took place yesterday from the undertaking parlors of Albert Brown, on Thirteenth and Broadway

The apartments were filled with friends and mourners, whose grief and appreciation of the merits of the deceased were expressed in a profuse offering of flowers wrought into beautiful and symbolical designs. Among the most noticeable of these tributes was an immense representation of Gates Ajar, which was sent by Pierce & Co., of San Francisco.

The services were conducted by Rev. Robert Ritchie of St Paul's Episcopal church. They were very affecting, so much so that the widow of the deceased was twice overcome and had to be tenderly borne out of the chamber of death.

The burial took place in Mountain View cemetery.

The pall bearers were G. B. Daniels, H. H. Colt, G. H. Smith and C. L. Dewes.

The funeral was under the direction of Albert Brown.

A SPLENDID SHOWING.

Auditor Whidden Submits His Report to the State Board.

A Few Facts Showing the Prosperity of Alameda County.

County Auditor Whidden has completed the tabulation which the State Board of Equalization requires him to procure and forward to them on or before the second Monday in August. The figures will be sent to Sacramento today. They will be used by the State Board in making the changes they propose in the Alameda County assessment.

No further effort was made today to prevent the auditor from forwarding the statement based on the figures furnished him after the County Board had reduced the roll Whidden secured a legal opinion that it was his duty to pay no heed to the suit now pending but to go ahead with his work in accordance with the State law. The answer on the part of the district attorney in behalf of the auditor and the supervisors will be made within a short time. The district attorney's office is burdened with work just now and there has been some unavoidable delay in preparing the case.

The figures compiled by the auditor are as follows:

Value of real estate other than city and town lots, $17,126,011.

Value of city and town lots, $10,321,213.

Value of all real estate, $27,717,287.

Value of improvements on real estate other than city and town lots, $4,238,576.

Value of improvements on city and town lots, $22,327,150.

Value of improvements on real estate assessed to persons other than owners of real estate, $16,595.

Value of all improvements, $25,712,318.

Total value of real estate lots and improvements, $52,459,603.

Total value of all the above property after equalization by the County Board of Equalization, $54,272,914.

The number of acres of land assessed is 14,451 5.

The assessed value of mortgages is $20,621,735.

The assessed value of property heretofore sold to the state for taxes is $681,950.

The value of University mortgages not taxable is $452,900.

WHISKY DID IT.

Charles Raymond Will Spend Two Years at Folsom.

Charles Raymond, a carpenter, who pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary, was sent to Folsom penitentiary for two years by Judge Frick today.

Raymond had stolen a kit of tools from a house on Pacific avenue in Alameda to sell and secure money for liquor. He was caught, however and held for trial. Raymond decided to plead guilty and suffer the consequence of his crime

Will Rogers testified this morning that Raymond had given his fellow-craftsmen a great deal of trouble by borrowing tools from them and selling the articles.

Raymond says whisky caused his ruin.

Boat Exhibits Made by Messrs. Watts & Trott.

Messrs. Watts & Trott, whose place of business is Third and Washington streets, shipped this morning for exhibition at the Mechanics' Fair in San Francisco one of the handsomest pleasure boats ever seen on this coast. The boat is built of British Columbia cedar with mahogany trimmings, the rowlocks and thwarts being of polished brass. The measurements are: 18 ft. over all, 47 ft. beam, 16 in. amidships, 25 in bow and 26 in. stern. Visitors to the Fair from Oakland should make it a point to see this exhibit as it is well worth seeing. Messrs. Watts & Trott are both men of ability in their particular line, and if their exhibit at the Fair may be taken as a sample of their work they are certainly deserving of a liberal patronage. They have also in course of construction for a resident of this city a sailboat which it is promised will next season show a clean pair of heels to some of our fast yachts of the same class.

To the Citizens of Oakland.

The canvas for Husted's Directory of Oakland commences today. Every house in the city and suburbs will be visited by a canvasser and the publisher requests that full information be given. The names of all persons, male or female, over the age of seventeen will be taken, whether they are in business or not the object being to give a complete list of all persons old enough to receive mail The directory is used by the city, county and United States postal authorities and we wish to make it as complete and reliable as possible. We respectfully request that all removals or changes occurring after the canvasser's visit be reported to the office, 958 Broadway, so that our information may be corrected before printing.

TUESDAY.....AUGUST 13, 1895.

The shipments of fresh fruit from California to London have not been thus far attended with such success as to warrant the inference that a lucrative fruit trade can be prosecuted in that direction. It is the old story of spoiled fruit. It is doubtful if there is any known process by which fruit can be shipped from this State to London in uniform good order. The packages that turn out well do not sell for enough to cover the losses on the spoiled fruit and still leave a margin of profit. This is about a fair statement up to date.

There is very little basis for the suggestion that ex-President Harrison may be nominated for the Supreme Bench to succeed the late Justice Jackson. The latter, although a Democrat, was nominated by Harrison. There were no politics in the nomination. A Southern man was wanted. Jackson had a good record. His nomination gave good satisfaction, save to a few radicals. Harrison is looking for a still higher nomination. It is not at all likely that he would accept a nomination to the Supreme Court if tendered to him, nor is it likely that any such tender will ever be made.

At last there has been a movement on the part of the municipal authorities for securing the Wilmerding school for this city. Prof. Edwards of the Board of Education, has been appointed a committee of one to confer with the Regents and to learn more specifically what are the conditions for securing the location. In a general way it is known that nothing less than the tender of a block of land will meet the case. But the tender of the old High School building might meet a temporary want so well as to be a strong attraction. But if a block of land were added the whole matter might soon be settled.

Canned Milk for the Orient.

As the Asiatics are taking kindly to wheat flour as the increased orders indicate, the Tacoma News suggests that condensed milk might be made an important article of commerce. The steamers leaving that port frequently carry consignments of canned milk to the value of many thousand of dollars. This milk is prepared in the middle and eastern States, and shipped across the continent. The large passenger steamers must lay in large stocks for consumption on the trips to and from Japan and China.

If there were to be any great demand abroad for canned milk it would not be long before there would be factories on the Pacific coast for the preparation of the article. Condensed milk is used to a considerable extent in California. Besides the demand made by deep water ships, there are a great many ranches in this State where no cows are kept, and where the only milk consumed is that which has been canned on the other side of the country. California is a land of dairies. But there is many a ranch where the dairy is only represented by canned milk prepared more than two thousand miles away.

The Vigilant and Defender.

What if the Vigilant should beat the Defender in the preliminary trial trip? The latter would then be counted out and could not make the race in the contest with the Valkyrie for the American cup. That trial is to come off shortly. The Vigilant has never beaten the Defender, but has given her a close call. Young Gould has spent a great deal of money in trying to show that his boat is the better one. He withdrew her from some of the races, assigning as a reason that the rules of yachting were not observed and his boat was put at odds by a little sharp practice of his rival.

Now if the Vigilant should on the crucial test beat the Defender and thus winning the right to make the contest with the Valkyrie, should then be beaten by the English yacht, there would be some of the loudest marine objurgations ever heard. All that may be possible. As the day approaches for the final contest the interest becomes more intense. The English yachtsmen have been after the American cup for a whole generation. It was won by a schooner. Since which time every possible form of a yacht has been constructed with a pretty steady increase of speed. This latest evolution of a fin keel promises nothing except amusement for rich sports.

Political Reminiscence of Pixley.

Frank Pixley and John F. Swift had been life-long friends. The latter read law in the office of Pixley and had been put in the way by him of making some lucrative investments that were the foundation of his comfortable fortune. Swift had literally been taken from a butcher's block in the market and set upon his feet as a lawyer. He was ambitious and pushing. He had been helped in all his political aspirations by Pixley. Swift finally obtained the nomination for Governor. There was every reason to suppose that Pixley would stand by him, because the two men had always been working on substantially the same political lines Swift at one time ran against a forlorn hope as a candidate for the Assembly in a district where there was a large opposition majority. He was elected as a reformer, Pixley had backed him with all his influence. Swift's record in the Legislature was a good one. He fairly met all the expectations of his friends.

When Swift obtained the nomination for Governor Pixley was among the friends who tendered hearty congratulations. His protege had apparently reached the highest round of the political ladder. There was only one more step to the office of Governor. Soon afterward Swift's nomination was endorsed by the American party. Pixley, while a Republican, had been friendly to the other party and had been doing much for its support. Swift, who was a poor tactician, conceived the idea that this nomination by the American party would hurt his prospects. In a note which was published in the Bulletin he declined the nomination, affirming that he stood only on the Republican platform. It was a clumsy device. He had only to thank the organization for its proffered support, and everybody else who was willing to give him a helping hand. Such a nomination did not compromise him in any way. Moreover, he was more in sympathy with that party than was his successful competitor.

When that foolish note had been published Pixley opened fire on his old friend. He assailed him week after week with such rancor as he knew how to put in the most biting words. There was nothing else in Swift's record to assail. He was practically a clean man. Pixley was able to turn the support of the American party away from Swift, together with that of all the enemies of Sargent who had taken issue with the railroad company. He had the satisfaction of seeing his old friend and protege rolled in the dust of defeat, not because he had deserted any principle, but because he had written an impolitic note that did not please his old benefactor. He therefore turned upon Swift and took his political scalp.

A Voice for Humanity.

While Mr. Gladstone holds no public office, he can still speak in the ear of the civilized world. He never appeared to greater advantage than in his recent plea for the protection of Armenia. He declared that the dispassionate inquiry made after the massacre in that country, the powers of language did not suffice to describe the situation. "This is not the work of the dangerous classes," continued Mr. Gladstone, "but of the government of Constantinople and its agents, and there is not one of their doings for which the government is not responsible. The Kurds, troops, police and tax collectors entered into deadly competition as to which should prove the most adept in this horrible infernal work.

"But, guiltier than they are the higher officials of the government. It is not true that the acts of the Turks were reprisals upon the Armenians for rebelling. On the contrary the Turkish government disarmed the Armenians and then turned out upon them, were the slightest foundation for barbarians and villains. If there were hopes of better government, the Constantinople authorities would be eager to discover and punish the perpetrators of these outrages; but the government only met the allegations made against it with denial and falsehood—weapons familiar to the Turks."

England has done more than any other European power to perpetuate the rule of the Turks in Europe. It may yet do more than any other power to drive the Turk back to Asia from whence he came as a robber. Mr. Gladstone summed up the testimony in four words—Plunder, murder, rape, torture; but plunder and murder were the comparatively mild side of the ravishes and tortures. To the proposition of the Sultan that the demands of England in connection with Russia and France should be moderated, he declared that Turkish promises are not to be accepted. "We must not fear the word 'coercion.' It is a word which is heartily appreciated at Constantinople." The protest of this grand old man has met with a hearty response from all parts of the Christian world. The horrible atrocities in Armenia have been put into an indictment against the Turks, and that now furnishes the best reason for interference by Signatory Powers.

Coming Labor Competition.

Is it any wonder that the Japanese are flocking to this country, where they can earn from $15 to $20 a month, when a common laborer at home can earn but nineteen cents a day? Consul-General McIvor recently reported to the United States government concerning the rate of wages paid to various classes in Japan. A short time ago the statement was made in a public address in San Francisco that on account the cheap labor in Japan, the competition of that country in a large line of manufactured goods would be felt as never before in this country. It is well known that the Japanese are copying all the most important American machines. Here is the list of wages paid in Japan, as reported by the American consul:

The Captain-General Campos has issued a proclamation that hereafter no news of the insurrection in Cuba shall be published except that which is derived from administrative sources. The Spanish organ of this official, Las Novedades, published in New York, seconds the motion:

"General Martinez Campos has not gone through a dozen campaigns for nothing. He knows that while keeping a watchful eye on the enemy in front he must not neglect the enemy in the rear, who is seeking to aid the insurgents by disseminating all sorts of rumors injurious to the Spanish cause. Take away their occupation, General, and put a padlock upon their lips."

But somehow the "padlock" does not hold the lips of these Cubans. Their version of all affairs is just now the one which seems to obtain the greatest currency abroad.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Luther Laflin Mills the Chicago criminal lawyer says that when he was a boy he frequently accompanied his father, who was a wholesale merchant, on collecting tours through the Northwest. They had to travel by wagon, and as the father would have large sums of money about him it was often a problem where they could safely put up for the night. "My boy," the old man used to say, "it is safe to stay at a house where there are flowers in the window."

The amount paid for Carlisle's old home in Chelsea, hereafter to be a museum of relics, was £2869, a little more than $10,000. The house used to rent for $200 a year, and it is not imposing, though it has several stories. It contains nine rooms, and the little "garden" in the rear is a shabby bit of ground unworthy the name. The house has been cleaned (it was formerly tenanted by a woman with numberless cats and dogs), the rooms have been prepared in the style of the Carlyle occupancy, and some pieces of furniture that belonged to the Sage, and a few relics, including a stovepipe hat, have been placed in position.

Mr. Kurino, the Japanese Minister at Washington is very fond of society and is a good deal sought after by entertainers at the Capital. He has been making a tour of the summer resorts and has been a guest at the most exclusive houses in the country.

During the thirty years Ainsworth R. Spofford has been librarian of Congress the number of books in his charge has increased from 70,000 to 700,000.

Mrs. Wentworth, a Philadelphia widow, surprised her friends by decorating her bicycle with crepe when she went cycling a few days after the death of her husband.

Speaker Crisp's father and mother were actors and his older brothers as as well. One of the speaker's earliest recollections is seeing his father play Armand Duval to his mother's Camille.

Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse, born in Elmira, and now a resident of New York City, although of Caucasian ancestry, is a chief and the custodian and adviser of the Six Nations of New York Indians. For three generations her family has held like honors.

It is a common fact, but not generally remembered, that a cock will not crow unless he can throw back his head. If a cock is shut over night in a low coop where he cannot stretch back his neck there will be no crowing in the morning until the bird is released.

Highest Trees in the World.

In the Victorian state forest, on the slopes of the mountains dividing Gipps Land from the rest of the Australian colony of Victoria, grow the highest trees in the world, the noble gum trees of the genus eucalyptus. These trees range from 350 to 500 feet in height. One of the huge trees that had fallen was found by actual measurement with a tape to be 483 feet from the roots to where the trunk had been broken off by the fall, and that point the tree was three feet in diameter. A cedar tree recently felled near Oconta, Wash., measured 467 feet in height and 79 feet in circumference. Dr. James gives interesting particulars of these gum trees. The eucalyptus globulus grew forty feet high in four years in Florida, with a stem a foot in diameter. Trees of the same species in Guatemala grew 120 feet in twelve years and had a stem diameter of nine feet. Other species also attain enormous sizes eucalyptus diversicolor is known to grow 400 feet high and trees have been measured 300 feet long without a branch. Boards twelve feet wide can frequently be obtained. In 1860 a monster petrified tree was found in Baker county, Ore. It was just 666 feet long and at its butt was quite sixty feet in diameter. Arrowlike heads of petrified gum adhered to the sides of the trunk for a distance of 100 feet or more.

Mark Twain's Offer.

Mark Twain has declined perhaps the most tempting offer ever made to a writer of letters, excepting one which he also received and accepted. While he was planning his lecture tour around the world he was asked to furnish twenty letters of about four thousand words each for a lump sum of $10,000 or $500 a letter. Some years ago he accepted a proposition to write twelve European letters, for which he received $1000 apiece, and that is believed to be high water mark for such correspondence.

Mr. Clemens declined this recent proposition because he believed that the labor of travel and the fatigue attendant upon lecturing would make it difficult, if not impossible for him to write in such a manner as he desired to do.

This offer keeps Mr. Clemens well at the head of those who earn with the pen. Kipling's work is not paid for at so high a rate as that offered Mark Twain. His recent contract for his American rights was at the rate of a hundred dollars for a thousand words. One American publisher is prepared to offer Kipling two hundred dollars a thousand words with the exclusive rights both here and in Europe, which would be equivalent to a letter as Mark Twain was asked to furnish while upon his lecturing tour.

Trolley Wires to Come Down.

It has been decided by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia that all overhead trolley, telegraph and telephone wires must be taken down. Under an act of Congress, approved March 2, 1889, the Commissioners "may require all wires to be taken from poles and laid under ground. This law has never been enforced, but the Commissioners have decided to now take action. They have already notified an electric road runing out to Eckington, the home of Kate Chase Sprague, to remove the poles and wires by which the road is operated for a distance of more than three miles. They also informed the Western Union Telegraph Company that the poles on F street must be removed. Similar action will be taken in other cases until all overhead wires are removed.

PEACE CAME AT LAST.

A Husband's Device to Settle Domestic Broils.

A domestic quarrel was terminated the other day in a manner which, though distressing to one of the parties concerned was at least very effective. A young married couple had just had their first quarrel, or rather it was merely a slight tiff, caused by the failure of the young benedict, while in a hurry one morning to kiss his wife as often as she expected when he was going to be gone all day. They could not settle it satisfactorily, and the husband rushed off down town, slamming the door after him and saying something that expressed a great deal. His wife thought he must be very desperate, and from thinking of this began to fear that he would do something terrible. Her fear increased, heightened by her imagination, until visions of James seeking a watery grave in the canal or taking poison or something equally rash became dreadfully vivid, and she expected news to that effect every moment. Finally, when she was at the height of her misery, the bell rang and a telegram was delivered to her. She glanced at it, and then with a scream that James was dead fell over in a faint.

After working with her for some time she was revived and the telegram opened. It read: "Brother is here on a visit. Will bring him home to dinner. James."

And now, says the Louisville Post, there is peace in the household. She declares that this was only a trick of James.

The Cost of Cleaning Berlin.

It is true that municipal affairs are, generally speaking, conducted here more economically and much more thoroughly than is the case in American cities. Thus in 1875 the streets of Berlin, covering a total area of 6,780,000 square metres, were cleaned at an annual expense of 2,000,000 marks ($500,000). Now, the area of Berlin streets, having increased by 1895 to over 8,000,000 square metres, the streets are cleaned for but $400,000—and cleaned, let me say, better than in any other large city in the world. This is due to system, to the excellent pavements, constantly renewed and mended, and to machine sweeping, which costs 60 per cent less than the sweeping done by hand. It is the same with street sprinkling. This is done during the season whenever needed; on hot, dusty days twice, and 1,200,000 cubic metres of water are used up in the thorough system of sprinkling between April 1st and November 15th. The city does it at an expense of but 2,364,000 marks this year.—Chicago Record's Berlin Correspondence.

MORESI'S PARLOR.

A Cosy, Hospitable Place for the Thirsty.

The coziest place in all Oakland wherein to retire for a good drink and a palatable bite is J. D. Moresi's parlor at Ninth and Washington streets. Mr. Moresi is a genial, hospitable host who is making many business friendships because of his urbanity and courtesy. He keeps nothing but the very finest wines, liquors and cigars in stock. His barkeeper, Emil Le Frotte, is an adept mixologist who can put up a mixed drink that is a dream to the palate. Mr. Moresi prides himself on his famous Imperial gin fizz—it is well worth trying. Mr. Moresi's proximity to the business community makes his place very convenient, and he deserves well of everybody.

Accordian Pleating.

Miss Alice Gray is an accomplished artiste in accordian pleating and is the only lady in Oakland who does this pretty and diligent work here. Her prices are very reasonable. TUESDAY.....AUGUST 13, 1895.

The shipments of fresh fruit from California to London have not been thus far attended with such success as to warrant the inference that a lucrative fruit trade can be prosecuted in that direction. It is the old story of spoiled fruit. It is doubtful if there is any known process by which fruit can be shipped from this State to London in uniform good order. The packages that turn out well do not sell for enough to cover the losses on the spoiled fruit and still leave a margin of profit. This is about a fair statement up to date.

There is very little basis for the suggestion that ex-President Harrison may be nominated for the Supreme Bench to succeed the late Justice Jackson. The latter, although a Democrat, was nominated by Harrison. There were no politics in the nomination. A Southern man was wanted. Jackson had a good record. His nomination gave good satisfaction, save to a few radicals. Harrison is looking for a still higher nomination. It is not at all likely that he would accept a nomination to the Supreme Court if tendered to him, nor is it likely that any such tender will ever be made.

At last there has been a movement on the part of the municipal authorities for securing the Wilmerding school for this city. Prof. Edwards of the Board of Education, has been appointed a committee of one to confer with the Regents and to learn more specifically what are the conditions for securing the location. In a general way it is known that nothing less than the tender of a block of land will meet the case. But the tender of the old High School building might meet a temporary want so well as to be a strong attraction. But if a block of land were added the whole matter might soon be settled.

Canned Milk for the Orient.

As the Asiatics are taking kindly to wheat flour as the increased orders indicate, the Tacoma News suggests that condensed milk might be made an important article of commerce. The steamers leaving that port frequently carry consignments of canned milk to the value of many thousand of dollars. This milk is prepared in the middle and eastern States, and shipped across the continent. The large passenger steamers must lay in large stocks for consumption on the trips to and from Japan and China.

If there were to be any great demand abroad for canned milk it would not be long before there would be factories on the Pacific coast for the preparation of the article. Condensed milk is used to a considerable extent in California. Besides the demand made by deep water ships, there are a great many ranches in this State where no cows are kept, and where the only milk consumed is that which has been canned on the other side of the country. California is a land of dairies. But there is many a ranch where the dairy is only represented by canned milk prepared more than two thousand miles away.

The Vigilant and Defender.

What if the Vigilant should beat the Defender in the preliminary trial trip? The latter would then be counted out and could not make the race in the contest with the Valkyrie for the American cup. That trial is to come off shortly. The Vigilant has never beaten the Defender, but has given her a close call. Young Gould has spent a great deal of money in trying to show that his boat is the better one. He withdrew her from some of the races, assigning as a reason that the rules of yachting were not observed and his boat was put at odds by a little sharp practice of his rival.

Now if the Vigilant should on the crucial test beat the Defender and thus winning the right to make the contest with the Valkyrie, should then be beaten by the English yacht, there would be some of the loudest marine objurgations ever heard. All that may be possible. As the day approaches for the final contest the interest becomes more intense. The English yachtsmen have been after the American cup for a whole generation. It was won by a schooner. Since which time every possible form of a yacht has been constructed with a pretty steady increase of speed. This latest evolution of a fin keel promises nothing except amusement for rich sports.

Political Reminiscence of Pixley.

Frank Pixley and John F. Swift had been life-long friends. The latter read law in the office of Pixley and had been put in the way by him of making some lucrative investments that were the foundation of his comfortable fortune. Swift had literally been taken from a butcher's block in the market and set upon his feet as a lawyer. He was ambitious and pushing. He had been helped in all his political aspirations by Pixley. Swift finally obtained the nomination for Governor. There was every reason to suppose that Pixley would stand by him, because the two men had always been working on substantially the same political lines. Swift at one time ran against a forlorn hope as a candidate for the Assembly in a district where there was a large opposition majority. He was elected as a reformer. Pixley had backed him with all his influence. Swift's record in the Legislature was a good one. He fairly met all the expectations of his friends.

When Swift obtained the nomination for Governor Pixley was among the friends who tendered hearty congratulations. His protege had apparently reached the highest round of the political ladder. There was only one more step to the office of Governor. Soon afterward Swift's nomination was endorsed by the American party. Pixley, while a Republican, had been friendly to the other party and had been doing much for its support. Swift, who was a poor tactician, conceived the idea that this nomination by the American party would hurt his prospects. In a note which was published in the Bulletin he declined the nomination, affirming that he stood only on the Republican platform. It was a clumsy device. He had only to thank the organization for its proffered support, and everybody else who was willing to give him a helping hand. Such a nomination did not compromise him in any way. Moreover, he was more in sympathy with that party than was his successful competitor.

When that foolish note had been published Pixley opened fire on his old friend. He assailed him week after week with such rancor as he knew how to put in the most biting words. There was nothing else in Swift's record to assail. He was practically a clean man. Pixley was able to turn the support of the American party away from Swift, together with that of all the enemies of Sargent who had taken issue with the railroad company. He had the satisfaction of seeing his old friend and protege rolled in the dust of defeat, not because he had deserted any principle, but because he had written an impolitic note that did not please his old benefactor. He therefore turned upon Swift and took his political scalp.

A Voice for Humanity.

While Mr Gladstone holds no public office, he can still speak in the ear of the civilized world. He never appeared to greater advantage than in his recent plea for the protection of Armenia. He declared that the dispassionate inquiry made after the massacre in that country, the powers of language did not suffice to describe the situation. "This is not the work of the dangerous classes," continued Mr Gladstone, "but of the government of Constantinople and its agents, and there is not one of their doings for which the government is not responsible. The Kurds, troops, police and tax collectors entered into deadly competition as to which should prove the most adept in this horrible infernal work.

"But, guiltier than they are the higher officials of the government. It is not true that the acts of the Turks were reprisals upon the Armenians for rebelling. On the contrary the Turkish government disarmed the Armenians and then turned out upon them, were the slightest foundation for barbarians and villains. If there were hopes of better government, the Constantinople authorities would be eager to discover and punish the perpetrators of these outrages; but the government only met the allegations made against it with denial and falsehood—weapons familiar to the Turks."

England has done more than any other European power to perpetuate the rule of the Turks in Europe. It may yet do more than any other power to drive the Turk back to Asia from whence he came as a robber. Mr. Gladstone summed up the testimony in four words—Plunder, murder, rape, torture, but plunder and murder were the comparatively mild side of the ravishes and tortures. To the proposition of the Sultan that the demands of England in connection with Russia and France should be moderated, he declared that Turkish promises are not to be accepted. "We must not fear the word 'coercion.' It is a word which is heartily appreciated at Constantinople." The protest of this grand old man has met with a hearty response from all parts of the Christian world. The horrible atrocities in Armenia have been put into an indictment against the Turks, and that now furnishes the best reason for interference by Signatory Powers.

Coming Labor Competition.

Is it any wonder that the Japanese are flocking to this country, where they can earn from $15 to $20 a month, when a common laborer at home can earn but nineteen cents a day? Consul-General McIvor recently reported to the United States government concerning the rate of wages paid to various classes in Japan. A short time ago the statement was made in a public address in San Francisco that on account the cheap labor in Japan, the competition of that country in a large line of manufactured goods would be felt as never before in this country. It is well known that the Japanese are copying all the most important American machines. Here is the list of wages paid in Japan, as reported by the American consul:

The Captain-General Campos has issued a proclamation that hereafter no news of the insurrection in Cuba shall be published except that which is derived from administrative sources. The Spanish organ of this official, Las Novedades, published in New York, seconds the motion:

"General Martinez Campos has not gone through a dozen campaigns for nothing. He knows that while keeping a watchful eye on the enemy in front he must not neglect the enemy in the rear, who is seeking to aid the insurgents by disseminating all sorts of rumors injurious to the Spanish cause. Take away their occupation, General, and put a padlock upon their lips."

But somehow the "padlock" does not hold the lips of these Cubans. Their version of all affairs is just now the one which seems to obtain the greatest currency abroad.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

Luther Laflin Mills the Chicago criminal lawyer says that when he was a boy he frequently accompanied his father, who was a wholesale merchant, on collecting tours through the Northwest. They had to travel by wagon, and as the father would have large sums of money about him it was often a problem where they could safely put up for the night. "My boy," the old man used to say, "it is safe to stay at a house where there are flowers in the window."

The amount paid for Carlisle's old home in Chelsea, to be after to be a museum of relics, was £30,000, a little more than $150,000. The house used to rent for $200 a year, and it is not imposing, though it has several stories. It contains nine rooms, and the little "garden" in the rear is a shabby bit of ground unworthy the name. The house has been cleaned. It was formerly tenanted by a woman with numberless cats and dogs), the rooms have been prepared in the style of the Carlyle occupancy, and some pieces of furniture that belonged to the Sage, and a few relics, including a stovepipe hat, have been placed in position.

Mr. Kurino, the Japanese Minister at Washington is very fond of society and is a good deal sought after by entertainers at the Capital. He has been making a tour of the summer resorts and has been a guest at the most exclusive houses in the country.

During the thirty years Ainsworth R. Spofford has been librarian of Congress the number of books in his charge has increased from 70,000 to 700,000.

Mrs. Wentworth, a Philadelphia widow, surprised her friends by decorating her bicycle with crepe when she went cycling a few days after the death of her husband.

Speaker Crisp's father and mother were actors and his older brothers as well. One of the speaker's earliest recollections is seeing his father play Armand Duval to his mother's Camille.

Mrs. Harriet Maxwell Converse, born in Elmira, and now a resident of New York City, although of Caucasian ancestry, is a chief and the custodian and adviser of the Six Nations of New York Indians. For three generations her family has held like honors.

It is a common fact, but not generally remembered, that a cock will not crow unless he can throw back his head. If a cock is shut over night in a low coop where he cannot stretch back his cock there will be no crowing in the morning until the bird is released.

Highest Trees in the World.

In the Victorian state forest, on the slopes of the mountains dividing Gipps Land from the rest of the Australian colony of Victoria grow the highest trees in the world, the noble gum trees of the genus eucalyptus. These trees range from 350 to 700 feet in height. One of the huge trees that had fallen was found by actual measurement with a tape to be 433 feet from the roots to where the trunk had been broken off by the fall, and that point the tree was three feet in diameter. A cedar tree recently felled near Oceola, Wash. measured 167 feet in height and 70 feet in circumference. Dr. James gives interesting particulars of these gum trees. The eucalyptus globulus grew forty feet high in four years in Florida, with a stem a foot in diameter. Trees of the same species in Guatemala grew 120 feet in twelve years and had a stem diameter of nine feet. Other species also attain enormous sizes. eucalyptus diversicolor is known to grow 400 feet high and trees have been measured 300 feet long without a branch. Boards twelve feet wide can frequently be obtained. In 1860 a monster petrified tree was found in Baker county, Ore. It was just 666 feet long and at its butt was quite sixty feet in diameter. Amber-like beads of petrified gum adhered to the sides of the trunk for a distance of 100 feet or more.

Mark Twain's Offer.

Mark Twain has declined perhaps the most tempting offer ever made to a writer of letters, excepting one which he also received and accepted. While he was planning his lecture tour around the world he was asked to furnish twenty letters of about four thousand words each for a lump sum of $10,000 or $500 a letter. Some years ago he accepted a proposition to write twelve European letters, for which he received $1000 apiece, and that is believed to be high water mark for such correspondence.

Mr. Clemens declined this recent proposition because he believed that the labor of travel and the fatigue attendant upon lecturing would make it difficult, if not impossible for him to write in such a manner as he desired to do.

This offer keeps Mr. Clemens well at the head of those who earn with the pen. Kipling's work is not paid for at so high a rate as that offered Mark Twain. His recent contract for his American rights was at the rate of a hundred dollars for a thousand words. One American publisher is prepared to offer Kipling two hundred dollars a thousand words with the exclusive rights both here and in Europe, which would be equivalent to a letter as Mark Twain was asked to furnish while upon his lecturing tour.

Trolley Wires to Come Down.

It has been decided by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia that all overhead trolley, telegraph and telephone wires must be taken down. Under an act of Congress, approved March 2, 1889, the Commissioners "may require all wires to be taken from poles and laid under ground. This law has never been enforced, but the Commissioners have decided to now take action. They have already notified an electric road runing out to Eckington, the home of Kate Chase Sprague, to remove the poles and wires by which the road is operated for a distance of more than three miles. They also informed the Western Union Telegraph Company that the poles on F street must be removed. Similar action will be taken in other cases until all over head wires are removed.

PEACE CAME AT LAST.

A Husband's Device to Settle Domestic Broils.

A domestic quarrel was terminated the other day in a manner which, though distressing to one of the parties concerned was at least very effective. A young married couple had just had their first quarrel, or rather it was merely a slight tiff, caused by the failure of the young benedict, while in a hurry one morning to kiss his wife as often as she expected when he was going to be gone all day. They could not settle it satisfactorily, and the husband rushed off down town, slamming the door after him and saying something that expressed a great deal. His wife thought he must be very desperate, and from thinking of this began to fear that he would do something terrible. Her fear increased, heightened by her imagination, until visions of James seeking a watery grave in the canal or taking poison or something equally rash became dreadfully vivid, and she expected news to that effect every moment. Finally, when she was at the height of her misery, the bell rang and a telegram was delivered to her. She glanced at it, and then with a scream that James was dead fell over in a faint.

After working with her for some time she was revived and the telegram opened. It read: "Brother is here on a visit. Will bring him home to dinner. James."

And now, says the Louisville Post, there is peace in the household. She declares that this was only a trick of James.

The Cost of Cleaning Berlin.

It is true that municipal affairs are, generally speaking, conducted here more economically and much more thoroughly than is the case in American cities. Thus in 1875 the streets of Berlin, covering a total area of 6,780,000 square metres, were cleaned at an annual expense of 2,000,000 marks ($500,000). Now, the area of Berlin streets, having increased by 1895 to over 8,000,000 square metres, the streets are cleaned for but $400,000—and cleaned, let me say, better than in any other large city in the world. This is due to system, to the excellent pavements, constantly renewed and mended, and to machine sweeping, which costs 60 per cent less than the sweeping done by hand. It is the same with street sprinkling. This is done during the season whenever needed; on hot, dusty days twice, and 1,200,000 cubic metres of water are used up in the thorough system of sprinkling between April 1st and November 15th. The city does it at an expense of but 2,264,000 marks this year.—Chicago Record's Berlin Correspondence.

PURITY GUARANTEED.

THE GARBAGE GRUMBLE.

Ideas Advanced at the Special Session of the Council.

Temporary Relief to Be Given Pending Further Inquiries.

The City Council attempted to do something in reference to the disposal of garbage last evening and partly succeeded. There was a big crowd of people in the lobby, prominent citizens, doctors, crematory agents, and so forth. Mrs. Dr. Shuey, with a couple of lady friends, occupied a seat inside the rail.

First a long message was read from the Mayor recommending that garbage dumping be prohibited in the vicinity of the Tompkins school and suggesting that a crematory was the most feasible method of disposing of garbage.

Mr. Bassett started the discussion in reference to a crematory by reading from a newspaper in reference to crematories at Pittsburg and Atlantic City. The latter has two furnaces. A fifty-ton furnace was built at a cost of $9,000 and a larger one cost $12,000. There it costs 30 cents a ton to cremate garbage. In Pittsburg 25 cents and in Chicago 80 cents.

Mr Heitmann in some complimentary remarks called on Dr. D. D. Crowley, ex-health officer, for his opinion on the subject. Dr. Crowley traced the successive efforts that had been made to induce the proper authorities to procure a crematory for this city. The agitation on the subject commenced six or seven years ago, when Dr. Crowley was health officer. In 1890 he had recommended the purchase of a crematory for $8,000 and said at that time two or three men could do the work. In conclusion Dr. Crowley said: "I desire to state to the best of my knowledge this city must procure a crematory for the disposal of its garbage, or before many months it will find itself in a very unsanitary condition. I do not know at present what crematory you should purchase. You might be just as good a judge of that as I am. I have given the matter some thought in years past and feel that you cannot go much longer without a crematory for the purpose of destroying the garbage of our city. The idea some people have that a crematory will cause a most disagreeable odor is not the correct one."

Mr. Mott called upon ex-Health Officer Frank Adams, who succeeded Dr. Crowley, for some remarks. He said: "Oakland stands high in health reports. Nature has done more for us than we have ourselves. For years past Oakland has been suffering in the health reports by reason of unnecessary deaths caused by improper sanitation. We are far behind the times when we established within our city limits dumping grounds such as we have on Peralta street. While a member of the Board of Health I maintained, and I believe I was right, that the Councilmen were committing a moral wrong when they permitted a nuisance of that kind to be committed within the city limits, and I believe the courts would restrain it if an action were brought."

THE COUNCIL COMMITTEE.

Mr. Mott said the special committee having the subject in charge had not as yet fully determined upon a crematory, the principle obstacle in the way being its cost. He suggested that dumpings of garbage be covered with chloride of lime and street sweepings or earth.

Mr. Dow said he understood the object of the meeting to be to arrange for the temporary disposal of garbage for a few weeks.

Mr. Bassett called upon Dr. Buckland, the member from the Fifth ward.

Dr. Buckland said that while he had told Dr. Mayon that he would not fight the garbage crematory, yet he would not vote for it at present. He believed crematories are in an experimental state. Los Angeles does not use its expensive crematory, the cause he did not know. That city now burns its garbage with petroleum, the residue being covered with earth. He had visited the Alameda dumps where garbage is burned every day and found them in a perfect sanitary state. In regard to Oakland he suggested that surveys be made for the three proposed streets through the West Oakland marsh, excavate two feet deep where the streets are to be, put earth on either side of th excavation, and let the garbage be deposited there and burned, then covered with earth. Two men at $60 a month each would be sufficient labor to employ in the work. In answer to Mr. Bassett the speaker said the streets would be probably a quarter of a mile each in length. A garbage crematory would cost nearly $12,000 a year to maintain.

Then A Kahn, of the well-known dry goods firm spoke. Mr. Kahn's sister, Mrs. Katten, while visiting at his residence, corner Eighth and Linden streets recently, lost her three-year old child from an attack of diphtheria. Mr. Kahn said he attributed the child's death entirely to the Fourth ward dumps. The stench from these for the past few weeks had been unbearable. Parents, he said, could stand the cost better than they could the loss of their children. The matter had already been delayed too long. Mr. Kahn's remarks were forcible and to the point, and the lobby, apparently in sympathy with him, applauded.

A TEMPORARY PROJECT.

Mr. Bassett asked Health Officer Mayon what he would suggest as a temporary relief. The doctor replied that it could be destroyed with petroleum and covered with earth, but a crematory, he said, is the only satisfactory solution of the difficulty. It is a scientific fact, he remarked, that children cannot live in buildings built over garbage dumps and graveyards.

In answer to Mr. Mott the doctor said the danger from garbage dumpings could hardly be overcome in twenty years. Dr. Simpson of San Francisco had estimated that it would require a lapse of forty years before it would be safe to live over a graveyard. Dr. Mayon thought a garbage dump was just as bad and this, notwithstanding the garbage is sprinkled with chloride of lime and covered with sweepings. To Mr. Bassett the doctor said the dumping of garbage is regulated by ordinance and the State law.

"We can't amend the state law tonight," remarked Mr. Bassett. "We can do almost anything, but that is beyond us."

Mr. Heitmann said he was in favor of a crematory first, last and all the time, but for a temporary expedient he favored delegating power to the Mayor to employ scows and have the garbage of the city towed to the sea.

Mr. Brosnahan, who was presiding, took the floor to say the subject was one requiring immediate action. Owing to the large amount of decayed fruit and other material dumped in the Fourth ward the stench is almost unbearable. The residents last Friday and Saturday evenings wanted to arrest several scavengers who were dumping garbage. Action, however, had been postponed, but the Fourth ward people were determined to have their place of residence made a dumping ground no longer. "If you don't do something tonight," said Mr. Brosnahan, "the people will swear out warrants tomorrow, and I'll be with them when they are sworn out."

A. B. Tennant, who wants to contract with the city for the disposal of its garbage, said he could commence hauling it out of the city as soon as a platform could be constructed. He proposed to carry the garbage on cars eight or nine miles beyond Highland and cover it with fresh earth. People do not live within nearly four miles of the proposed dumping ground.

"You would be arrested in six hours," said Mr. Bassett brusquely.

After some further discussion the special committee having charge of the subject was empowered, in conjunction with the health officer, to take immediate steps for the disposal of garbage until the next meeting of the Council.

Jacob Lent, of the Odorless Crematory Company, explained at length his design.

Charles Alpers, of San Francisco, followed. Mr. Alpers spoke forcibly in favor of carrying garbage to sea and said he would make a proposition for a contract of that sort when the proper time arrived. Any attempts to build a crematory in this city, he said, would be greeted with a storm of protests from those living in the locality where it might be proposed to construct it.

The arteslan well boring at Montague will be started again, as soon as S. D. Prather gets well enough from his late severe illness to attend to business. The well bore reached 1200 feet when he was taken sick, at which time the work was temporarily suspended. Sam feels very confident of being able to strike oil in paying quantity, and as soon as he goes to Oakland, expects to induce the company to continue operations. The well was started for a water supply and a good flow has been anticipated all the time after reaching 1000 feet, although oil would suit better at any depth within 2000 feet.—Yreka Journal.

Oakland is calling the attention of whom it may concern to the fact that its subscription to the stock of the Valley railroad are now null and void, because the stipulations have not been carried out, and so we may expect to see that city pull the string that has all the time been tied to its public spirited gift.—Alameda Argus.

Dr. J. T. McLean of Alameda has been reelected president of the Coulterville and Yosemite Turnpike company.—Mariposa Gazette.

Congressman Hilborn will visit Alameda and confer with its people as to their needs in relation to national affairs before he leaves for Washington. There will be an opportunity to urge the completion of the tidal canal—Alameda Telegram.

J. J. McSorley, superintendent of the Ophir Mountain mine, will resign the superintendency in favor of a Mr. Ball of Oakland who will be up next week and take charge. His reason for giving up the management is because as he is also superintendent of the Green Mountain mine, and as the two properties are situated far apart his duties were more than he could attend to.—Mariposa Gazette.

The scavengers are on a strike in Oakland. They are offended at an order of the City Council prohibiting the dumping of garbage within the limits of that city. Blessed is the strike! It is within the reach of every class and all conditions of men. It would not be surprising to hear of the gentlemen who have leisure and consume it in sitting on park benches and picturesque packing cases, indulging in a "lockout" because the sents are not of soft wood, or the foliage that furnishes shade not thick enough.—Alameda Argus.

One trustee of the Oakland public library was able to induce his colleagues to engage a man from abroad as curator of the reference department of the library. Is is possible that no Oaklander is capable of drawing $75 a month salary for lowering books one story on a dumbwaiter? A $30-a-month boy did tais before the advert of the stranger and did it satisfactorily. This injection of a man from abroad into a city position has a job-like odor. It will admit of investigation and discussion.—East Oakland Mail.

About eleven men are at present employed at the Green Mountain mine, but Superintendent McSorley says that as soon as Captain J. W. Smith one of the principal owners, who has been very sick for the past five weeks in Oakland, is able to get around, a full force of thirty men will be put on.—Mariposa Gazette.

We learn that the Shepard mine near the Banner Mill has been sold to Messrs Rigney and Lindsey of Oakland, who are also the largest owners in the famous North Bloomfield mines. The sale was made through J. J. McSorley of the Green Mountain mine.—Mariposa Gazette.

COUNTY WORK.

Matters of Public Note That Came Up Before the Board.

At the afternoon session of the Board of Supervisors yesterday it was announced that bids for the erection of the culvert over Sausal creek on San Leandro road will be received by the county clerk up to 11 o'clock A. M. Monday, August 26th.

F. R. Porter argued in favor of his claims for $80 for publishing notices to taxpayers in Echoes. The claims were taken under advisement.

The District Attorney rendered an opinion that the law creating the office of fish and game warden is constitutional and that the appointment of such officer for this county was legally performed by the Supervisors. The opinion was filed.

A similar opinion was rendered with opinion that the claims of Dr. Rahe and Dr. Blood for $50 each, for reporting upon the physical condition of Murderer Jones in the county jail, may be paid by the board, if the same are not considered excessive.

A similar opinion was rendered with reference to the claim of Judge Penwell of $20 for a docket.

The opinions were filed.

A petition from S. E. Meyer and others for the opening of Peralta street from Hopkins street was read and the applicants were required to file the necessary bonds in the premises.

The board adjourned until Monday next.

"FOR purity and care in preparation the ROYAL BAKING POWDER equals any in the market, and our test shows that it has greater leavening power than any of which we have any knowledge."

BIG CLASSES.

About 650 Freshmen This Year at the State University.

Fall examinations for freshmen are in progress at Berkeley under Professors Bradley, Edwards and Hongstler. About 400 applicants are on hand to take the examinations. This does not include the large number of those who enter on recommendations. In all the freshman class will number nearly 650 students, of which a fair proportion are co-eds.

This will necessitate the dividing of the present battalion of six companies into two battalions of four companies each.

There are all told over 1200 students to begin work at the 'gym,' and as there are only 603 lockers Instructor Magee is temporarily stumped. The required lockers will doubtless be furnished.

CARELESS CLERKS.

The Records of the Police Court Not Written Up.

It has been discovered that the records of the Police Court for several years back are not written up and as a consequence only one of the five prior convictions against the Holland brothers, now on trial in the Superior Court, can be presented. The original papers in the case have also been mislaid.

Ex-Police Court Clerk Lambert left eight months of unwritten records and some of the clerks who were before him under different judges, were just as careless. Clerk Crawford, however, has diligently written up the matters under his charge and no blame can be attached to him.

MARRIED FOR MONEY.

A Tale of Domestic Unhappiness Briefly Told.

Antone Breeves, a young Portuguese, married pretty 16-year-old Mary Rose six months ago, telling her he was worth lots of money. Mary after the marriage found he was all but penniless and returned to the home of her uncle, a prosperous rancher in the Piedmont Hills. Her husband has called at the place nearly every day since, and Saturday when she refused to return home with him he severely beat her. Deputy Constable Hitchcock took him into custody.

MELQUIOND FREED.

The Court Finds the Evidence Insufficient to Convict.

Cyr Melquiond was brought into the police court this morning to answer the charges of his wife, who claims that he attempted to leave the State to avoid paying $3,657 due her as alimony.

On the stand she objected to being called the wife of the defendant and was rather harsh in her remarks about him. "I had heard that he intended to leave the State," she said, "and knowing the kind of man he was and how he had sold my property I immediately had him arrested." The court ordered the case dismissed.

Boyer Causing Trouble.

Mrs. Dollie Jackson was at the police court today asking for a warrant for the arrest of ex-special Police Officer Boyer. She claims that the attentions of the gay officer have become obnoxious and that his remarks regarding her are causing trouble between herself and husband.

A Silver Meeting.

Friends of silver and members of the Silver League will meet at the Council chamber in the City Hall, Oakland, Friday evening, August 16th, 1895, at 8 o'clock P. M., to select thirty delegates from Oakland to the silver convention to be held at San Francisco Monday, August 19th 1895. A full attendance is requested.

Silva Must Stand Trial.

The examination of Joe Silva, who shot Daniel Jones on the Market street wharf, was held this morning in the police court. Silva conducted his own defense, which consisted mostly in trying to show that one oath instead of another was used by him. He was held to answer before the Superior Court.

THE GARBAGE GRUMBLE.

Ideas Advanced at the Special Session of the Council.

Temporary Relief to Be Given Pending Further Inquiries.

The City Council attempted to do something in reference to the disposal of garbage last evening and partly succeeded. There was a big crowd of people in the lobby, prominent citizens, doctors, crematory agents, and so forth. Mrs. Dr. Shuey, with a couple of lady friends, occupied a seat inside the rail.

First a long message was read from the Mayor recommending that garbage dumping be prohibited in the vicinity of the Tompkins school and suggesting that a crematory was the most feasible method of disposing of garbage.

Mr. Bassett started the discussion in reference to a crematory by reading from a newspaper in reference to crematories at Pittsburg and Atlantic City. The latter has two furnaces. A fifty-ton furnace was built at a cost of $9,000 and a larger one cost $12,000. There it costs 30 cents a ton to cremate garbage. In Pittsburg 25 cents and in Chicago 80 cents.

Mr. Heitmann in some complimentary remarks called on Dr. D. D. Crowley, ex-health officer, for his opinion on the subject. Dr. Crowley traced the successive efforts that had been made to induce the proper authorities to procure a crematory for this city. The agitation on the subject commenced six or seven years ago, when Dr. Crowley was health officer. In 1890 he had recommended the purchase of a crematory for $8,000 and said at that time two or three men could do the work. In conclusion Dr. Crowley said: "I desire to state to the best of my knowledge this city must procure a crematory for the disposal of its garbage, or before many months it will find itself in a very unsanitary condition. I do not know at present what crematory you should purchase. You might be just as good a judge of that as I am. I have given the matter some thought in years past and feel that you cannot go much longer without a crematory for the purpose of destroying the garbage of our city. The idea some people have that a crematory will cause a most disagreeable odor is not the correct one."

Mr. Mott called upon ex-Health Officer Frank Adams, who succeeded Dr. Crowley, for some remarks. He said: "Oakland stands high in health reports. Nature has done more for us than we have ourselves. For years past Oakland has been suffering in the health reports by reason of unnecessary deaths caused by improper sanitation. We are far behind the times when we established within our city limits dumping grounds such as we have on Peralta street. While a member of the Board of Health I maintained, and I believe I was right, that the Councilmen were committing a moral wrong when they permitted a nuisance of that kind to be committed within the city limits, and I believe the courts would restrain it if an action were brought."

THE COUNCIL COMMITTEE.

Mr. Mott said the special committee having the subject in charge had not as yet fully determined upon a crematory, the principle obstacle in the way being its cost. He suggested that dumpings of garbage be covered with chloride of lime and street sweepings or earth.

Mr. Dow said he understood the object of the meeting to be to arrange for the temporary disposal of garbage for a few weeks.

Mr. Bassett called upon Dr. Buckland, the member from the Fifth ward.

Dr. Buckland said that while he had told Dr. Mayon that he would not fight the garbage crematory, yet he would not vote for it at present. He believed crematories are in an experimental state. Los Angeles does not use its expensive crematory, the cause he did not know. That city now burns its garbage with petroleum, the residue being covered with earth. He had visited the Alameda dumps where garbage is burned every day and found them in a perfect sanitary state. In regard to Oakland he suggested that surveys be made for the three proposed streets through the West Oakland marsh, excavate two feet deep where the streets are to be, put earth on either side of th excavation, and let the garbage be deposited there and burned, then covered with earth. Two men at $60 a month each would be sufficient labor to employ in the work. In answer to Mr. Bassett the speaker said the streets would be probably a quarter of a mile each in length. A garbage crematory would cost nearly $12,000 a year to maintain.

Then A. Kahn, of the well-known dry goods firm spoke. Mr. Kahn's sister, Mrs. Katten, while visiting at his residence, corner Eighth and Linden streets recently, lost her three-year old child from an attack of diphtheria. Mr. Kahn said he attributed the child's death entirely to the Fourth ward dumps. The stench from these for the past few weeks had been unbearable. Parents, he said, could stand the cost better than they could the loss of their children. The matter had already been delayed too long. Mr. Kahn's remarks were forcible and to the point, and the lobby, apparently in sympathy with him, applauded.

A TEMPORARY PROJECT.

Mr. Bassett asked Health Officer Mayon what he would suggest as a temporary relief. The doctor replied that it could be destroyed with petroleum and covered with earth, but a crematory, he said, is the only satisfactory solution of the difficulty. It is a scientific fact, he remarked, that children cannot live in buildings built over garbage dumps and graveyards.

In answer to Mr. Mott the doctor said the danger from garbage dumpings could hardly be overcome in twenty years. Dr. Simpson of San Francisco had estimated that it would require a lapse of forty years before it would be safe to live over a graveyard. Dr. Mayon thought a garbage dump was just as bad and this, notwithstanding the garbage is sprinkled with chloride of lime and covered with sweepings. To Mr. Bassett the doctor said the dumping of garbage is regulated by ordinance and the State law.

"We can't amend the state law tonight," remarked Mr. Bassett. "We can do almost anything, but that is beyond us."

Mr. Heitmann said he was in favor of a crematory first, last and all the time, but for a temporary expedient he favored delegating power to the Mayor to employ scows and have the garbage of the city towed to the sea.

Mr. Brosnahan, who was presiding, took the floor to say the subject was one requiring immediate action. Owing to the large amount of decayed fruit and other material dumped in the Fourth ward the stench is almost unbearable. The residents last Friday and Saturday evenings wanted to arrest several scavengers who were dumping garbage. Action, however, had been postponed, but the Fourth ward people were determined to have their place of residence made a dumping ground no longer. "If you don't do something tonight," said Mr. Brosnahan, "the people will swear out warrants tomorrow, and I'll be with them when they are sworn out."

A. B. Tennant, who wants to contract with the city for the disposal of its garbage, said he could commence hauling it out of the city as soon as a platform could be constructed. He proposed to carry the garbage on cars eight or nine miles beyond Highland and cover it with fresh earth. People do not live within nearly four miles of the proposed dumping ground.

"You would be arrested in six hours," said Mr. Bassett brusquely.

After some further discussion the special committee having charge of the subject was empowered, in conjunction with the health officer, to take immediate steps for the disposal of garbage until the next meeting of the Council.

Then the Council listened to suggestions for the destroyal of refuse.

Jacob Lent, of the Odorless Crematory Company, explained at length his design.

Charles Alpers, of San Francisco, followed. Mr Alpers spoke forcibly in favor of carrying garbage to sea and said he would make a proposition for a contract of that sort when the proper time arrived. Any attempts to build a crematory in this city, he said, would be greeted with a storm of protests from those living in the locality where it might be proposed to construct it.

The artesian well boring at Montague will be started again, as soon as S. D. Prather gets well enough from his late severe illness to attend to business. The well bore reached 1200 feet when he was taken sick, at which time the work was temporarily suspended. Sam feels very confident of being able to strike oil in paying quantity, and as soon as he goes to Oakland, expects to induce the company to continue operations. The well was started for a water supply and a good flow has been anticipated all the time after reaching 1000 feet, although oil would suit better at any depth within 2000 feet.—Yreka Journal.

Oakland is calling the attention of whom it may concern to the fact that its subscription to the stock of the Valley railroad are now null and void, because the stipulations have not been carried out, and so we may expect to see that city pull the string that has all the time been tied to its public spirited gift.—Alameda Argus.

Congressman Hilborn will visit Alameda and confer with its people as to their needs in relation to national affairs before he leaves for Washington. There will be an opportunity to urge the completion of the tidal canal—Alameda Telegram.

J. J. McSorley, superintendent of the Ophir Mountain mine, will resign the superintendency in favor of a Mr. Ball of Oakland who will be up next week and take charge. His reason for giving up the management is because as he is also superintendent of the Green Mountain mine, and as the two properties are situated far apart his duties were more than he could attend to.—Mariposa Gazette.

The scavengers are on a strike in Oakland. They are offended at an order of the City Council prohibiting the dumping of garbage within the limits of that city. Blessed is the strike! It is within the reach of every class and all conditions of men. It would not be surprising to hear of the gentlemen who have leisure and consume it in sitting on park benches and picturesque packing cases, indulging in a "lockout" because the seats are not of soft wood, or the foliage that furnishes shade not thick enough.—Alameda Argus.

THE LOUVRE.

Several Attractions of a Popular Oakland Resort.

For a clear, rich draught of foaming lager, a dish of succulent oysters, and an appetizing, well-served supper of many courses, at reasonable prices, the Mecca of the good liver in Oakland is the far-famed Louvre next to the Macdonough Theater. There everything is served well; the waiters are polite and intelligent; there are private rooms for families; and everything about the place suggests comfort, elegance and ease. The Louvre stands alone. It is the ideal resort for families and theater goers.

Above all others, SPERRY'S FAMILY FLOUR.

"REBELLIOUS SUSAN."

The First of the Lyceum Plays Is to Be Given Tonight.

Fine Attractions Demand Attention at the Leading Theaters.

The comedy, "The Case of Rebellious Susan," which Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Company offers here this evening, is filled with bright speeches as well as laughable situations. To one who is used to the usual work which comes from the pen of its author, Henry Arthur Jones, the following quotations will be in the nature of a surprise, for his style has heretofore been sombre and his situations thrilling. Yet it is one of many such light, graceful and thoroughly comedy speeches. It is regarding the pretensions of the "new woman."

"There is an immense future for a man at his own fireside. There is an immense future for woman as wives and mothers and a very limited future for them in any other capacity. While you ladies without passions are raving and trumpeting all over the country, that wise, grim old grandmother of us all, Dame Nature, is simply laughing up her sleeve and snapping her fingers at you, and your new epochs and new movements. Go home! Be sure that old Dame Nature will choose her own darlings to carry on her own schemes. Go home, go home. Nature's darling woman is a stay-at-home woman, a woman who wants to be a good wife and a good mother and cares very little for anything else. Go home, go home, and don't worry the world any longer about this tiresome sexual business; for take my word, it was settled once for all in the Garden of Eden."

At the Wednesday matinee, "The Wife," the success of the Lyceum Company last season, will be given. Wednesday evening the latest English comedy, "An Ideal Husband," by the author of "Lady Windermere's Fan," will be presented for the only time here. The farewell performance, Thursday evening, will be the "Amazons," the play that has been talked about all over this continent. The sale for all four performances has been unusually large and from present indications the engagement will be very successful.

COMING ATRACTIONS.

The result of deception is no better illustrated than in the greatest of all comedies, "Jane," which comes to the Macdonough for one night only Monday, August 19th. Seats ready next Thursday.

"Too Much Johnson," which has been crowding the Baldwin, will be seen at the Macdonough August 26th, 27th, and 28th.

THE OAKLAND.

"The Royal Marionettes" form a very novel and taking performance. The Oakland theater was crowded to the doors last evening with an enthusiastic audience. The manikins were admirably handled and the life-like representations of scenes in minstrelsy were applauded to the echo. There will be a performance every night this week with a special matinee on Saturday. Popular prices of admission—10 and 20 cents—rule.

THE COLUMBIA.

The striking event in San Francisco theatricals this week is the Shakespearian revival at the Columbia. The comedy, "Twelfth Night," as presented last evening, was simply a perfect production in all its details. The San Francisco theater goers have a treat in store for them when they visit the dainty Powell street theater this week. In the role are many clever people, among them being Rose Coghlan, L. R. Stockwell, Maurice Barrymore Wm. Beach, H. E. Dixey and Maude Winter, with others less notable but none the less careful in their performance. The scenery and choruses were perfectly done and all accessories combined to form a pleasing background for one of the prettiest attractions now before the San Francisco public.

THE BALDWIN.

"Too Much Johnson" continues to please the Baldwin audiences with its interminable tangles and twisted situations. William Gillette's fun is very spontanous and it is absorbed by his audiences at once.

THE ORPHEUM.

There is an excellent vaudeville entertainment in progress this week at the Orpheum. This bill is changed and six new stars appear. The Jordan family are still attracting big audiences by their wonderful trapeze act.

THE TIVOLI.

Genee's comic opera, "The Royal Middy," has the boards at the Tivoli this week. It is a pretty thing and the cast finds Alice Carle, the new contralto, well up in the bright airs. Ferris Hartman has a couple of new songs.

MOROSCO'S.

"Harbor Lights," with its dashing hero and exciting situations, drew a big house last night at Morosco's. It is a satisfactory production and is well staged.

A SWIMMING CARNIVAL.

There is to be a big society acquatic carnival at the Piedmont baths on Friday evening under the auspices of the Pacific Swimming Club, assisted by members of the Olympic Club. The programme will be varied. A grand concert by the Fifth Infantry band will be a feature. All sorts of aquatic sports will be introduced.

LITERARY NOTES.

A. H. Shirk of San Leandro is a youthful editor who is showing signs of much ability. He is publishing a monthly journal of current literature entitled The Suburban Magazine, and is giving to his readers a clean, well prepared and ably edited little sheet.

The rise and growth in the United States of clubs devoted to hunting with hounds is described by E. S. Martin in Scribner's for September. The series of illustrations show a picturesque feature of American social life that never before has been adequately illustrated.

The American Historical Register (the monthly gazette of all the Patriotic-Hereditary Societies) for August is at hand. It is a beautiful number, of 200 pages as usual. It shows a decided advance in merit since it started upon its career, just a year ago. Now it leads nearly all the other monthlies in the quantity of its reading matter. The frontispiece to the midsummer number is the beautiful insignia of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, done in proper colors and embossed. The initial article is the continuation of "Lafayette's Visit to the United States in 1824-25," told in a sprightly way, with half-tone illustrations of some private houses at which he was entertained and portraits of his hosts on his way to visit Boston.

The September number of Toilettes, issued August 1st is the handsomest magazine we have yet seen. Formerly books on fashions at this season of the year contained but little that was either instructive or attractive. Toilettes certainly does not travel on the same road with others of its class, for each issue appears to excel all preceeding ones for the beauty of its illustrations, the simplicity and elegant tast displayed in the selection of its numerous costumes. And the clear and concise articles on the styles that are and that are to be written by its many correspondents abroad, place a stamp of authenticity and refinement upon this magazine that every lady of taste appreciates.

George Gissing's strong novel, "In the Year of Jubilee," is said to promise as great success here as it has had in England.

Messrs. D. C. Heath & Co. will shortly add to their list of literary publications an edition of Shakespeare's plays for high school and college classes. Each volume contains an introduction, a glossary, an essay on metre, and an index. Appendices are added upon points of especial interest in cases where the matter could not be conveniently treated in the introduction or the notes.

The new Manual of Arms prepared by the war department, adapted to the Krag-Jorgensen magazine rifle (calibre .30) just adopted for use in the United States Army, is published by D. Appleton & Co., and will be sent to any address on receipt of price, 10 cents. It has been published for the government of the army pending a complete revision of the infantry drill regulations.

Robert Grant discusses "The Case of Man" in the September Scribner's. The question which he asks Barbara is "What is the matter with us?" to which she replies: "Oh, everything. You are a failure fundamentally. To begin with, your theory of life is founded on compromise. We women—the modern women—abhor compromire."

D. C. Heath & Co. of Boston are giving students some excellent works in their series of English classics. The latest is "Coleridge's Principles of Criticism—Chapters 1, 2, 4, 14-22 of Biographia Literaria," with introduction and notes by Andrew J. George, M. A. It is admirably prepared and is in just the shape for a student to handle. It is a welcome addition to the literature of the class-room. (Cloth 90 cents.)

"Mrs. Musgrave and Her Husband" is one of the latest productions from Appleton's library. An exchange says regarding it: "This impressive and powerful story will not be laid aside until the end is reached. The developments are seen to have the inevitableness of fate leading gradually to a climax of singular intensity."

Hezekiah Butterworth has written a charming story entitled, "In Old New England." It is a romance of a colonial fireside and in introducing it the author says: "The stories that were told on old red settles by chimney fires in old New England days had a peculiar spirit and coloring. Quaint as many of them were, they carried deep spiritual meanings. Reward or retribution was somehow associated with the queer tale of the country grocery store, the ordinary, the husking party, or of the neighborhood or town. I used to hear many of these tales when a boy in the old home farm in the Pokanoket country on the Mount Hope and Narragansett Bays. They have always haunted me at such times as my mind wandered back to the past, and I have liked to reproduce them in my own way for the magazines and papers. Of the stories in this volume, "A Hallowe-en Reformation (Captain Tuttle and the Miracle Clock)" and "A Regular Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving (The Haunted Oven)" appeared in the Century Magazine, and are used here by permission of the Century Company. "The Inn of the Good Woman" appeared in Harper's Magazine and is used by permission. "Wych Hazel," "The Poet's Corner," and "No Room in the Inn" were originally published in the publications of Messrs. Harper and Brothers, and are reproduced here by the courtesy of the publishers. Of the other stories, some have not been printed before and others have appeared in the Youth's Companion, the Household, and popular papers which have kindly allowed me to republish them." (Appleton's Popular Series.)

FROM actual analysis made by me, I pronounce the Royal Baking Powder to be the Strongest and Purest Baking Powder before the public.

What Put It Out.

"Accidents?" said the old sea captain. No, we never have any to speak of on this line. Why, one trip, about a year ago, the ship caught fire down in the hold, and we never discovered it till we got into port and began to unload."

"That's strange. What put the fire out?"

"Why, it burned down through to the sea, and the water put it out. Couldn't burn the water, you know."

And the captain walked away smiling, while the interlocutor was so astonished that he never thought to ask why the ship did not sink.—Buffalo Express.

Assistance for Exempts.

Councilman Bassett, who holds the chairmanship of the Exempt Firemen's organization, has requested the city auditor to figure in his estimates $2,000 as a beneficiary fund for that organization. This money will be used wholly to assist exempt firemen who are sick or in need and are financially unable to take care of themselves.

Woman Triumphs.

The Alameda County Law Association at its meeting last evening decided to admit Miss Frankie Laine to membership. There was a good deal of debating on the subject, the married members opposing the admittance of the young lady, while the single men were almost unanimously in her favor.

"REBELLIOUS SUSAN."

The First of the Lyceum Plays Is to Be Given Tonight.

Fine Attractions Demand Attention at the Leading Theaters.

The comedy, "The Case of Rebellious Susan," which Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Company offers here this evening, is filled with bright speeches as well as laughable situations To one who is used to the usual work which comes from the pen of its author, Henry Arthur Jones, the following quotations will be in the nature of a surprise, for his style has heretofore been sombre and his situations thrilling. Yet it is one of many such light graceful and thoroughly comedy speeches It is regarding the pretensions of the "new woman

"There is an immense future for a man at his own fireside There is an immense future for woman as wives and mothers and a very limited future for them in any other capacity. While you ladies without passions are raving and trumpeting all over the country, that wise, grim old grandmother of us all, Dame Nature, is simply laughing up her sleeve and snapping her fingers at you and your new epochs and new movements Go home! Be sure that old Dame Nature will choose her own darlings to carry on her own schemes. Go home go home. Nature's darling woman is a stay-at-home woman, a woman who wants to be a good wife and a good mother and cares very little for anything else Go home go home, and don't worry the world any longer about this tiresome sexual business, for take my word, it was settled once for all in the Garden of Eden"

At the Wednesday matinee, "The Wife," the success of the Lyceum Company last season, will be given, Wednesday evening the latest English comedy, 'An Ideal Husband" by the author of "Lady Windermere's Fan,' will be presented for the only time here The farewell performance Thursday evening, will be the "Amazons," the play that has been talked about all over this continent. The sale for all four performances has been unusually large and from present indications the engagement will be very successful.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

The result of deception is no better illustrated than in the greatest of all comedies, "Jane," which comes to the Macdonough for one night only Monday, August 19th. Seats ready next Thursday.

"Too Much Johnson," which has been crowding the Baldwin will be seen at the Macdonough August 25th, 27th, and 28th.

THE OAKLAND

"The Royal Marionettes" form a very novel and taking performance. The Oakland theater was crowded to the doors last evening with an enthusiastic audience The manikins were admirably handled and the life-like representations of scenes in minstrelsy were applauded to the echo There will be a performance every night this week with a special matinee on Saturday. Popular prices of admission—10 and 20 cents—rule.

THE COLUMBIA

The striking event in San Francisco theatricals this week is the Shakespearian revival at the Columbia. The comedy "Twelfth Night," as presented last evening, was simply a perfect production in all its details. The San Francisco theater goers have a treat in store for them when they visit the dainty Powell street theater this week In the rose are many clever people, among them being Rose Coghlan L R. Stockwell Maurice Barrymore Wm Beach, H E Dixey and Maude Winter, with others less notable but none the less useful in their performance The scenery and choruses were perfectly done and all accessories combined to form a pleasing background for one of the prettiest attractions now before the San Francisco public.

THE BALDWIN.

"Too Much Johnson" continues to please the Baldwin audiences with its interminable tangles and twisted situations William Gillette's fun is very spontanous and it is absorbed by his audiences at once.

THE ORPHEUM

There is an excellent vaudeville entertainment in progress this week at the Orpheum. This bill is changed and six new stars appear. The Jordan family are still attracting big audiences by their wonderful trapeze act.

THE TIVOLI

Genee's comic opera, "The Royal Middy," has the boards at the Tivoli this week. It is a pretty thing and the cast finds Alice Carle, the new contralto, well up in the bright airs. Ferris Hartman has a couple of new songs.

MOROSCO'S.

"Harbor Lights," with its dashing hero and exciting situations, drew a big house last night at Morosco's. It is a satisfactory production and is well staged.

A SWIMMING CARNIVAL.

There is to be a big society aquatic carnival at the Piedmont baths on Friday evening under the auspices of the Pacific Swimming Club, assisted by members of the Olympic Club The programme will be varied A grand concert by the Fifth Infantry band will be a feature. All sorts of aquatic sports will be introduced.

LITERARY NOTES.

A. H. Shirk of San Leandro is a youthful editor who is showing signs of much ability. He is publishing a monthly journal of current literature entitled The Suburban Magazine, and is giving to his readers a clean, well prepared and ably edited little sheet.

The rise and growth in the United States of clubs devoted to hunting with hounds is described by E S. Martin in Scribner's for September. The series of illustrations show a picturesque feature of American social life that never before has been adequately illustrated.

The American Historical Register (the monthly gazette of all the Patriotic-Hereditary Societies) for August is at hand It is a beautiful number, of 200 pages as usual It shows a decided advance in merit since it started upon its career, just a year ago Now it leads nearly all the other monthlies in the quantity of its reading matter. The frontispiece to the midsummer number is the beautiful insignia of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, done in proper colors and embossed. The initial article is the continuation of "Lafayette's Visit to the United States in 1824-25," told in a sprightly way, with half-tone illustrations of some private houses at which he was entertained and portraits of his hosts on his way to visit Boston.

The September number of Toilettes, issued August 1st is the handsomest magazine we have yet seen. Formerly books on fashions at this season of the year contained but little that was either instructive or attractive. Toilettes certainly does not travel on the same road with others of its class, for each issue appears to excel all preceeding ones for the beauty of its illustrations the simplicity and elegant tast displayed in the selection of its numerous costumes And the clear and concise articles on the styles that are and that are to be written by its many correspondents abroad place a stamp of authenticity and refinement upon this magazine that every lady of taste appreciates

George Gissing's strong novel, "In the Year of Jubilee," is said to promise as great success here as it has had in England.

Messrs. D. C Heath & Co will shortly add to their list of literary publications an edition of Shakespeare's plays for high school and college classes. Each volume contains an introduction a glossary, an essay on metre, and an index. Appendices are added upon points of especial interest in cases where the matter could not be conveniently treated in the introduction or the notes.

The new Manual of Arms prepared by the war department, adapted to the Krag-Jorgenson magazine rifle (calibre .30) just adopted for use in the United States Army, is published by D Appleton & Co, and will be sent to any address on receipt of price 10 cents. It has been published for the government of the army pending a complete revision of the infantry drill regulations

Robert Grant discusses 'The Case of Man' in the September Scribner's. The question which he asks Barbara is "What is the matter with us?" to which she replies: 'Oh everything You are a failure fundamentially To begin with, your theory of life is founded on compromise We women—the modern women—abhor compromise."

D C Heath & Co of Boston are giving students some excellent works in their series of English classics. The latest is "Coleridge's Principles of Criticism—Chapters I, 2 4, 14-22 of Biographia Literaria," with introduction and notes by Andrew J George, M A It is admirably prepared and is in just the shape for a student to handle. It is a welcome addition to the literature of the classroom (Cloth 90 cents)

"Mrs Musgrave and Her Husband" is one of the latest productions from Appleton's library. An exchange says regarding it "This impressive and powerful story will not be laid aside until the end is reached. The developments are seen to have the inevitableness of fate leading gradually to a climax of singular intensity"

Hezekiah Butterworth has written a charming story entitled, "In Old New England." It is a romance of a colonial fireside and in introducing it the author says "The stories that were told on old red settles by chimney fires in old New England days had a peculiar spirit and coloring Quaint as many of them were they carried deep spiritual meanings. Reward or retribution was somehow associated with the queer tale of the country grocery store the ordinary, the husking party, or of the neighborhood or town I used to hear many of these tales when a boy in the old home farm in the Pokanoket country or the Mount Hope and Narragansett Bays. They have always haunted me at such times as my mind wandered back to the past, and I have liked to reproduce them in my own way for the magazines and papers. Of the stories in this volume "A Hallowe-en Reformation (Captain Tuttle and the Miracle Clock)" and "A Regular Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving (The Haunted Oven)" appeared in the Century Magazine, and are used here by permission of the Century Company. "The Inn of the Good Woman" appeared in Harper's Magazine and is used by permission "Wyoh Hazel," "The Poet's Corner," and "No Room in the Inn" were originally published in the publications of Messrs. Harper and Brothers, and are reproduced here by the courtesy of the publishers. Of the other stories, some have not been printed before and others have appeared in the Youth's Companion, the Household, and popular papers which have kindly allowed me to republish them" (Appleton's Popular Series)

FROM actual analysis made by me, I pronounce the Royal Baking Powder to be the Strongest and Purest Baking Powder before the public.

What Put It Out.

"Accidents?" said the old sea captain No, we never have any to speak of on this line Why, one trip about a year ago, the ship caught fire down in the hold, and we never discovered it till we got into port and began to unload."

"That's strange. What put the fire out?"

"Why, it burned down through to the sea and the water put it out. Couldn't burn the water you know"

And the captain walked away smiling, while the interlocutor was so astonished that he never thought to ask why the ship did not sink.—Buffalo Express.

WILLING TO COME HERE.

The Ostrander Gun Company Will Give Preference to Oakland.

Tonight the Merchants' Exchange is to Consider the Project.

In response to the letters sent out by Mayor Davie the Council chamber was filled yesterday afternoon with citizens who came to meet Charles J. Swift, the coast representative of the Ostrander Gun Company and to discuss with him the means of getting the company to locate their plant in Oakland.

Mr. Swift said that the plant is in Boston at the present time, but the company desired to move to this coast. Stockton and Sacramento had both made liberal offers to them to establish the factory in either town The towns named proposed to give a fine land site, to erect thereon a two-story building 40x100 feet and to pay the expense of moving, which would amount to about $3,000. Because of Oakland's proximity to San Francisco the company preferred to locate here and if the town will hold out inducements equal to those proposed by the other cities it would undoubtedly receive a more favorable consideration.

The factory will employ at the start 100 men and as business grows more help will be needed. Should the company locate here it will be the only factory of its kind on the coast. All fine steel and other metal working is now sent East, but the plant necessary to manufacture the guns could make anything from a bicycle to a typewriter.

Captain W. I. Reed of the United State army was present and spoke of the Hampden gun, a firearm which he thought would some day be accepted for use by the government.

The gun is now in the hands of Mr. Ostrander for one or two needed improvements and if the Ostrander Company should come to this coast they will manufacture the Hampden as well as their own gun.

Mayor Davie is enthusiastic on the proposition and will use his best endeavors to secure for Oakland the new industry.

Tonight Mr. Swift will meet the Merchants' Exchange to show them the gun and try to impress upon them the benefits which will accrue to Oakland from the locating of the plant here.

Dailey's Show Not Coming.

Editor Tribune—Sir: In your paper there appears an article under the heading of "The Crime of a Century," purporting that it will be played at the Oakland theater. Will you kindly correct this statement—that such is not the case. Mr Dailey interviewed me regarding its production, and I stated that under no circumstances would I permit that play to be produced in my theater. As my name is mentioned in his conjunction I therefore wish it strictly understood that the said play will not be produced at the Oakland theater. Very truly yours,

J. J. COLLINS
Proprietor Oakland Theater.

WILLING TO COME HERE.

The Ostrander Gun Company Will Give Preference to Oakland.

Tonight the Merchants' Exchange Is to Consider the Project.

In response to the letters sent out by Mayor Davie the Council chamber was filled yesterday afternoon with citizens who came to meet Charles J. Swift, the coast representative of the Ostrander Gun Company and to discuss with him the means of getting the company to locate their plant in Oakland.

Mr. Swift said that the plant is in Boston at the present time, but the company desired to move to this coast. Stockton and Sacramento had both made liberal offers to them to establish the factory in either town. The towns named proposed to give a fine land site, to erect thereon a two-story building 40x100 feet and to pay the expense of moving, which would amount to about $3,000. Because of Oakland's proximity to San Francisco the company preferred to locate here and if the town will hold out inducements equal to those proposed by the other cities it would undoubtedly receive a more favorable consideration.

The factory will employ at the start 100 men and as business grows more help will be needed. Should the company locate here it will be the only factory of its kind on the coast. All fine steel and other metal working is now sent East, but the plant necessary to manufacture the guns could make anything from a bicycle to a typewriter.

Captain W. I. Reed of the United State army was present and spoke of the Hampden gun, a firearm which he thought would some day be accepted for use by the government.

The gun is now in the hands of Mr. Ostrander for one or two needed improvements and if the Ostrander Company should come to this coast they will manufacture the Hampden as well as their own gun.

Mayor Davie is enthusiastic on the proposition and will use his best endeavors to secure for Oakland the new industry.

Tonight Mr. Swift will meet the Merchants' Exchange to show them the gun and try to impress upon them the benefits which will accrue to Oakland from the locating of the plant here.

Bailey's Show Not Coming.

Editor Tribune—Sir: In your paper there appears an article under the heading of "The Crime of a Century," purporting that is will be played at the Oakland theater. Will you kindly correct this statement—that such is not the case. Mr. Bailey interviewed me regarding its production and I stated that under no circumstances would I permit that play to be produced in my theater. As my name is mentioned in its conjunction I therefore wish it strictly understood that the said play will not be produced at the Oakland theater. Very truly yours,

J. J. COLLINS,
Proprietor Oakland Theater.

These representative citizens of Oakland went to Alvarado last Sunday for the purpose of inspecting the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company.

It will not be charged that these gentlemen can be swayed or influenced against their honest judgment or that they would utter opinions contrary to facts elicited upon truthful observation.

They are all citizens of integrity, probity and high repute in the community.

Consequently what they say must have weight with their neighbors, associates and the people generally.

They returned from Alvarado indignant, and in interviews with representatives of the press they have expressed their indignation without fear or favor as it is reported in these columns:

TWO PLANTS.

"It is a dastardly outrage," was one strong expression uttered by George W. Baker, a prominent attorney and well known resident of Oakland. "It is a dastardly outrage that the opposition to the Oakland Water Company should proceed to this despicable extremity."

He was describing the methods which are being adopted by the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado in the effort to cripple their business competitor.

"I went to Alvarado yesterday," Mr. Baker explained, "not only free of all bias favorable to the Oakland Company and devoid of prejudice against the Contra Costa Company, but utterly disbelieving the newspaper reports concerning the actions of the latter company and the allegations that their agents were endeavoring to deplete their rival's water supply by pumping from wells tapping the same source and running the water thus obtained wastefully and wantonly into the marshes. I say that I did not believe this, for I considered such methods too contemptible for honest men and beneath the dignity of business men under any stress of business rivalry.

"Primarily I desired to ascertain whether the volume and pressure of the Oakland Company's supply was adequate to the needs of Oakland. In pursuance of this design, accompanied by a number of the representative citizens of Oakland I first inspected the plant of the company. We found the machinery used for pumping the water into the mains to be the best for the purpose that could be devised. We found the pressure fully adequate and the volume of water flowing into the tank from which it is pumped apparently inexhaustible. We satisfied ourselves that as far as the supply was concerned Oakland need never fear a drought from this source, and the quality of the water was discernible by a glance into the clear, fresh water of the tank.

"Thus far everything was satisfactory. There was not the slightest opportunity for cavil, suggestion or criticism. But pursuing our investigations beyond the boundaries of the Oakland plant we found much to criticize—much to denounce, and much to rouse every instinct that can animate a manly indignation and enforce a demand for fair play

MILLIONS WASTED.

Within a hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works is a well, beside which stands an engine which somebody said was used ordinarily to operate a threshing machine. This engine, we were informed, had been working during the morning before we arrived. It was not in operation when we inspected it. But further to the westward, in a building used as a glue factory, were other engines pumping water steadily from four wells.

"This water ran swiftly down a sharp incline into a flume and thence through a ditch across a narrow stretch of soil, finally emptying upon the marsh, where it spread and was absorbed by the mud and ooze and slime of the tide wash from the bay.

"I have had some experience in the measurement of flowing streams and I made a rough estimate of the volume of water which we found flowing to waste from these wells. The flume was two feet wide, and the water where it flowed most rapidly on the incline six inches deep. In the more sluggish channel it was sixteen inches deep. My calculation is that these people are pumping from this source not less than 2,500,000 gallons every twenty-four, and probably 3,000,000 gallons would be marked on an accurate gauge.

ILLEGITIMATE METHODS.

"When the condition of affairs was revealed to our astonished senses our indignation found expression in the most vigorous denunciation of the perpetrators of the outrage. It was no longer a question with us of the business rivalry of the two water companies—it was a moral principle that presented itself and we could not find terms strong enough to denounce this evidence of the men who claim the respect of their honest fellow-citizens.

"If this was a sample of the methods which the Contra Costa Water Company is resorting to in the effort to crush a business competitor, it was time, we thought, for the entire community to unite against the corporation that not only countenanced the outrage but supplied the funds and provided the means for perpetrating it. My own proposition was an immediate rebuke in the shape of an ordinance by the City Council depriving the Contra Costa Company of their public hydrant privileges, and I understand that such an ordinance will be presented by Councilman Bassett. Others favored the calling of a mass meeting of citizens to give public expression to their indignation, and I believe this is under way also.

"I have not examined the legal phase of the question and consequently I cannot say with certainty whether this outrageous waste of material, so useful, so necessary to the people can be stopped by law, but of the moral principle involved no honest man can have the slightest doubt. It may be that the Contra Costa Water Company has the legal right to pump millions of gallons of pure water in the bay to satisfy their spleen against an aggressive and popular competitor, but morally they have earned the contempt and should properly receive the rebuke of every right minded man in the community."

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Dr. E. H. Woolsey was eloquent in his commendation of the Oakland Water company's plant, its pumping apparatus, its distributing system and the quality of the water.

"It is a water absolutely pure," he said. "It contains not a single element deleterious to health, and as a physician I can recommend it to the people of Oakland. It is the best water that is being supplied in this city."

Dr. Woolsey stated that he personally inspected the Oakland Company's plant on Sunday and found the volume of water more than adequate for all purposes of a supply for Oakland, while the pressure at the pumps was amply sufficient to force the water to the highest elevations of the company's distributing system.

With the others he inspected the opposition plant operated under the direction of the management of the Contra Costa Water Company.

"The pumps were at work in the glue factory," he said, "and about 2,000,000 gallons of pure, healthful water, fit for a city's supply was flowing direct from four wells and over the marsh. I believe that the Contra Costa people have claimed that they are irrigating an acre of beets, and this is as false as it is absurd. They are not irrigating beets. They are irrigating tules. They are pouring millions of gallons of fresh, pure water over a marsh that has been saturated with the salt of the sea for centuries. The real object is plain enough. They are trying to lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company—their competitors in the business of furnishing water to the people of Oakland. If they should succeed—if any disaster should result from this nefarious and cowardly effort, the Contra Costa people will be directly responsible, and the sooner the people of Oakland realize this fact the better it will be for the entire community. It is my honest opinion that people who resort to such miserable work as we saw at Alvarado yesterday would smash a pipe, scuttle a ship or cut a throat."

A SKEPTICAL CONVINCED.

"I was a little skeptical regarding the waste of water at Alvarado, but I am skeptical no longer," said James W. Nelson yesterday. "I had read in the newspapers about several things that I thought were highly colored and when I was invited to inspect the Oakland Water Company's plant I considered it a duty to myself to go down there. I have seen many water plants in different cities and understand a little about them. The plant erected by Mr. Dingee is one of the most powerful and complete I ever saw and is certainly able to supply a city much larger than Oakland. Everything is of the most approved pattern and the power of the pumps is enormous. After inspecting the plant we went to see a pumping plant about 200 feet away, just outside Mr. Dingee's fence. We could not get inside the building, but we could hear powerful machinery at work and from out one side there was an open wooden flume through which water was rushing at a great rate. The flume was about 200 feet long and at the end of it the water ran into the marsh. I measured the flume and found that the flow of water was twenty-four inches broad and sixteen inches deep. As near as I can calculate that one flume represents a flow of from two and one-half to three millions of gallons of water per diem. Every drop of it was flowing across the salt marshes into the bay. Such a wicked and open piece of vandalism I never before conceived, much less witnessed. I know of no adjective strong enough to express my detestation of any man or corporation that would be guilty of such a barefaced, vicious waste of water. I changed my opinion of what I had read in the newspapers right there. Instead of overdoing their description of the state of affairs down there, they did not begin to fully tell of what is actually going on.

A VILE OUTRAGE.

"It is no use calling a thing by a wrong name, and that waste of water is a vile outrage; if such dastardly work is legitimate competition, then I have much to learn. We were told that the opposition pump is being run by the Contra Costa Company. That is more surprising still. When I think of the prominent men connected with that organization, of their social standing, of their business standing and of their place as members of this community I am horror-struck, and begin to ask where I am. Of course if that vast quantity of water were being put to any use there would be some excuse for pumping it, but it just flows on, or rather rushes on, millions of gallons a day, and after flooding the marsh, reaches the bay. From all I can learn this waste has not in any way diminished Mr. Dingee's supply or lowered his wells, but several poor farmers whose land is a little higher are suffering and they will probably have to seek legal protection. At the hotel where we stayed a few minutes we heard of several complaints. Many of the farmers are being deprived of their supply and in some instances their wells have been lowered several feet. But those poor men are not in a position to make a fight against such a company as the Contra Costa Company and they suffer in silence.

"About 100 feet in another direction was another pumping plant. The man in charge told us it had stopped at noon, but what on earth that pump was wanted for is more than I can tell. It was simply another enormous waste of water and could not be justified in any way. It is very plain that it is an open attempt to injure Mr. Dingee's supply and if there were more than one company interested in suppressing competition I should not believe it possible that the Contra Costa people would do it. Anybody conniving at such work is undeserving of the smallest share of public sympathy or patronage.

"The water is just perfect. It is clear as crystal and no one who once drinks it would dream of using any other. I know I would not. All Mr. Dingee wants to do, to convince people of his inexhaustible supply and of its matchless purity is to take a few excursions down there and let the people see and think for themselves and they will become as bitterly opposed to such criminal waste as I am. No man with a particle of honesty in his character can repress his indignation at such tactics. If I did not have Dingee's water in my house before I should certainly want it now."

UNSCRUPULOUS METHODS.

F. R. Girard was exceedingly indignant concerning the condition of affairs at Alvarado.

"I am not interested one way or the other," he said, "but fair play's a jewel, and the methods that we saw practiced by the agents of the Contra Costa Company yesterday deserve not only censure, but summary punishment. There should be some way of reaching the perpetrators of the diabolism that is being perpetrated at Alvarado. The wanton wasting of three million gallons of water a day is a crime—an outrageous crime. If there is no other way to punish these people the citizens of Oakland should unanimously refuse to patronize a company that will stoop to such contemptible business. But come to think of it, perhaps they do not have to stoop.

"Everybody is interested in this matter. It is time that measures were taken to stop these disgraceful, cowardly attacks on an enterprise that has already done more for Oakland than the Contra Costa Company could accomplish if they furnished water free from now to doomsday. I am aware that I am using strong language; but I am indignant at what I saw at Alvarado yesterday. I am surprised and grieved that such things can be permitted in a civilized Christian community. I can not believe that the stockholders of the Contra Costa Water Company are all so depraved that they approve of what their unscrupulous and cowardly agents are doing at Alvarado.

"I do not believe that these methods are legal, even if they are pumping this water out of their own land. The law would not permit a man to build a fence around another man's store to prevent him from conducting his business, and I do not see why the Contra Costa Water Company should be permitted to set pumps at work to drain the supply of a competing water company.

"It is my opinion that men who would do this would not hesitate to put poison in the water if they thought that they would gain their ends. I know that if anything happens to the Oakland Water Company we will all be made to suffer for what we say against the Contra Costa Water Company, and I do not care for that—I am an honest man and I utter my convictions honestly. Furthermore, I am always free to denounce dishonest methods in business or otherwise and I regard this attempt to destroy a legitimate competition as not only despicable, but actually criminal. I hope the people will assemble in mass meeting to denounce it and and if they do I shall not be at all backward in expressing my views."

"MALCIOUS AND WANTON."

D. S. Hirshberg characterized the Alvarado methods as "malicious and wanton." He examined the conditions minutely and arrived at the conclusion that the sole purpose of those who are wasting the water was an effort to cripple and if possible destroy a business rival.

"It is not right," he continued. "The outrage that is in progress at Alvarado must be universally condemned. We found 3,000,000 gallons of the best water in California wasting on a salt marsh in the effort of unscrupulous men to deplete the source of supply of a rival company. We had read in the newspapers that this was being done, but we did not believe it. Such a thing was beyond our conception and we were astounded when we found those pumps at work and the ceaseless stream of water flowing into the tules.

"The assertion that the water is being used to irrigate an acre of beets is untrue. In the first place it does not require 2,000,000 gallons of water a day to irrigate an acre of beets. Moreover it is not the season for irrigating beets. Besides, we saw no acre of beets to be irrigated. That water is being pumped from the wells in the hope that it will lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company and it is poured at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons a day into the marsh with no other purpose in the world than to waste it so that the people who are patronizing the Oakland Company may be compelled to submit to the old monopoly regime again. That is all there is about it and there can be no successful denial of the fact for it was palpable to all of us yesterday."

EMPHATIC CONDEMNATION.

Henry Evers was emphatic in his condemnation of the methods of the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado.

"We were all pronounced in our opinion that these methods are illegitimate," he added, "and some of those who saw that water flowing into the tules were loud in their denunciation of the company that resorted to such means to hamper and annoy a business competitor. None of those who investigated the conditions was of the opinion that any good could result to the company operating those engines and pumping those wells. It was the general opinion that the effort would do the company no good and that it would surely react to the hurt of those who are adopting this method of fighting their rival in business.

Edward Newland said that he was surprised that anybody, however close pressed by a business competitor could resort to such methods. He was sure that they would be condemned by everybody who became cognizant of the fact that 3,000,000 gallons of water were being wasted on the marshes merely to annoy and if possible destroy a legitimate enterprise that had benefitted the community as largely as the Oakland Water Company had done.

PALPABLE MOTIVES.

William D. English made merry of the idea that the water being pumped at Alvarado by the Contra Costa Company was for any purpose whatever than the annoyance of the Oakland Water Company.

"The object is plain—the motive is as palpable," he said, "as the engines they are operating, or the millions of gallons of water there are pouring into the marshes. It is an outrageous procedure and will be roundly condemned by every right thinking, honest minded citizen, without prejudice for or against any corporation or company."

"We were all pleased and satisfied with the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company," said C. O. Brigham. "It is, in my opinion, in every way adequate and it is certainly capable of performing all that its owners claim for it. Yes, I observed the opposition plant and noted the fact that a vast quantity of water is being pumped for no useful purpose, and I must say that I do not approve of it."

Frank Brigham, his son, expressed himself similarly. "There is no doubt," he said, that the Oakland Company has an inexhaustible supply of pure, healthful water, and at the time we inspected the plant the pressure as shown by the indicators was certainly sufficient for all purposes. I must confess that I cannot approve of pumping good water merely to pour it on a barren salt marsh. And I am compelled to admit that the opposition is doing this at Alvarado."

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.

"I have looked into the clear depths of the lakes of Florida and Colorado," said Wesley A. Jacobs, "waters that are asserted to be the purest in the world, and I will say that the water in the tank of the Oakland Company at Alvarado is as clear and I have not the least doubt as pure as that of the lakes. The machinery for operating the system is beautiful—it is as fine as I have ever seen. While the pressure was on at more than 60 pounds, I stood on the edge of the tank and could see no appreciable diminution of the quantity. I believe that the volume of water at Alvarado is at the present time sufficient for two cities like Oakland and that the supply from those wells is inexhaustible.

"I also inspected the operations of that opposition plant. It is an infamous device. The are trying to pump away the Oakland Company's supply and they are distributing millions of gallons of pure water over a salt marsh. It was estimated that 3,000,000 gallons were flowing while we were there—at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours.

"I followed the stream from its source in the glue factory through the flume and ditch to the marsh, and I saw it flowing out on the marsh. There may be nothing legally criminal in this woeful waste of a human necessity, but in my opinion it would be no more criminal to tap the San Leandro reservoir and scatter its water broadcast without definite useful purpose, than it is to exhaust the supply of those wells at Alvarado. As a matter of fact, legally and morally, I considered the actions parallel and equally heinous. If the Contra Costa Company has been driven to this desperate strait it is time they ceased business in this community. Operating such devices as we saw at Alvarado yesterday they are not fit associates for reputable business men."

"It must be understood," Mr. Jacobs continued, "that the illegitimate plant at Alvarado pumps directly from the wells—the suction is immediate upon the source of supply, while the Oakland Water Company provides a tank to receive the natural flow of its wells and pumps from the tank, thereby avoiding every possibility of pumping the wells dry.

"You may be sure that when the gentlemen who inspected these plants began to comprehend the enormity of the device that has been opposed to the operation of the Oakland Company's enterprise there was a unanimous expression of indignation. We had not believed the reports we had heard and read concerning the matter and we were simply dumbfounded when we learned the truth. It may be inconceivable to the ordinary business man, who conducts his business honestly, that a corporation could resort to these methods, but our observation at Alvarado has proved that a corporation capable of doing such things, actually exists. There are some among us who are now prepared to believe all the charges that are made against the corporation."

USELESS IRRIGATION.

M. J. Keller was mildly satirical at the expense of the Contra Costa Company although he did not once mention the name of the corporation.

"I saw much water going to waste at Alvarado," he said, "and while I watched it flowing out into the marsh I thought of the time the commission merchants dumped tons of good fruit into the bay to lessen the supply and keep up prices. If there are any beets in that marsh I do not think they require much water at this season, and I do not believe it is necessary to keep those pumps going night and day to operate that glue factory."

Councilman Bassett says the present state of affairs at Alvarado is one of the funniest he ever saw in his life. "The most remarkable thing I ever saw in my life," said he, "was a mighty stream of water rushing out of a building and emptying into the bay. It is the most wanton waste of water I ever conceived. When we asked the people around there who was responsible for it they said, 'Oh, that's the Contra Costa people trying to knock Dingee out.'

"I cannot conceive of a more powerful or beautiful plant than that of the Oakland Water Company. It is, so far as I can judge, fully capable of supplying two towns the size of Oakland if it is not tampered with. After looking over the works we went to the pumping plant just outside Mr. Dingee's grounds. That place is a conundrum. As soon as one approached the building the man in charge went to the door and partly closed it. When we asked to be permitted to look inside we were told in a surly manner that the orders were not to allow anybody inside. I was curious though and climbed up on top of a coal bunker and peeped through a window. There was about 400 tons of coal there—I tell you they were prepared for a seige—and inside was a powerful pump drawing through three large pipes and discharging through a fourth. The discharge was about three millions of gallons per day and all going to waste. The people of Alvarado laughed when we spoke to them about diminishing the supply. They said that the wells have been running so long that if the Contra Costa Company were to put up half a dozen pumps they would not hurt Dingee a particle. In another place was a little portable steam pump that had been pumping into the bay all morning and only stopped at noon. What they expect to accomplish by such means is not very plain. It amuses me."

INEXHAUSTIBLE SUPPLY.

P. E. Bowles said that he did not know who was responsible for the wasting of the water there but it was a most reprehensible practice. "There is a deserted building there," he said, "a few hundred feet from Mr. Dingee's plant and we were refused admittance. But it was very plain to us that there was some powerful machinery working inside. We could see the exhaust pipe that came through the roof and we could see the immense stream of water rushing through the flume that led from the building. On the three other sides of the building large pipes led into the building and through these water was being pumped to keep up the supply that was rushing through the flume to the marsh. It was absolutely wasted and the flow was tremendous. We were told that the pump was being worked by the Contra Costa Company, but whoever was responsible for it is guilty of a great waste of splendid water. In another part of the ground, just outside of Mr. Dingee's fence was a pumping machine that had worked until noon but had stopped when we got there. In my judgment Mr. Dingee's plant is simply marvelous and ought to experience no difficulty in supplying Oakland twice over. With such a lot of powerful machinery it would be simply miraculous if there were not a few little hitches at starting, but now the machinery seems to work in first-class style and to do all that is required or expected of it."

A PUERILE EFFORT.

Emil Nusbaumer has studied the lay of the artesian belt at Alvarado and thinks it childish for anyone to suppose they can exhaust, or in any way decrease Mr. Dingee's supply by such methods as he saw at that place last Sunday.

"I saw the immense stream flowing from the deserted glue factory," said Mr. Nusbaumer, "and noticed that it emptied into the bay. Now if that stream were ten times as large I don't believe Mr. Dingee's supply would be affected in the least. A little distance from the water plants a club of which I am a member have some leased grounds over which we shoot. On these grounds there is a large spring of pure fresh water that has been flowing since anybody can remember. It runs through a natural slough into the ocean and as ducks must get to fresh water at least once a day, we use the well to attract the ducks. The slough is fitted with an automatic gate. As the tide rises the gate shuts and there is a fresh water pond inside. When the tide falls the gate opens and the water escapes. That whole country down there is the same and if a dozen towns were to be supplied from there I do not believe the supply would ever give out. Dingee is safe enough and need have no fear about a sufficient quantity of water. Such tactics as are being pursued down there are puerile."

"I had no idea that such perfect machinery was operating at Alvarado or that the supply was so profuse. It is practically inexhaustible. All of us were highly pleased with what we saw but we were not so well pleased with the operations of a rival plant within a few hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works. These engines are pumping millions of gallons every day directly from the source of supply and pouring it over a marsh. It was the emphatic opinion of everybody who observed this wanton waste of a material so necessary to human existence that it was an unfair method of competition, and it was condemned by all of us in the strongest terms. It did not seem necessary to us, as fair-minded, unprejudiced men, that this pure, clear water should be wasted in this manner, and we were surprised that the gentlemen who control the Contra Costa Water Company should so far forget themselves in a business rivalry as to permit or countenance it. In my opinion this action on the part of that corporation will have a tremendous effect in swaying public opinion in opposition to the Contra Costa Company, for there can be not the slightest excuse in conducting the methods which they are practicing at Alvarado."

These representative citizens of Oakland went to Alvarado last Sunday for the purpose of inspecting the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company.

It will not be charged that these gentlemen can be swayed or influenced against their honest judgment or that they would utter opinions contrary to facts elicited upon truthful observation.

They are all citizens of integrity, probity and high repute in the community.

Consequently what they say must have weight with their neighbors, associates and the people generally.

They returned from Alvarado indignant, and in interviews with representatives of the press they have expressed their indignation without fear or favor as it is reported in these columns

TWO PLANTS.

"It is a dastardly outrage," was one strong expression uttered by George W. Baker, a prominent attorney and well known resident of Oakland. "It is a dastardly outrage that the opposition to the Oakland Water Company should proceed to this despicable extremity."

He was describing the methods which are being adopted by the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado in the effort to cripple their business competitor.

"I went to Alvarado yesterday," Mr. Baker explained, "not only free of all bias favorable to the Oakland Company and devoid of prejudice against the Contra Costa Company, but utterly disbelieving the newspaper reports concerning the actions of the latter company and the allegations that their agents were endeavoring to deplete their rival's water supply by pumping from wells tapping the same source and running the water thus obtained wastefully and wantonly into the marshes. I say that I did not believe this, for I considered such methods too contemptible for honest men and beneath the dignity of business men under any stress of business rivalry.

"Primarily I desired to ascertain whether the volume and pressure of the Oakland Company's supply was adequate to the needs of Oakland. In pursuance of this design, accompanied by a number of the representative citizens of Oakland I first inspected the plant of the company. We found the machinery used for pumping the water into the mains to be the best for the purpose that could be devised. We found the pressure fully adequate and the volume of water flowing into the tank from which it is pumped apparently inexhaustible. We satisfied ourselves that as far as the supply was concerned Oakland need never fear a drought from this source, and the quality of the water was discernible by a glance into the clear, fresh water of the tank

"Thus far everything was satisfactory. There was not the slightest opportunity for cavil suggestion or criticism. But pursuing our investigations beyond the boundaries of the Oakland plant we found much to criticize—much to denounce, and much to rouse every instinct that can animate a manly indignation and enforce a demand for fair play

MILLIONS WASTED.

Within a hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works is a well, beside which stands an engine which somebody said was used ordinarily to operate a threshing machine. This engine, we were informed, had been working during the morning before we arrived. It was not in operation when we inspected it. But further to the westward, in a building used as a glue factory, were other engines pumping water steadily from four wells.

"This water ran swiftly down a sharp incline into a flume and thence through a ditch across a narrow stretch of soil, finally emptying upon the marsh, where it spread and was absorbed by the mud and ooze and slime of the tide wash from the bay.

"I have had some experience in the measurement of flowing streams and I made a rough estimate of the volume of water which we found flowing to waste from these wells. The flume was two feet wide, and the water where it flowed most rapidly on the incline six inches deep. In the more sluggish channel it was sixteen inches deep My calculation is that these people are pumping from this source not less than 2,500,000 gallons every twenty-four, and probably 3,000,000 gallons would be marked on an accurate gauge.

ILLEGITIMATE METHODS.

"When the condition of affairs was revealed to our astonished senses our indignation found expression in the most vigorous denunciation of the perpetrators of the outrage. It was no longer a question with us of the business rivalry of the two water companies—it was a moral principle that presented itself and we could not find terms strong enough to denounce this evidence of the men who claim the respect of their honest fellow-citizens.

"If this was a sample of the methods which the Contra Costa Water Company is resorting to in the effort to crush a business competitor, it was time, we thought, for the entire community to unite against the corporation that not only countenanced the outrage but supplied the funds and provided the means for perpetrating it. My own proposition was an immediate rebuke in the shape of an ordinance by the City Council depriving the Contra Costa Company of their public hydrant privileges, and I understand that such an ordinance will be presented by Councilman Bassett. Others favored the calling of a mass meeting of citizens to give public expression to their indignation, and I believe this is under way also.

"I have not examined the legal phase of the question and consequently I cannot say with certainty whether this outrageous waste of material, so useful, so necessary to the people can be stopped by law, but of the moral principle involved no honest man can have the slightest doubt It may be that the Contra Costa Water Company has the legal right to pump millions of gallons of pure water in the bay to satisfy their spleen against an aggressive and popular competitor, but morally they have earned the contempt and should properly receive the rebuke of every right minded man in the community."

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Dr. E. H. Woolsey was eloquent in his commendation of the Oakland Water company's plant, its pumping apparatus, its distributing system and the quality of the water.

"It is a water absolutely pure," he said. "It contains not a single element deleterious to health, and as a physician I can recommend it to the people of Oakland It is the best water that is being supplied in this city."

Dr. Woolsey stated that he personally inspected the Oakland Company's plant on Sunday and found the volume of water more than adequate for all purposes of a supply for Oakland, while the pressure at the pumps was amply sufficient to force the water to the highest elevations of the company's distributing system

With the others he inspected the opposition plant operated under the direction of the management of the Contra Costa Water Company.

"The pumps were at work in the glue factory" he said, "and about 3,000,000 gallons of pure, healthful water, fit for a city's supply was flowing direct from four wells and over the marsh I believe that the Contra Costa people have claimed that they are irrigating an acre of beets, and this is as false as it is absurd. They are not irrigating beets. They are irrigating tules. They are pouring millions of gallons of fresh, pure water over a marsh that has been saturated with the salt of the sea for centuries The real object is plain enough. They are trying to lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company —their competitors in the business of furnishing water to the people of Oakland. If they should succeed—if any disaster should result from this nefarious and cowardly effort, the Contra Costa people will be directly responsible, and the sooner the people of Oakland realize this fact the better it will be for the entire community It is my honest opinion that people who resort to such miserable work as we saw at Alvarado yesterday would smash a pipe, scuttle a ship or cut a throat."

A SKEPTICAL CONVINCED.

"I was a little skeptical regarding the waste of water at Alvarado, but I am skeptical no longer," said James W. Nelson yesterday. "I had read in the newspapers about several things that I thought were highly colored and when I was invited to inspect the Oakland Water Company's plant I considered it a duty to myself to go down there. I have seen many water plants in different cities and understand a little about them. The plant erected by Mr. Dingee is one of the most powerful and complete I ever saw and is certainly able to supply a city much larger than Oakland. Everything is of the most approved pattern and the power of the pumps is enormous. After inspecting the plant we went to see a pumping plant about 200 feet away, just outside Mr. Dingee's fence We could not get inside the building, but we could hear powerful machinery at work and from out one side there was an open wooden flume through which water was rushing at a great rate. The flume was about 200 feet long and at the end of it the water ran into the marsh. I measured the flume and found that the flow of water was twenty-four inches broad and sixteen inches deep. As near as I can calculate that one flume represents a flow of from two and one-half to three millions of gallons of water per diem. Every drop of it was flowing across the salt marshes into the bay. Such a wicked and open piece of vandalism I never before conceived, much less witnessed. I know of no adjective strong enough to express my detestation of any man or corporation that would be guilty of such a barefaced, vicious waste of water I changed my opinion of what I had read in the newspapers right there. Instead of overdoing their description of the state of affairs down there, they did not begin to fully tell of what is actually going on.

A VILE OUTRAGE

"It is no use calling a thing by a wrong name, and that waste of water is a vile outrage; if such dastardly work is legitimate competition, then I have much to learn. We were told that the opposition pump is being run by the Contra Costa Company. That is more surprising still When I think of the prominent men connected with that organization, of their social standing, of their business standing and of their place as members of this community I am horror-struck, and begin to ask where I am. Of course if that vast quantity of water were being put to any use there would be some excuse for pumping it, but it just flows on, or rather rushes on, millions of gallons a day, and after flooding the marsh, reaches the bay. From all I can learn this waste has not in any way diminished Mr. Dingee's supply or lowered his wells, but several poor farmers whose land is a little higher are suffering and they will probably have to seek legal protection. At the hotel where we stayed a few minutes we heard of several complaints. Many of the farmers are being deprived of their supply and in some instances their wells have been lowered several feet. But these poor men are not in a position to make a fight against such a company as the Contra Costa Company and they suffer in silence.

"About 100 feet in another direction was another pumping plant The man in charge told us it had stopped at noon, but what on earth that pump was wanted for is more than I can tell. It was simply another enormous waste of water and could not be justified in any way. It is very plain that it is an open attempt to injure Mr. Dingee's supply and if there were more than one company interested in suppressing competition I should not believe it possible that the Contra Costa people would do it. Anybody conniving at such work is undeserving of the smallest share of public sympathy or patronage.

"The water is just perfect. It is clear as crystal and no one who once drinks it would dream of using any other. I know I would not All Mr Dingee wants to do, to convince people of his inexhaustible supply and of its matchless purity is to take a few excursions down there and let the people see and think for themselves and they will become as bitterly opposed to such criminal waste as I am. No man with a particle of honesty in his character can repress his indignation at such tactics. If I did not have Dingee's water in my house before I should certainly want it now."

UNSCRUPULOUS METHODS.

F. R. Girard was exceedingly indignant concerning the condition of affairs at Alvarado.

"I am no interested one way or the other," he said, "but fair play's a jewel, and the methods that we saw practiced by the agents of the Contra Costa Company yesterday deserve not only censure, but summary punishment There should be some way of reaching the perpetrators of the diabolism that is being perpetrated at Alvarado. The wanton wasting of three million gallons of water a day is a crime—an outrageous crime. If there is no other way to punish these people the citizens of Oakland should unanimously refuse to patronize a company that will stoop to such contemptible business. But come to think of it, perhaps they do not have to stoop.

"Everybody is interested in this matter. It is time that measures were taken to stop these disgraceful, cowardly attacks on an enterprise that has already done more for Oakland than the Contra Costa Company could accomplish if they furnished water free from now to doomsday. I am aware that I am using strong language, but I am indignant at what I saw at Alvarado yesterday. I am surprised and grieved that such things can be permitted in a civilized Christian community I can not believe that the stockholders of the Contra Costa Water Company are all so depraved that they approve of what their unscrupulous and cowardly agents are doing at Alvarado.

"I do not believe that these methods are legal, even if they are pumping this water out of their own land. The law would not permit a man to build a fence around another man's store to prevent him from conducting his business, and I do not see why the Contra Costa Water Company should be permitted to set pumps at work to drain the supply of a competing water company.

"It is my opinion that men who would do this would not hesitate to put poison in the water if they thought that they would gain their ends. I know that if anything happens to the Oakland Water Company we will all be made to suffer for what we say against the Contra Costa Water Company, and I do not care for that—I am an honest man and I utter my convictions honestly. Furthermore, I am always free to denounce dishonest methods in business or otherwise and I regard this attempt to destroy a legitimate competition as not only despicable, but actually criminal. I hope the people will assemble in mass meeting to denounce it and and if they do I shall not be at all backward in expressing my views."

"MALCIOUS AND WANTON."

D. S. Hirshberg characterized the Alvarardo methods as "malicious and wanton." He examined the conditions minutely and arrived at the conclusion that the sole purpose of those who are wasting the water was an effort to cripple and if possible destroy a business rival.

"It is not right," he continued, "The outrage that is in progress at Alvarado must be universally condemned. We found 3,000,000 gallons of the best water in California wasting on a salt marsh in the effort of unscrupulous men to deplete the source of supply of a rival company. We had read in the newspapers that this was being done, but we did not believe it. Such a thing was beyond our conception and we were astounded when we found those pumps at work and the ceaseless stream of water flowing into the tules

"The assertion that the water is being used to irrigate an acre of beets is untrue. In the first place it does not require 3,000,000 gallons of water a day to irrigate an acre of beets. Moreover it is not the season for irrigating beets. Besides, we saw no acre of beets to be irrigated. That water is being pumped from the wells in the hope that it will lessen the supply of the Oakland Water Company and it is poured at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons a day into the marsh with no other purpose in the world than to waste it so that the people who are patronizing the Oakland Company may be compelled to submit to the old monopoly regime again. That is all there is about it and there can be no successful denial of the fact for it was palpable to all of us yesterday."

EMPHATIC CONDEMNATION.

Henry Evers was emphatic in his condemnation of the methods of the Contra Costa Water Company at Alvarado.

"We were all pronounced in our opinion that those methods are illegitimate," he added, "and some of those who saw that water flowing into the tules were loud in their denunciation of the company that resorted to such means to hamper and annoy a business competitor None of those who investigated the conditions was of the opinion that any good could result to the company operating these engines and pumping those wells. It was the general opinion that the effort would do the company no good and that it would surely react to the hurt of those who are adopting this method of fighting their rival in business.

Edward Nowland said that he was surprised that anybody, however close pressed by a business competitor could resort to such methods. He was sure that they would be condemned by everybody who became cognizant of the fact that 3,000,000 gallons of water were being wasted on the marshes merely to annoy and if possible destroy a legitimate enterprise that has benefitted the community as largely as the Oakland Water Company had done.

PALPABLE MOTIVES.

William D. English made merry of the idea that the water being pumped at Alvarado by the Contra Costa Company was for any purpose whatever than the annoyance of the Oakland Water Company.

"The object is plain—the motive is as palpable," he said, "as the engines they are operating, or the millions of gallons of water there are pouring into the marshes. It is an outrageous procedure and will be roundly condemned by every right thinking, honest minded citizen, without prejudice for or against any corporation or company."

"We were all pleased and satisfied with the operating plant of the Oakland Water Company," said C. O. Brigham, "It is, in my opinion, in every way adequate and it is certainly capable of performing all that its owners claim for it Yes, I observed the opposition plant and noted the fact that a vast quantity of water is being pumped for no useful purpose, and I must say that I do not approve of it."

Frank Brigham, his son, expressed himself similarly. "There is no doubt," he said, that the Oakland Company has an inexhaustible supply of pure, healthful water, and at the time we inspected the plant the pressure as shown by the indicators was certainly sufficient for all purposes I must confess that I cannot approve of pumping good water merely to pour it on a barren salt marsh. And I am compelled to admit that the opposition is doing this at Alvarado."

AN UNPREJUDICED OBSERVER.

"I have looked into the clear depths of the lakes of Florida and Colorado," said Wesley A. Jacobs, "waters that are asserted to be the purest in the world, and I will say that the water in the tank of the Oakland Company at Alvarado is as clear and I have not the least doubt as pure as that of the lakes. The machinery for operating the system is beautiful—it is as fine as I have ever seen. While the pressure sure was on at more than 60 pounds, I stood on the edge of the tank and could see no appreciable diminution of the quantity. I believe that the volume of water at Alvarado is at the present time sufficient for two cities like Oakland and that the supply from those wells is inexhaustible.

"I also inspected the operations of that opposition plant It is an infamous device. The are trying to pump away the Oakland Company's supply and they are distributing millions of gallons of pure water over a salt marsh. It was estimated that 3,000,000 gallons were flowing while we were there—at the rate of 3,000,000 gallons every twenty-four hours.

"I followed the stream from its source in the glue factory through the flume and ditch to the marsh, and I saw it flowing out on the marsh. There may be nothing legally criminal in this woeful waste of a human necessity, but in my opinion it would be no more criminal to tap the San Leandro reservoir and scatter its water broadcast without definite useful purpose, than it is to exhaust the supply of those wells at Alvarado. As a matter of fact, legally and morally, I considered the actions parallel and equally heinous. If the Contra Costa Company has been driven to this desperate strait it is time they ceased business In this community Operating such devices as we saw at Alvarado yesterday they are not fit associates for reputable business men."

"It must be understood," Mr. Jacobs continued, "that the illegitimate plant at Alvarado pumps directly from the wells—the suction is immediate upon the source of supply, while the Oakland Water Company provides a tank to receive the natural flow of its wells and pumps from the tank, thereby avoiding every possibility of pumping the wells dry.

"You may be sure that when the gentlemen who inspected these plants began to comprehend the enormity of the device that has been opposed to the operation of the Oakland Company's enterprise there was a unanimous expression of indignation. We had not believed the reports we had heard and read concerning the matter and we were simply dumbfounded when we learned the truth. It may be inconceivable to the ordinary business man, who conducts his business honestly, that a corporation could resort to these methods, but our observation at Alvarado has proved that a corporation capable of doing such things, actually exists. There are some among us who are now prepared to believe all the charges that are made against the corporation."

USELESS IRRIGATION.

M. J. Keller was mildly satirical at the expense of the Contra Costa Company although he did not once mention the name of the corporation.

"I saw much water going to waste at Alvarado" he said, "and while I watched it flowing out into the marsh I thought o' the time the commission merchants dumped tons of good fruit into the bay to lessen the supply and keep up prices. If there are any beets in that marsh I do not think they require much water at this season, and I do not believe it is necessary to keep those pumps going night and day to operate that glue factory."

Councilman Bassett says the present state of affairs at Alvarado is one of the rankest he ever saw in his life. "The most remarkable thing I ever saw in my life," said he, "was a mighty stream of water rushing out of a building and emptying into the bay. It is the most wanton waste of water I ever conceived. When we asked the people around there who was responsible for it they said, 'Oh, that's the Contra Costa people trying to knock Dingee out.'

"I cannot conceive of a more powerful or beautiful plant than that of the Oakland Water Company. It is, so far as I can judge, fully capable of supplying two towns the size of Oakland if it is not tampered with. After looking over the works we went to the pumping plant just outside Mr. Dingee's grounds. That place is a conundrum. As soon as one approached the building the man in charge went to the door and partly closed it. When we asked to be permitted to look inside we were told in a surly manner that the orders were not to allow anybody inside. I was curious though and climbed up on top of a coal bunker and peeped through a window. There was about 100 tons of coal there—I tell you they were prepared for a seige—and inside was a powerful pump drawing through three large pipes and discharging through a fourth. The discharge was about three millions of gallons per day and all going to waste. The people of Alvarado laughed when we spoke to them about diminishing the supply. They said that the wells have been running so long that if the Contra Costa Company were to put up half a dozen pumps they would not hurt Dingee a particle. In another place was a little portable steam pump that had been pumping into the bay all morning and only stopped at noon. What they expect to accomplish by such means is not very plain. It amuses me."

INEXHAUSTIBLE SUPPLY.

P. E. Bowles said that he did not know who was responsible for the wasting of the water there but it was a most reprehensible practice. "There is a deserted building there," he said, "a few hundred feet from Mr. Dingee's plant and we were refused admittance. But it was very plain to us that there was some powerful machinery working inside. We could see the exhaust pipe that came through the roof and we could see the immense stream of water rushing through the flume that led from the building. On the three other sides of the building large pipes led into the building and through these water was being pumped to keep up the supply that was rushing through the flume to the marsh. It was absolutely wasted and the flow was tremendous. We were told that the pump was being worked by the Contra Costa Company, but whoever was responsible for it is guilty of a great waste of splendid water. In another part of the ground, just outside of Mr. Dingee's fence was a pumping machine that had worked until noon but had stopped when we got there. In my judgment Mr. Dingee's plant is simply marvelous and ought to experience no difficulty in supplying Oakland twice over. With such a lot of powerful machinery it would be simply miraculous if there were not a few little hitches at starting, but now the machinery seems to work in first-class style and to do all that is required or expected of it."

A PUEBLE EFFORT.

Emil Nusbaumer has studied the lay of the artesian belt at Alvarado and thinks it childish for anyone to suppose they can exhaust, or in any way decrease Mr. Dingee's supply by such methods as he saw at that place last Sunday.

"I saw the immense stream flowing from the deserted glue factory," said Mr. Nusbaumer, "and noticed that it emptied into the bay. Now if that stream were ten times as large I don't believe Mr. Dingee's supply would be affected in the least. A little distance from the water plants a club of which I am a member have some leased grounds over which we shoot. On these grounds there is a large spring of pure fresh water that has been flowing since anybody can remember. It runs through a natural slough into the ocean and as ducks must get to fresh water at least once a day, we use the well to attract the ducks. The slough is fitted with an automatic gate. As the tide rises the gate shuts and there is a fresh water pond inside. When the tide falls the gate opens and the water escapes. That whole country down there is the same and if a dozen towns were to be supplied from there I do not believe the supply would ever give out. Dingee is safe enough and need have no fear about a sufficient quantity of water. Such tactics as are being pursued down there are puerile."

"I had no idea that such perfect machinery was operating at Alvarado or that the supply was so profuse. It is practically inexhaustible. All of us were highly pleased with what we saw but we were not so well pleased with the operations of a rival plant within a few hundred yards of the Oakland Company's works. These engines are pumping millions of gallons every day directly from the source of supply and pouring it over a marsh. It was the emphatic opinion of everybody who observed this wanton waste of a material so necessary to human existence that it was an unfair method of competition, and it was condemned by all of us in the strongest terms. It did not seem necessary to us, as fair-minded, unprejudiced men, that this pure, clear water should be wasted in this manner, and we were surprised that the gentlemen who control the Contra Costa Water Company should so far forget themselves in a business rivalry as to permit or countenance it. In my opinion this action on the part of that corporation will have a tremendous effect in swaying public opinion in opposition to the Contra Costa Company, for there can be not the slightest excuse in condoning the methods which they are practicing at Alvarado."

THE latest investigations by the United States and Canadian Governments show the ROYAL BAKING POWDER superior to all others in purity and leavening strength.

Statements by other manufacturers to the contrary have been declared by the official authorities falsifications of the official reports.
